OF DRAMATIC FLIGHT

'Man Can Control Himself in Space'

SPACE CENTRE, Houston (UPI)—Astronaut Edward White said today his 20-minute spacewalk outside the Gemini-4 capsule proved "man can control himself in space," preferably with a longer lifeline and more space-gun fuel than he had.

Command pilot James McDivitt reported that he sighted three satellites in space during the four-day, 62-orbit flight.

The first of these "mystery" satellites had "big arms" and he saw it for about 30 seconds. He saw a second one at night and a third was too far away to be identified.

Telling the world details of their flight at a news conference in the manned spacecraft centre, the two relaxed space heroes laughed and quipped, and reported that if they had any difficulty it was in getting enough sleep.

"I was sleepy and hungry at times," McDivitt said, "but I felt fine."

"The only time I felt discomfort was when I was hungry," said White.

White described his 20-minute spacewalk with a space gun—man's first self-propelled mission in space. He disclosed that he used the space gun to jet himself "right out of the capsule" and float into the void at the end of a 25-foot lifeline.

"I enjoyed EVA (extra-vehicular activity) very much," White said. "I can tell you honestly I was sorry to see it draw to a close."

He told newsmen he felt man could work longer than four days floating alone in space.

"Yes," he said, "I would have liked to have had a longer tether, but more than that, I would have liked to have had about 10 times as much propellant" for the space gun.

He said he deliberately used up the compressed oxygen gun fuel and worked only on the tether after that—which sometimes tended to swing him around while McDivitt kept the 18-foot capsule steady.

McDivitt said he did not use the "thrusters" (rockets) whenever he could not see White through the windshield "because I didn't want to use them if White was sitting on them."

White disclosed that he carried with him a St. Christopher medal, a cross, and a Star of David, representing the religions he "knew something about."

"I had a great faith in my own God," the 34-year-old astronaut said simply.

While the spectacular films of his 20-minute space stroll were shown to the audience, White gave a running commentary on what he did and how he felt wafting through space, protected only by a space suit and helmet.

He used the lifeline "to pull myself down on the spacecraft." "I was actually walking on the spacecraft," he said.

"I walked three or four steps. I was able actually to walk right up the spacecraft."

He said a thought dashed through his head as he thought that he was linked to earth by radio.

"What do you say to 194 million people," White said was the question that went through his head.

"The view from up there is just something spectacular," White reported.

He explained why he spent longer than scheduled, walking in space—a delay that brought sharp orders from the ground to "get back in."

He said he had to spend about five minutes detaching the canopy and organizing his gear to slide back into the capsule.

McDivitt said of the entire four-day voyage:

"Eating and sleeping in space was just as difficult up there as it was down here (on earth)."

He said it was hard to sleep on the first part of the flight partly because of "radio noise."

McDivitt said he made "drastic" efforts to rendezvous with the burned-out second-stage booster rocket on the first orbit after lift-off from Cape Kennedy on June 3.

The rendezvous attempt failed, but not because McDivitt did not try.

"I thrust (used rockets) toward the booster," McDivitt said.

"My initial thrust wasn't enough and I thrust again. It became apparent to me that the booster and I weren't in the same orbit. We started falling rapidly away," McDivitt said.

Laughing, the crew-cut McDivitt said he and White found they had no trouble with their healthy appetites.

"We found we could eat just as much in space," he said.

Failure of a million-dollar flight computer was "a blow to my pride," McDivitt said. He wanted to control the craft down to its splashdown Monday, at the end of the 62nd orbit.

But the failure forced a gravity-controlled descent.

"I wanted to land on the elevator" of the recovery aircraft carrier USS Wasp's deck he said, laughing.

Cutoff Rule Passed

OTTAWA (CP)—The three minority parties joined with the government today to approve a new guillotine rule that will permit cabinet ministers to set time limits on legislation debates.

As the 15-day debate on sweeping reforms to rules and procedures neared a close, the report of a special nine-man committee was passed 103 to 33 with most Conservatives and one New Democrat opposing.

Gordon Churchill (PC—Winnipeg South Centre) warned that the new rule will increase the power of the cabinet to the detriment of backbenchers. Government and minority party spokesmen disagreed.

The new rule guarantees a minimum of six days debate on any bill if an all-party business committee cannot agree to longer or shorter lengths for the debate.

Voting for the rule change were 73 Liberals, three Conservatives, 12 NDP members, five Social Credit MPs and 10 Creditists.

The three Conservatives who broke with the party line were R. G. L. Fairweather (Royal), Eloise Jones (Saskatoon) and Paul Martineau (Pontiac—Temiscamingue).

The opposition consisted of 32 Conservatives and Arnold Peters (NDP—Timiskaming). Standings in the 265-seat Commons: Liberals 129, Conservatives 93, New Democrats 18, Creditists 13, Social Credit nine, Independent two, vacant one.

STRONGLY OPPOSED

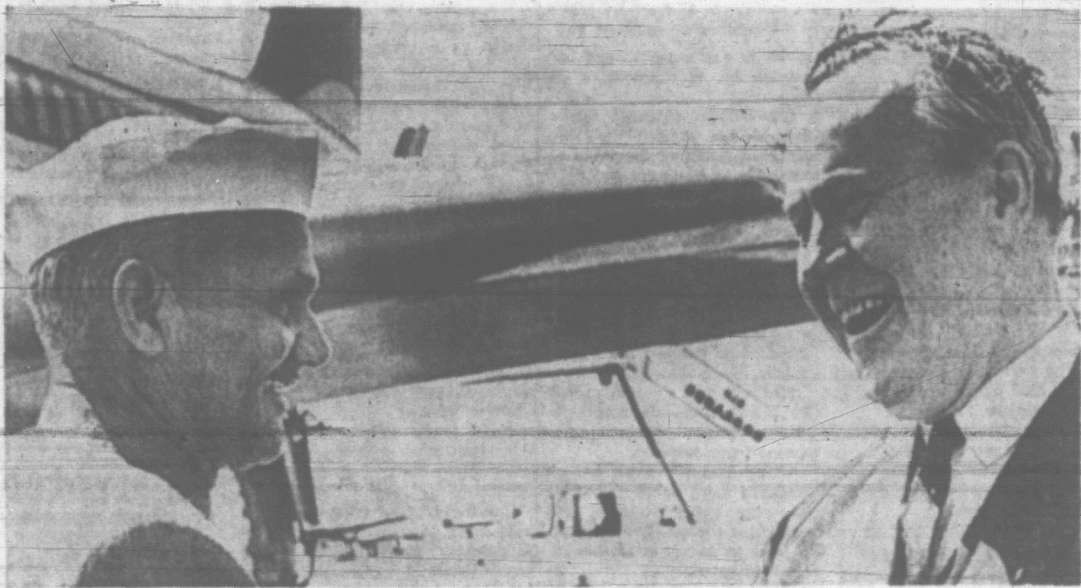

The guillotine was the most controversial change and was strongly opposed for several days by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, absent today on a speaking engagement.

The government maintained that an allocation-of-time rule was vital to reform and approval of the rule was taken as a question of confidence.

Inter-party agreement was reached Tuesday to send the rule to a special committee that could try until today to work out changes to meet some fears of opposition members.

The only change recommended in the report, opposed by the three Conservatives on the committee, was to add up to four hours of debating time after the 10 p.m. adjournment hour on third reading of bills so that more backbenchers would have a chance to speak.

'DANGEROUS VIOLATION OF PRESS FREEDOM'

HUNTSVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said today the federal government's proposal to prohibit foreign ownership of Canadian daily newspapers constitutes "a flagrant and dangerous violation" of freedom of the press.

It could damage the democratic process itself and open the way for "thought control" of radio and television. The Conservative party leader, speaking to a Kinsman convention, said "the philosophy of the bureaucracy" lay behind government plans to prohibit foreign ownership of newspapers by disallowing for tax purposes any advertising expenditures in such publications.

French, Germans To Co-Operate

BONN (Reuters)—France and West Germany were reported to have agreed today on increased co-operation in defence projects as President de Gaulle and Chancellor Erhard met here.

De Gaulle, who arrived this morning, immediately began two days of talks with the West German leader on NATO and European problems.

At simultaneous ministerial talks France showed readiness to compromise in the key ques-

OTTAWA (CP)—Barry Mather (NDP—New Westminster) introduced a bill in the Commons today to have driver breath analysis tests made compulsory.

Viet Nam, Arms Highlight Talks

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Ministers Shastri of India and Pearson of Canada today exchanged ideas on possible means of achieving a ceasefire in Viet Nam and of getting negotiations started.

Spokesmen for the two leaders declined, for the time being at least, to say what conclusions, if any, were reached. Mr. Shastri and Mr. Pearson

RAID PAUSE 'DISCUSSED' WITH JOHNSON

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson indicated in the Commons today that the government is discussing with President Johnson the possibility of a new pause in American air strikes in North Viet Nam.

External Affairs Minister Martin told the Commons Thursday that he hoped the bombing raids would be suspended in the hope it would lead to peace talks in Viet Nam.

Paul Martineau (PC—Pontiac-Temiscamingue) asked Mr. Pearson today whether Mr. Martin's hope is the subject of negotiations between the Canadian government and the U.S. president.

"There are no negotiations," the prime minister replied. "We have discussed these matters with the president of the United States."

U.S. Failing In Viet Nam Says Pravda

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Russia today launched its first authoritative attack on the U.S. decision to allow American troops to give combat support on request in South Viet Nam.

Pravda, Communist party newspaper, said in an editorial that "hypocritical statements about peace—loving aims" doesn't hide the Pentagon's plans to widen the war.

Despite all its efforts, the editorial said, the U.S. is suffering continuous defeats in Viet Nam, and the "liberated areas" are growing larger each day.

It said U.S. bombing of North Viet Nam has failed because American military leaders did not count on "the unshakable will to win of the people of a socialist country."

These defeats mean the U.S. is frantically seeking new means to win the war and is planning to use its army, navy and air force in a combat roll, the editorial said.

Quat Resigns As Premier

SAIGON (UPI)—Government troops drove the Viet Cong out of Dong Xoai today in one of the bitterest battles of the war. The government was feared to have suffered as many as 500 casualties but the enemy losses were greater—perhaps 700 killed and wounded.

Eight Americans were killed today when their plane crashed in the central highlands far to the north of Dong Xoai. The fighting at Dong Xoai cost the Americans nine known dead, 17 missing and 15 wounded—the highest single battle loss.

In Saigon the government of Premier Phan Huy Quat has resigned. A government spokesman said Quat had decided to "hand back the reins of government to the military."

Government troops today were pushing northward to try to rescue what was left of a shattered government relief column, a battalion flown in to help the Dong Xoai defenders. The battalion of 300 to 400 men ran into a costly ambush.

There still was no accurate count of Vietnamese casualties but the number was expected to be extremely high. Military sources said most of the original 400 defenders of the town, 60 miles north of Saigon, were wounded or dead. The final toll

'It Was Really Hell' When Viet Cong Came

SAIGON (AP)—"It was really hell for 14 hours—but I wouldn't want to live through those 45 minutes again," said 2nd Lieut. Charles Williams of Fayetteville, N.C.

Williams, 31, was in charge of the U.S. Army Special Forces camp that Communist guerrillas overran at Dong Xoai Thursday. He was sleeping in a building with seven other Americans when the Viet Cong began shelling the camp with mortars.

"Every American was either killed or wounded," he said from a hospital bed in Saigon. "We suffered 50 per cent of our casualties during the initial barrage."

Williams suffered shrapnel wounds in the arms and legs. "My first reaction was to get out of there, get the troops organized and repel the attack," he said. "We were in no position to be incapacitated. It was a matter of life and death."

"My men were wounded and dying or already dead. It was mass confusion."

Williams said nearly all of about 100 South Vietnamese troops with him were wiped out in that futile effort to hold the camp.

"We managed to beat them back until daylight. But then they began coming over the walls. Snipers were inside the compound."

The survivors abandoned the camp at dawn and made a break for the district post.

Williams said he and other Americans made a last-ditch stand there for six hours until they were evacuated Thursday afternoon.

NEW EDITION OFF PRESS... Eric, Philip look it over.

PHILIP, 9, PUBLISHER OF SUBURBAN NEWSLETTER

Spelling Is Bad (Montans, Taute) But Paper Sells

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—The spelling is bad, but the news is told and the paper sells. This is the story of nine-year-old Philip Lee's Newsletter, which he publishes in suburban College Park when the mood strikes him.

His brother Eric, 6, is circulation manager. Philip reported in the Newsletter that Eric enters Grade 2 in September and adds:

"He is pretty smart. The editor has taute him all he knows."

Philip's mother, Mrs. George Lee, cuts his stencils for him, retaining his original spelling, and St. Mary's Episcopal (Anglican) Church provides a mimeograph machine. Philip's topics cover a wide range, from the neighborhood to Viet Nam.

For a nickel, you can read these items from Philip's latest edition:

"Sister Annunciate, a nun... is sick and tired at St. Joseph's Hospital. She had an operation for very close veins. She is tired because she has been on her feet for 50 yrs. God bless her."

"Mrs. Grace Olds... broke her foot and she is very unhappy about it."

Reporting the upcoming marriage of Miss Laura Slade and Lieut. Richard B. Skelton, Philip writes: "Everybody will be dressed up fine specially her grandmother Mrs. A. L. Slade who says she will look finer than anyone except the bride. They will get married... and will live happily ever after."

Noting that Glenada Kimsey "studies underwater caves and climates montans," Philip concludes: "She is brave for a girl."

In an editorial on Viet Nam, Philip supports the U.S.

position there, reasoning, "if some boys were picking on my brother Eric, I would help him."

Mrs. Frankie Morgan was a substitute teacher the other day and Philip reported, "she was very tired at the end of the day and said that teachers are not paid amuf money."

Weighing in at 150 pounds Bernardo St. Bernard is patted by officials as he becomes new 'inmate' of Cook County jail in Chicago. (AP Wirephoto.)

Times News Services

CHICAGO—Bernardo St. Bernard at 15 months became the youngest convict of Cook County jail this week. Given the routine prisoner treatment of mug shots and a physical examination, he was assigned No. 000-065.

St. Bernard is a dog sentenced to life in prison by Judge Daniel J. Ryan of circuit court on a charge of mopey with intent to gawk.

The dog weighs at least 150 pounds and had been described as a big mope.

The dog, named for James Bernardo, jury supervisor for the criminal division of circuit court, became the prisoners' mascot because of domestic problems.

Henry Szura, owner of the Lazy H Ranch in suburban Fox Lake, told an assistant warden the St. Bernard and his doghouse, a Great Dane couldn't get along.

Bernardo got the gate.

Warden Jack Johnson agreed to take him as a personal pet, but decided that Bernardo's size ruled that out. Johnson also might have considered the large amount of meat and table scraps Bernardo requires daily.

Thus big Bernardo, who had been described as a gentle mope, was charged, tried, convicted and sentenced to a life of contentment.

SASKATOON—The Canadian agriculture department is working on a birth-control pill for turkeys.

Ken Swan, a federal government hatchery inspector, told the Saskatchewan Turkey Association Thursday that it is hoped the pill can be used to delay egg-laying by Canadian breeding flocks until after U.S. flocks have finished their egg-laying period.

Late Canadian turkey eggs then could be exported to the U.S. in greater numbers.

Turkeys normally lay eggs in the early summer.

NEW YORK—Policeman Steve Crowley, 42, a father of 14 children and a high school dropout, will receive his bachelor of arts degree in social science from St. John's University Sunday.

Crowley, a New York City policeman for 14 years, won a police department scholarship to college and became eligible for admission by passing a high school equivalency test.

At St. John's, he completed the six-year evening class program in five years.

During those years, he worked a full police schedule, sometimes 15 hours in a weekend to compensate for five hours off during the week.

Execution Site Found In Dominican

SANTO DOMINGO (Reuters) Officials of the Organization of American States today awaited action on their bid to have expert criminologists sent to the Dominican Republic to examine an alleged suburban "execution site" where half-burned bodies were found earlier this week.

Gn. Antonio Imbert Barrera, leader of the "reconstruction" junta government, Thursday night denied that his forces had any connection with the killings claimed to have occurred there. An official spokesman quoted Imbert as saying the alleged execution site "smells of a Communist trick."

Usually reliable sources quoted residents living near the site, at the village of Villa Mella 12 miles from Santo Domingo, as saying Imbert forces carried out 33 executions there between May 22 and Saturday.

The criminologists were sought by Dr. Jose Mora, secretary-general of the inter-American organization, after the bodies and several possible grave sites were inspected by OAS, United Nations and inter-American human rights commission officials.

In Washington, Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor said he expects there will be "some hard fighting" ahead in Viet Nam in the next few months.

Emerging from a meeting with President Johnson and the National Security Council, Taylor told newsmen the Communists in Viet Nam are waging an offensive for which they have been preparing for some months.

Earlier, Taylor told Senate foreign policy leaders that there was no plan for a dramatic build-up in U.S. ground forces in Viet Nam.

Talking with reporters after the White House conference, he said it was "very important" to see that the new Communist offensive was "not successful."

Privy Council President McLaughlin said this will add extra time to the throne speech and budget debates, which already have a fixed number of days.

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) rejected Conservative arguments that the Commons was accepting a new form of closure. The new rule would ensure the right of decision while preserving the right to speak.

The programming of Parliament's business will win public acceptance, Mr. Knowles said. H. A. Olson (SC—Medicine Hat) said the minimum guarantee of six days for any bill, plus up to two days for each amendment, will mean MPs will have more time for talk than in the throne speech that starts off a new session.

The abuse of the rules that had occurred in the last 1½ years would be stopped.

The new rules are to be used for a trial period at this and the next session.

HOME GARDEN

Dull Day A Delight To Gardeners

By HILDA BEASTALL

An overcast day in early summer with light showers, it's no use calling a gardener into the house for a meal.

Even Mrs. Gardener would be willing to forego preparing a meal in order to plant out the last batch of bedding annuals.

Such days are comparatively rare here. When one occurred this week, it was easy to note the plant lovers from the casual plant-putter-inners.

A dull day is ideal for setting out or moving any kind of plant. There is less loss of moisture from the foliage than when the sun is shining, and the air is cooler as well as being humid.

MORE SPACE

Cuttings of various herbaceous and shrubby plants which have rooted in a coldframe can be moved into nursery rows for the summer, giving them more space for development.

Vegetable plants which should have all been put into the garden by the end of May have a chance to establish quickly in the warm soil—if they are not too leggy and "hardened" by now.

The soil is getting very dry below the surface. Deep watering is necessary for any plants with roots more than an inch or so below the surface.

There is no greater saving on water than to use it plentifully for plants on dull, showery days, or nights.

Don't let anyone tease you into believing it to be a crazy idea to have several sprinklers running in your garden when rain is falling in summer.

Evaporation is less because the atmosphere is already damp, and the raindrops will penetrate the dampened soil together with the sprinkler drops.

None is lost. A test with a shovel or spade near some of the plants will keep you posted as to the depth of penetration.

Making notes of the dates on which certain areas of the garden are watered, and the results obtained make interesting reading when the water bill comes in.

Ottawa Pulled Rug—Young

A federal decision to stop its municipal development loan aid next March 31 will "pull the rug from under us" in capital budget financing, city manager Dennis Young said today.

Formal protest is expected to be recommended when the matter gets to council finance committee for discussion.

Saanich council will be asked to make formal objections. Reeve Hugh Curtis said, indicating that telegrams may be sent to MPs David Gross and George Chatterton.

Finance Minister Walter Gordon told the Commons Thursday economic conditions in Canada have improved. To the point where the incentive is no longer necessary.

"Crash programs conceived under pressure aren't good for either the municipalities or the federal government," Reeve Curtis said, referring to the March deadline next year for applying for loans.

Saanich got unanimous endorsement last month at the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities annual meeting when it recommended extension of the fund.

It was "like getting hit on the feet with a hammer," he said.

McDivitt said he simply did not know what caused a smear on the outside surface of his window. The smear showed when White touched the window during his spacewalk.

McDivitt said the smear looked black from one angle and like a "white powdery" substance from another.

White said the work he and McDivitt were doing and laborious check-out of the items needed for his spacewalk forced a delay in timing of his historic stroll in space.

White said everything "worked fine," although the check-out forced a one-orbit delay in the spacewalk.

"It was all going right along like clockwork," said White, "but we felt that we were hurrying a little bit and time was running out."

So they delayed the spacewalk until the third orbit of the 62-orbit flight.

White said the hatch "popped open" when he got ready to get out in space at the end of a 25-foot nylon lifeline.

Both space heroes insisted on giving credit to the teams on the ground that worked to make the flight a success.

At the conference, Dr. Robert C. Seamans, associated space agency administrator, spoke before the astronauts told their story. Seamans said "We've learned a great deal about the space environment as a result of Gemini-4."

Robert R. Gilruth, director of the manned spacecraft centre, quoted White as saying "It's a Cinderella story in a way, except that the spacecraft did not turn into a pumpkin. It remained a magnificent carriage."

Saanich got $391,000 from the fund toward its $700,000 municipal hall.

The city counted on the fund to get capital budget aid over the next four years of the five-year plan to spend $6.8 million on major projects.

"Many of the remaining projects were predicated on the use of this federal aid," Mr. Young said.

"To cancel it would have a serious effect on financing our capital budget and leave us in the position of refinancing our program."

"I can't see the federal government doing this—pulling the rug from under us after encouraging us to go ahead."

He said there is a "pretty tremendous difference" between financing a $1.5 million capital sewer project at 2 per cent of five-sixths of the total, and 5½ per cent of the whole cost of the project.

SAANICH COUNCIL will be asked to make formal objections. Reeve Hugh Curtis said, indicating that telegrams may be sent to MPs David Gross and George Chatterton.

Finance Minister Walter Gordon told the Commons Thursday economic conditions in Canada have improved. To the point where the incentive is no longer necessary.

"Crash programs conceived under pressure aren't good for either the municipalities or the federal government," Reeve Curtis said, referring to the March deadline next year for applying for loans.

Saanich got unanimous endorsement last month at the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities annual meeting when it recommended extension of the fund.

One minor problem: use of the rockets aboard the ship. McDivitt thumped the table before to frustrate the noise and pressure.

It was "like getting hit on the feet with a hammer," he said.

McDivitt said he simply did not know what caused a smear on the outside surface of his window. The smear showed when White touched the window during his spacewalk.

McDivitt said the smear looked black from one angle and like a "white powdery" substance from another.

White said the work he and McDivitt were doing and laborious check-out of the items needed for his spacewalk forced a delay in timing of his historic stroll in space.

White said everything "worked fine," although the check-out forced a one-orbit delay in the spacewalk.

"It was all going right along like clockwork," said White, "but we felt that we were hurrying a little bit and time was running out."

So they delayed the spacewalk until the third orbit of the 62-orbit flight.

White said the hatch "popped open" when he got ready to get out in space at the end of a 25-foot nylon lifeline.

Both space heroes insisted on giving credit to the teams on the ground that worked to make the flight a success.

At the conference, Dr. Robert C. Seamans, associated space agency administrator, spoke before the astronauts told their story. Seamans said "We've learned a great deal about the space environment as a result of Gemini-4."

Robert R. Gilruth, director of the manned spacecraft centre, quoted White as saying "It's a Cinderella story in a way, except that the spacecraft did not turn into a pumpkin. It remained a magnificent carriage."

'BE AROUND FOR YEARS'

Diefenbaker Laughs At Retirement Story

... 'get it right'

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—John Diefenbaker, national leader of the Progressive Conservative party, after several months of silence on the question spoke out Thursday and said bluntly he would be leading the party "for years to come."

He was asked about a report that he was planning to step down quietly into retirement on his 70th birthday on Sept. 15.

"It's false," he said. "It's just not so. Why don't they come to me like you did and ask the question instead of writing this stuff."

He said that he would be around and leading his party "for years to come."

"For years?" he was asked. "You heard me. Get it right," he told reporters. "Put it down, I said, for years."

Informed that a Toronto paper, reported to support the Conservative party, had forecast he would quietly retire next September on the occasion of his birthday, he laughed. "What again?"

He added, "Periodically and spasmodically such reports are made by such papers. They keep making such predictions. But they don't come to me to enquire."

"When I decide to retire, the notice of my retirement will not be speculation. When I decide, the announcement will be made available to each of you," he said.

LAST CHALLENGE

The last direct challenge to his leadership was made by Leon Balcer, then Progressive Conservative MP for Three Rivers. At that time Mr. Balcer was the national leader's Quebec lieutenant.

Then those who had supported Mr. Balcer—who has since left the party and moved to the other side of the House—said that the word was that Mr. Diefenbaker would be allowed to "depart with dignity" in his own good time. Some said he would depart on the occasion of his 25th anniversary of entering the Commons. That was earlier this spring.

About the persistent reports he would quit, Mr. Diefenbaker threw back his head and laughed heartily.

"They have been saying that for years," he said.

"Why Mackenzie King in his diary wrote me off: 'That's the end of him,' King said, after my first defeat in Prince Albert 40 years ago," he recalled.

Wives Share $60,000 Sweep Prize

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two women claiming to be the widow of a man who died 14 days before his Irish sweepstakes ticket paid $60,000 last October have decided to share the proceeds.

Mrs. Mary Sophie Rombough of North Surrey, B.C., and Doris Mosk Rombough of Tomahawk, Alta., have agreed to an out-of-court settlement whereby both will receive "a substantial portion of the estate," the North Surrey woman's lawyer, Richard Bird, said Thursday.

Mrs. Mary Sophie Rombough, 65, said her husband went to Alberta to work in 1944 and never came back. She claimed he was the same Robert B. Rombough who won a $60,000 prize in the Cambridgeshire in England, though he died two weeks before the race.

The second Mrs. Rombough also claimed the prize money. The North Surrey woman was living on social assistance at the time of her husband's death.

5 Raiders Killed On Malaya

KUALA LUMPUR (Reuters)—Government troops today mopped up remnants of the most recent Indonesian landing on Malaya as Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman forecast an end to the Malaysian-Indonesian conflict.

A defence ministry spokesman said five Indonesian raiders were killed and seven were captured in southern Malaya where two Indonesian raids were launched simultaneously last month.

One group was eliminated earlier while only two wounded survivors were believed alive from the other. The two groups totalled 24 men.

No casualties were suffered by Malaysian forces, but in the southeast region an elderly Malaysian civilian was found chopped to pieces by bush-knives and surrounded by Indonesian propaganda leaflets.

The prime minister said today he believed the undeclared war between the Malaysian federation and Indonesia might soon come to an end. Malaysia was winning the conflict on the military, political and diplomatic fronts.

Indonesia has vowed to crush the Malaysian federation.

Economic Gloom Ruled Out by LBJ

By STERLING F. GREEN

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson has muffled speculation over a governmental split on his economic policy by giving assurances that there are "no cross-currents, divisions or conflicts" within the administration.

The president told reporters, after a meeting with Chairman William McChesney Martin of the Federal Reserve Board and other senior economic officials Thursday that moderate but solid gains are foreseeable through 1965. "There is no reason for gloom or doom," he said.

This was an apparent reference to the stock market slump and public furor which followed Martin's June 1 speech at Columbia University.

That was the speech in which Martin spoke of "disquieting similarities" between the present prosperity and that of the 1920s, and emphasized the role of monetary policy—management of the money and credit supply—in preventing possible inflationary excesses.

(In the New York Stock market, paper values were pared almost $3,000,000,000 Thursday in the heaviest trading since the market recovery Nov. 26, 1963, the first full day of trading following the assassination of President Kennedy.)

SEES RESIGNATION

Martin's resignation was demanded Thursday by Representative Wright Patman (Dem. Tex.), chairman of the House of Representatives banking committee. Patman charged that Martin had challenged Johnson's economic policy and was calling for what Patman described as a disastrous policy of tight money.

But Treasury Secretary Henry H. Fowler, in an interview given before the White House meeting, helped Johnson to quash the talk of a policy split on the issue of tight money-versus-expansionism.

Fowler said he and Commerce Secretary John T. Connor agreed completely with what they regarded as Martin's basic theme, that of maintaining and strengthening the soundness of the dollar.

"The speech caused me no nervous indigestion," Fowler said. "I was surprised at the stock market's reaction, and I think Bill (Martin) was, too."

BI AND BI HEARS:

Youth Has Reason To Learn Languages

QUEBEC (CP)—Young, unmarried men and women have more motivation than older people to break down the walls between Canada's two main cultures, the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism was told Thursday.

H. S. Monahan, 41, a father of four from Arvida, Que., said: "A young man who comes to Quebec a celibataire (bachelor) has motives to learn French that a married man isn't supposed to have."

Motivation for learning the other man's—or girl's—language was discussed on the second of two days of royal commission hearings in the capital of Quebec's majority French-speaking province.

Mr. Monahan said French-Canadian workers in the Saguenay region where he lives have technical jobs in English-language companies to prod them into learning the language. But his own children were too young to see any economic gain in learning French.

"A study of how to motivate your child... should be undertaken by schools of sociology and pedagogy," he told the commission.

"We must teach French," said his brief, "using talented French-speaking teachers, Roman Catholics because there are just insufficient French Protestants to go around, starting in the earliest grades—no matter what the French-Canadians do..."

Mr. Monahan is an engineer for the Aluminum Company of Canada, which he said has made efforts to bilingualize itself in Quebec.

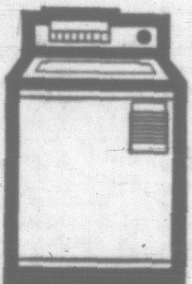

A Protestant principal, Philip Lawrence of St. John's, saw no motive for learning to speak French, only for understanding.

"If I am an English-Canadian, I don't want anyone to make me speak French; and if I am a French-Canadian, I don't want anyone to make me speak English," He testified in English.

Diamond Cornerstones

The American Gem Society and its members classify diamonds according to four factors—Cutting, Color, Clarity and Carat Weight. Of these, it is cutting, color and clarity which determines the per-carat price of average-size gems.

Accuracy of cutting is of prime importance to the beauty of your diamond since any deviation from ideal proportions noticeably affects fire and brilliance of the stone.

Let our trained gem expert explain this and other quality points to you in detail when selecting your gem.

MEMBER AMERICAN GEM SOCIETY

Clarity refers to the degree a stone is free of interior or exterior blemish when viewed under 10-power magnification. Our special gem microscope helps us determine each diamond's exact clarity grade.

Color refers to the crystal-clear absence of any color in the body of a diamond. Value falls as the common tinge of yellow appears in the stone.

Heart to Heart

Governor-General Vanier's call, not merely for unity in Canada, but for forthright action by Canadians to achieve that unity, gave his visit here an importance far beyond its ceremonial connotation. Here was sincere advice from a true Canadian to his fellow-countrymen to "cast aside petty selfishness and intolerance and substitute understanding, brotherhood, and confidence in one another." One sensed that these were not the hackneyed words of formal oratory: they were a calculated warning and a heartfelt call to action.

Although General Vanier's thoughts were addressed to Canadians in general, it is to be hoped that provincial premiers and their ministers throughout Canada will take special heed of them. For what the Queen's representative said struck at the shabby core of much of the political posturing that takes place today in the realm of provincial government.

Above all, the Governor-General made clear the nature of his allegiance: "I want to be known abroad and at home as a Canadian, not only as a citizen of one of the provinces."

If provincial premiers could absorb that thought, if they would realize that the people who elected them to their provincial responsibilities echo the Governor-General's sentiments, the badgering and buffoonery that are found too often in province-versus-federal politics today would disappear.

"This nation," said the Governor-General, "is not a collection of nor-General, "unless it goes forward as a whole and not as separate provinces, will not be able to achieve this destiny." These words apply to Quebec today, but they apply no less to British Columbia—where, significantly enough, they were spoken. There are too many attempts to score off the government of Canada for trivial local aggrandizement, too much of the petty manoeuvring and clownishness that are seen in trumped-up "causes" against Ottawa, too much of the truculent village mentality that is betrayed, for instance, in dire warnings to Ottawa to "keep its cotton-picking fingers" off provincial resources.

This sort of nonsense is not good enough for Canada, it is not good enough for British Columbia. Attempts to foment exaggerated and artificial frictions between the people of a province and their elected national government for the political advancement of the dissenters are unworthy and should cease.

A Governor-General cannot take part in political discussion. But Governor-General Vanier has spoken as clearly as possible within the limits of official protocol. In doing so, in urging us to be actively Canadian, he spoke not for the Queen or for himself but for the Canada he so obviously respects and loves.

Our future, he says, "depends on us, on all the provinces collaborating in the task of forging our nationhood." We can do no less if we are to survive.

Taking the Gilt Off de Gaulle

OPPOSITION TO PRESIDENT de Gaulle's proposal to return to the gold standard in international monetary payments has been widespread in Western economic and political circles.

It has remained for a countryman of the French leader, M. Pierre-Paul Schweitzer, to give the proposal what amounts to a coup de grace. M. Schweitzer, who is managing director of the International Monetary Fund, addressed the Institute of Banking and Financial Studies in Paris last week and gave the strongest intimation that the IMF would do everything in its power to prevent a return to the gold standard.

"I cannot believe," said M. Schweitzer, who is a former deputy governor of the Bank of France, "that a system which would give such strong encouragement to speculative factors is the best way that we can devise by way of rational control over the volume of international liquidity."

He put his finger on the most dangerous aspect of a return to the gold standard when he noted that in order to produce enough international liquidity to finance trade with present reserves of gold it would be necessary to raise the price of the precious metal. It would be quite apparent to speculators, he pointed out, that as the need for international liquidity outran the gold supplies of the world then successive price increases would be required. Under these conditions speculators would buy gold almost continually and indiscriminately in the sure knowledge that they could not lose. Indeed, the more they bought and thus withheld from international trade, the quicker the price would be forced up.

M. Schweitzer acknowledged that there was a need to continue developing multilateral facilities for creating larger fiduciary reserves to finance world trade. He also said that this process would be made easier if the balance of payments positions of the United States and Britain were corrected, making the aggregate official holdings of dollars and sterling more of a stable element in world reserves.

This latter is a situation which will undoubtedly be the chief topic of discussion when the IMF meets next September. It is not likely that the meeting will entertain any thought of returning to the gold standard in view of M. Schweitzer's scathing criticisms.

Man, He's Blowing That Horn

FOR YEARS LOUIS "SATCHMO" Armstrong has blown his inspired trumpet and sung his gravel-voiced songs to people all over the world and has given a big-toothed grin of friendly appreciation to the thousands who have applauded him.

Recently he performed his particular miracle in Budapest, where 91,000 crowded a soccer stadium and waited an hour for the performance because his plane was delayed. At the end of the show they stood and cheered him to the echo.

"Satchmo," the ambassador of jazz, is perhaps one of the United States' most valuable assets in the entire field of making friends and influencing people favorably. The simplicity of his technique might well be noted. He sees listeners, and he treats them as people, without much concern for the ideologies of their rulers. And the listeners, regardless of race, creed or color, respond characteristically to the man who gives them his best—and a very good best at that.

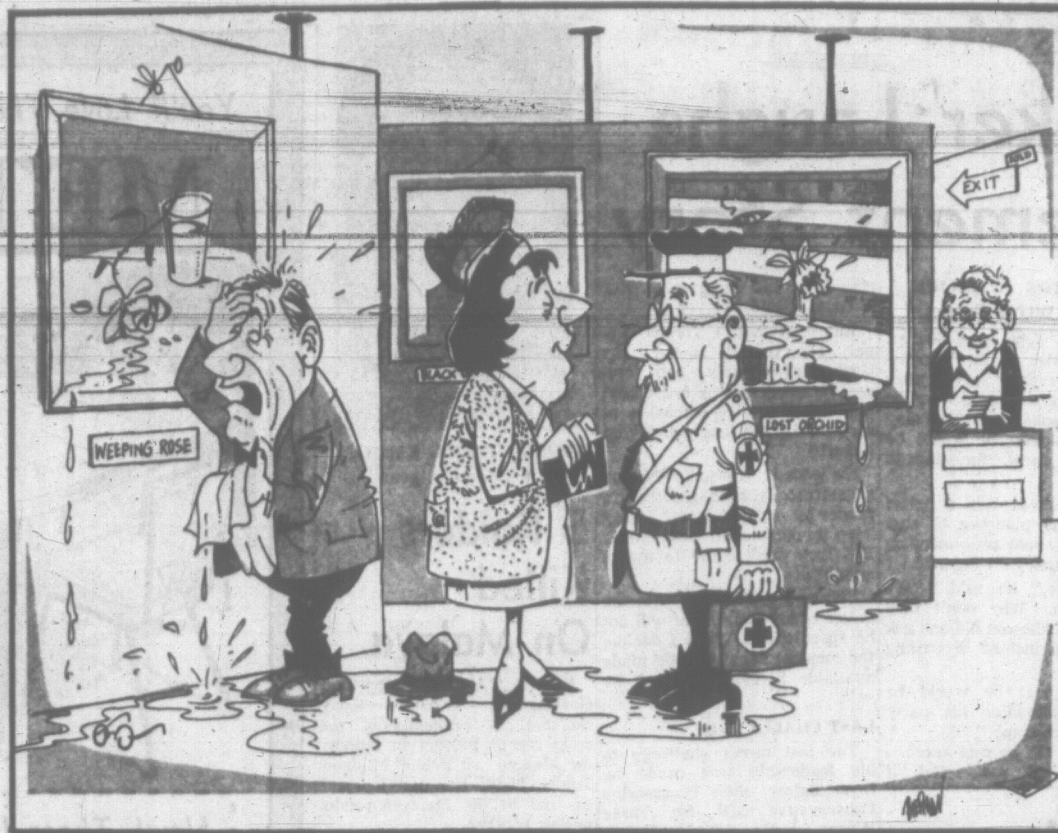

Humanity Forbids, But . . .

A DEMONSTRATOR, CLAIMING Toronto origin, gained the notice he presumably sought by handcuffing himself to the flagstaff of the Canadian Embassy in Washington recently and shouting "Free speech for the Canadian Nazi Party."

Embassy employees, formerly RCMP members, cut him loose in less than five minutes, using hammers, chisels and saws, according to the news report.

This, no doubt, was the proper and the humane thing to do. But speculation is invited on the prospect of leaving such exhibitionists where they have chained themselves and waiting for the elements to rust away their self-imposed shackles.

FROM OTTAWA

By MAURICE WESTERN

Invitation to Walk in the Dark

MR. WALTER GORDON'S defence of the Canada Development Corporation appears to start from an optimistic conviction that objections, if consistently ignored, will go away.

This notion is surely as fanciful as the complimentary remarks with which the minister began a recent speech to the Canadian Textiles Institute at Ste. Adele, Quebec. He said, "If I were associated in any way with your industry... I would urge you to undertake a long term program of public relations and public education to inform the public from official Ottawa down—or from Ottawa up, if you prefer it—of what your great industry means to Canada. I believe this is something that needs doing."

So Unnecessary

If there is one industry in the country which does not need official exhortations of this character, it is the textiles industry.

Mr. Gordon turned to the CDC. Some have objected that the proposed corporation is not necessary. His argument, more or less related to the point, was as follows:

In the past Canada has "lacked the large pools of private capital that are required to finance the kind of great new development projects on which little or no return can be expected for some years. Or to purchase larger family businesses whose owners have found it necessary to sell."

This lack has caused a wave of take-overs and accounts also for foreign control of great resource industries. Although some reasonably large pools of Canadian capital have lately been accumulating, they are far from adequate and "some new vehicle is needed for channelling Canadian savings into equity holdings on a large scale."

This obviously begs the question. It assumes that Canadians do not save enough—or at least do not turn their savings to the right purposes—because they lack a proper "vehicle." But where is the evidence for this? The obvious reason why most Canadians save too little is the fact that they cannot squeeze enough out of their budgets after paying taxes. How will the CDC change this situation?

The CDC might, of course, divert capital from other institutions. But this, according to Mr. Gordon, is what it is not supposed to do. There is plenty of room in the field for everybody. We seem to have a problem of frustrated capital which cannot find an outlet.

Frustrated Capital

Mr. Gordon is evidently persuaded that the volume of this frustrated capital is very great. One of the purposes of the CDC will be to initiate the development or expansion of large scale new enterprises in Canada. He told the textile men that, if it had been in existence a few years ago, "it might have participated in such things as Trans-Canada Pipe Lines, the development of the Canadian oil and gas industry, the tar sands of Alberta, Saskatchewan potash, Labrador iron, the integration of certain sections of our forest industries and so on."

To take this seriously, one must believe that we had enough idle capital lying around in the '40s and '50s to have enabled a government-sponsored corporation not only to initiate such major projects but also to establish an effective Canadian interest in them. This seems wildly improbable even on the assumption that a corporation so sponsored and mobilizing small savings would have gone into oil and gas prior to Leduc.

What Difference?

If a substantial Canadian ownership had been achieved through an earlier CDC, would the policy consequences have been very significant? The CDC is supposed to make money and its interests therefore would have been no different from those of the foreign participants. For example, would the CDC have been any readier than American firms to pump money into the tar sands before processes had been developed making it possible to market Athabasca products in competition with those of the oil fields?

We thus come to a second objection. Mr. Gordon's arguments contradict themselves. On the one hand, he tells us that the CDC will do what it will not do. Basically, the purpose is to channel investment into large scale enterprises now neglected, as well as into Canadian enterprises which might otherwise pass to foreigners. But, on the other hand, he says emphatically that there will be no government interference.

DENNIS THE MENACE

Looking Back

From The Times of June 11, 1890:

Whisperings are being heard of a movement to abolish the office of general superintendent of the Methodist Church after the death of Rev. Dr. Williams. The old Wesley element has not surrendered the notion that the office was a concession to the old Methodist-Episcopal denomination, in whose organization the office of bishop was maintained. Some argue that the terms of union must remain inviolate, but the basis of union is not sacred against the reformer or even the abolitionist.

Voices Of Quebec

Quebec L'action

The principle of freedom of the press is inseparable from democracy. This freedom should be large, but not unlimited. Already it is restricted by the law and newspapers find themselves unable to publish certain kinds of information.

Word now is that they're thinking in Ottawa of amending the Criminal Code so as to limit press freedom in the matter of court reporting. Justice Minister Fauriol wants publication of testimony given in preliminary inquiries to be prohibited as long as the court has not decided that there is enough evidence to warrant a trial.

We believe that information media should be prevented from publishing statements made by an accused person in a preliminary inquiry as well as in a coroner's inquiry, where the case is one of murder. How do you expect to find an unbiased jury in a murder case if the accused makes statements at his inquest and these are published?

Trois-Rivieres Le Nouveliste

Despite the fact that in 1964 the price of automobile insurance was raised substantially, the companies have not had better results than in 1963. So says the president of the Canadian Underwriters' Association, T. D. Rutherford. This was his reply to possible complaints of automobile owners that nothing justifies the newly-announced increase in premiums and that any such further increase would be without solid justification.

The companies were unable to make a profit sufficient to pay all their expenses and the commissions due to their agents.

The insured won't accept Mr. Rutherford's opinions and the policy of the companies without lively criticism. It's said that the companies, profiting from their situation, might be asking more than the real cost of accidents and are making more than a just profit. Figures are brought out that conflict with those presented by the association.

Who's right in all this? Perhaps a thorough-going inquiry would clear up the situation and determine just where the truth lies.

Montreal Metro-Express

The United States has proposed creation of a committee made up of four or five countries to study NATO's nuclear problems. The committee would be empowered to study and eventually set out a nuclear strategy for all the members of the alliance.

The fact is that NATO is an American creation whose letters patent are kept at the state department, and the rules are drawn up that there is no vote. "Decisions are made unanimously," the rules say. But this unanimity is "made in U.S.A." The Americans regard NATO as one of their properties.

There isn't a consultative committee in the world that could change the plans of the Pentagon or the White House. So reality won't change and the Atlantic pact will continue to be a property of the Americans.

FROM WASHINGTON

By JOSEPH ALSOP

Too Much for One Man

IT IS neither easy nor especially pleasant to say; yet there is one more thing that really needs saying, in summation of the lessons learned during a recent visit to the Vietnamese war. To put it bluntly, the President is asking for very bad trouble by trying to act as both field marshal and top sergeant in a war halfway around the world, in a country he does not know, with combatants, terrain and an infinity of other local features which are wholly unfamiliar to him.

For a President to make this attempt, in addition to his countless other duties, is without any precedent whatever in the whole course of American history. No one has noticed this, however, because everyone remembers the second Cuban crisis when President Kennedy exercised the most detailed control of the naval blockade that called the Soviet bluff.

This is a false precedent for several obvious reasons. The most important practical reason is that the second Cuban crisis was near at hand and strictly limited, in time and space. Hence, detailed control could be intelligently exercised from the White House. The thing attempted was feasible, and the results were good.

The Cuban precedent no doubt applied last winter during the first week of air operations against North Viet Nam. In the initial period, exceedingly delicate political judgments had to be made each day. Close direction from the White House was, therefore, needed.

But it is simply not feasible for the President to go on acting in his double role of field marshal and top sergeant. Doing so risks bad trouble, not because President Johnson lacks the intelligence or the courage for the task, but because what is being attempted is impossible to do well.

The problem is now becoming urgent, moreover, because the whole pattern of the Vietnamese war is changing rather rapidly. On the one hand, the North Vietnamese Communists' only half-concealed invasion of South Viet Nam is growing more and more massive and significant.

On the other hand, American military strength is, therefore, more and more needed to sustain the South Vietnamese against the growing pressure from the North. Unless American military strength is used promptly, energetically and wisely, both on the ground and in the air against the North, the enemy can too easily succeed in breaking the will to resist of the South Vietnamese troops in one or more of the corps areas that are now under heavy attack—which is how the Communists count on gaining the final victory.

But as long as the President attempts to exercise personal control over the smallest operations in which American military strength is employed, prompt and energetic use of this strength cannot be counted on. The President, in fact, is too busy and too far away. Already, it must be added, the results have been decidedly unfortunate, especially in the case of the famous "pause" in the northern bombing operations.

The President ordered this "pause" in order to spike the guns of his domestic and foreign critics. That was no doubt convenient. But as was clearly foreseen by the American commanders on the spot, the "pause" also greatly disheartened the South Vietnamese and vastly emboldened the Communists in the North.

Embarrassing

The pause also set another novel precedent which is likely to be bitterly embarrassing later on, if and when the United States effort in Viet Nam at last begins to pay off. For it must be remembered that two solid years of hard fighting intervened between the opening of negotiations at Panmunjom and the signature of final truce in Korea.

The mere opening of negotiations is highly unlikely to produce a more decisive result in Viet Nam than it did in Korea. But how is the pressure to be kept on as it will have to be kept on, with all the twaddle merchants at home and abroad clamorously reminding the President that he was willing to relax the pressure for the simple purpose of inviting negotiations? In short, this was not a step that would ever have been taken by the commanders on the spot, with their realistic sense of the true course of the war.

History bristles with lessons that wars cannot be successfully managed by remote control: even the most voluminous cables are a poor substitute for hard reality. That does not imply, of course, that the President can or should relax the careful political and over-all strategic control of the war that must always be exercised by every commander in chief.

Detail Decisions

But there is a difference—a very wide difference—between exercising political and strategic control and personally passing on every operation, however trivial, involving the use of American strength.

There are several possible solutions of the problem. Gen. Maxwell Taylor, for instance, could be promoted to be American theatre commander, leaving U. Alexis Johnson as ambassador in Saigon. And some sort of solution will surely have to be found before long.

The 'New Morality' Presents Odd Paradox

By
MORTIMER

We are constantly being told nowadays that we are undergoing a sexual revolution. We are also told—frequently by the same authorities, and in the same context—that we live in a permissive society.

Many people appear to accept this paradox without question. We are, it seems, in violent revolt against restriction, while at the same time indulging in the greatest sexual licence since Babylon. The whole business seems to me to have lost touch with reality—the reality of sex being relationships between people, and the causes and effects of those relationships.

I propose to argue that there are two kinds of permissiveness: the rational and the popular. A rationally permissive society is one which permits the scrapping of rules and taboos which have become meaningless. Such a society may lag behind the avant-garde, and outstrip the reactionary, but by and large it reflects the general mood. Sooner or later its laws are revised in accordance with changing requirements. The process, for the reformers, may be cumbersome, with its need for commitment, funds, lobbying, document-signing and all the rest; but its achievements are, in so far as anything can be, sure.

Having a Bash

"Pop" permissiveness, on the other hand, demands revolution and is mainly concerned with aggression against authority—kicking over the traces, breaking out, beating it up, having a bash and so on. It is a fashion in behavior instigated, like most other fashions, by a small clique of trend-setters, with a large commercial backing. Such a fashion can flourish in almost any society, and under almost any conditions—the great exception, in my experience, being the U.S.S.R.

The advertising of sex, the ceaseless irritation of our erogenous zones without any real satisfaction, the permissiveness that allows freedom to without first establishing freedom from, is, in my view, a cheat.

The cheating, however, is not only done by commercial exploiters; it is perpetrated also by many intelligent and well-meaning people, who, in their enthusiasm, do not distinguish between popular and rational permissiveness. Their propaganda may be on a high level, but it is based on equally false assumptions.

Appalling State

These are that we are in an appalling state of sexual confusion, tenseness and inhibition which on the whole we are not; that we attach far more importance to our sexual needs than we do to our needs to be adequately housed, instructed, fed and employed, which, unless we have lost all sense of proportion, we do not; and that we desire total sexual freedom, which is a psychological impossibility, anyway, and as ill-suited to our needs as the Garden of Eden.

What does the "pop" propagandist suggest we do about it? Inaccurate assumptions

Yesterday in this space British journalist Katherine Whitehorn discussed the so-called "popular morality" as exemplified in a recently published book, "Eros Denied," by Wayland Young. Today Penelope Mortimer continues the discussion which was originally printed in the London Observer.

produce only trivial and time-wasting demands. "Our language is depleted and gangrenous," says Wayland Young, "our arts are futile and thwarted."

Firstly, then, we must be given freedom to print certain "four-letter" words which are constantly spoken. These words, which have become curiously sacred to the romantics, are not particularly euphonious, and have long since lost their superficial association with the acts, or the parts of body, concerned.

I suggest that these Anglo-Saxon barks were rejected as much for their inadequacy as for their unseemliness. And "Popular permissiveness is a commercial cheat and a trivial myth... A great deal of popular permissiveness is based on exactly the same moral do-goodery as Victorian England—we must all be cured of our eccentricities, saved from ourselves and be infallibly pure, like the angels."

why try to force respectability on words which have gained what richness and imagery they have through being expressions of rebellion, offensiveness and bad taste? We should only invent more; and since they would not originate in our infancy, in our deepest feelings of guilt and pleasure, they will be a lot more foolish.

In any case, would bringing them back to their original meaning really revive our depleted—and gangrenous—language—or would it deplete it further? This language has, in fact, produced a body of poetry which relies almost entirely on fantastic euphemisms, ingenious symbols, hyperboles, "comely in nothing but love."

Sex Always Will Alarm

(From a review of Wayland Young's "Eros Denied," by Philip Toynbee in the London Observer.)

Our taboos are stupid and misplaced. Puritanism is as ugly as rape when the puritan tries to impose his own desires on others.

Human misery could be reduced if we rid ourselves of our intolerant intolerance of practices to which we are not ourselves inclined.

But I do not believe in Mr. Young's sexual Utopia. I think that sex will always be surrounded by a caul of mystery and awe, and that many sexual relations will always cause pain, frustration and hostility. I think that dirty stories will continue to amuse us because sex will continue to alarm us, and I foresee no all-redeeming YMCA, no joyful coupling on the tops of buses.

We wish to be steamy and sly in our sexual practices; we enjoy both the mystery and the absurdity of sex; we even wish for the disapproval of others in some of the things we do. Mr. Young must not be a spoilsport.

Next, "our arts are vapid and cold." Well, are they? And would abolition of all censorship necessarily mean the unleashing of a flood of masterpieces? It might improve slightly the conditions for creating a masterpiece. On the other hand, it is undeniable that total permissiveness has a very bleak and debilitating effect on human nature, and I suppose it is also possible that the abolition of censorship might, after the rash of legitimised pornography, produce nothing but a great yawning silence.

Realistically, if you take away "the dirty little secret" you are not, as the romantics believe, left with a pure great statement; you are more liable, human nature being what it is, to be left with what even D. H. Lawrence—the great pop permitter, in his way—saw as "depression, inertia, lack of life."

The fact that the confrontation between Sharp and the carmakers took place at a dinner in the prestigious Detroit Club on June 2 is widely known. But here is a detailed reconstruction of what actually took place:

The crisis at Expo that culminated in the dinner began to develop early in the spring when the Canadian auto makers quietly backed away from their previously announced intention of participating in the fair with large, individual pavilions. Chrysler had actually taken out an option for a $3.55 million building, although no final commitment had been made. Instead, the companies began to talk vaguely about combining their efforts in a small cut-rate pavilion which could be erected for less than $1.5 million.

Expo executives were unable to cajole the car men into changing their minds and in desperation called Sharp to the rescue. The trade and commerce minister decided to apply pressure through the Canadian subsidiaries' U.S. parent corporations and invited the presidents of the American firms along with the chiefs of their Canadian corporations to a private dinner in Detroit. Not wishing to outrank the heads of their Canadian operations, the American presidents declined but agreed to assign senior vice-presidents.

The final guest list included L. C. Goad, executive vice-president of General Motors and E. H. Walker, president of Canadian GM; Lee Iacocca, group vice-president of the Ford Motor Company and Karl Scott, president of Ford of Canada; I. J. Minetti, vice-president of Chrysler Corp., and Ron Todgham, president of Canadian Chrysler. As well as Sharp, Expo was represented by Robert Shaw, its deputy commissioner; Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau; Pierre de Bellefeuille, Expo's director of exhibits and Gerard Levesque, minister of trade and commerce, Province of Quebec.

Sharp began by urging the auto men to keep in mind that unlike the New York World's Fair, Expo '67 was officially sanctioned by the International Bureau of Exhibitions and would therefore receive official support from the bureau's 32 member countries. Since the theme of Expo would be "Man and His World," Sharp pointed out that it would be erroneous for the American way of life to be depicted only in government exhibits. The dynamic function of the private sector of the economy should be represented as well, and in what better way than through large, gleaming automobile pavilions?

Sharp wound up by making the observation that Expo had been started by the Conservatives and continued by the Liberals, that it represented a truly national undertaking. He said that it seemed to him appropriate for Canadian subsidiaries of U.S. corporations who want to consider themselves good corporate citizens in Canada, to make a generous contribution to the fair's success.

Ron Todgham, Canadian president of Chrysler, led off for the automakers and politely but firmly made it clear that he didn't consider an appeal based on Canadian nationalism fair play since this was a business proposition that had to be considered in business terms.

Journalist Set Apart

The Manchester Guardian

Mr. Walter Lippmann spoke in London last Thursday at the 14th general assembly of the International Press Institute. His presence was a tribute to the institute and a sign of its growing importance. Mr. Lippmann is the greatest living journalist. More than that, he is one of the most influential Americans of his time. The only serious rival to him as an influence on the elected rulers of the United States through more than a generation is the veteran Bernard Baruch, who is now in complete retirement. Mr. Lippmann, however, at 75, is still very active.

Like Mr. Baruch, he is of Jewish-American stock. A child of New York and a brilliant alumnus of Harvard, his character is conspicuously that of the East Coast intellectual. His parents being well-to-do, he was able in early youth to read and travel widely, and to learn languages.

Woodrow Wilson spotted his talent and took him to the Peace Conference after the First World War. Since then he has been in the confidence of successive presidents of both parties and has become own right. Politicians and military chiefs show him a respect for which there is no parallel in British experience. He does not wait upon them; they wait upon him.

He has often been wrong, but his errors have always been supported by good arguments. His work is never silly or superficial and when he is right he is gloriously right. He falls into none of the obvious categories, being at times radical, at times conservative; an internationalist who is also a strong patriot; a critic of government, yet one who instinctively sympathizes with those who have to exercise power. (Lately he has been criticizing American policy in Viet Nam. Yet he admires and often praises President Johnson.)

He is an inspiration to all free journalists and particularly to those of us who write columns. But luckily there can be no question of trying to imitate him. He is inimitable.

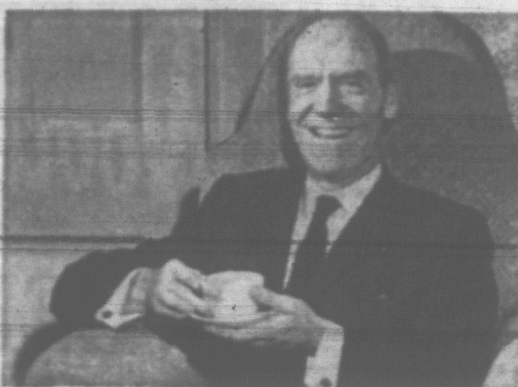

Today, among the rolling birch-topped hills, the aspen and poplar bluffs and through the willow-fringed valleys, formal gardens, terraces and landscaped grounds have been developed.

Ornamental spillways drain a series of lakes from one level to another and around the shores, there are picnic grounds.

In the formal area, a series of panels beginning at the entrance will ultimately extend about a mile. The first three—Peace Panel, Terrace Panel and Sunken Garden—are completed, with Cascade, Turf and Emblem Panels, a Reflecting Pool and a Peace Tower, still in the making.

The site has become the thing of beauty which Dr. Moore envisioned; a meeting place for the peoples of Canada and the United States, as well as for visitors from other lands.

Said the young couple who made the side trip there last month: "No one could visit the International Peace Garden and not come away with a keener appreciation of the concept which gave it birth and the spirit which sustains its life."

MITCHELL SHARP: Smooth Negotiator

How Sharp Handled The Auto Moguls

By PETER NEWMAN

OTTAWA—Mitchell Sharp's meeting with the auto moguls of Detroit last week over their participation in Expo '67 gave an interesting insight into the trade and commerce minister's superlative skill as a negotiator.

The fact that the confrontation between Sharp and the carmakers took place at a dinner in the prestigious Detroit Club on June 2 is widely known. But here is a detailed reconstruction of what actually took place:

The crisis at Expo that culminated in the dinner began to develop early in the spring when the Canadian auto makers quietly backed away from their previously announced intention of participating in the fair with large, individual pavilions. Chrysler had actually taken out an option for a $3.55 million building, although no final commitment had been made. Instead, the companies began to talk vaguely about combining their efforts in a small cut-rate pavilion which could be erected for less than $1.5 million.

To the Rescue

Expo executives were unable to cajole the car men into changing their minds and in desperation called Sharp to the rescue. The trade and commerce minister decided to apply pressure through the Canadian subsidiaries' U.S. parent corporations and invited the presidents of the American firms along with the chiefs of their Canadian corporations to a private dinner in Detroit. Not wishing to outrank the heads of their Canadian operations, the American presidents declined but agreed to assign senior vice-presidents.

The final guest list included L. C. Goad, executive vice-president of General Motors and E. H. Walker, president of Canadian GM; Lee Iacocca, group vice-president of the Ford Motor Company and Karl Scott, president of Ford of Canada; I. J. Minetti, vice-president of Chrysler Corp., and Ron Todgham, president of Canadian Chrysler. As well as Sharp, Expo was represented by Robert Shaw, its deputy commissioner; Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau; Pierre de Bellefeuille, Expo's director of exhibits and Gerard Levesque, minister of trade and commerce, Province of Quebec.

Advantages

Robert Shaw of Expo then supported Sharp's arguments and again emphasized the advantage of exhibiting at an officially recognized fair. Gerard Levesque spoke for the Quebec government, fitting Expo into the tableau of the province's economic development. Mayor Drapeau then made a particularly strong appeal on behalf of Expo, pointing out that funds allocated by car dealers in Canada to other activities of the Centennial Celebration should not be allowed to interfere with their budgets for Expo.

But it wasn't until Pierre de Bellefeuille of Expo began to debate with the automakers that their real objections were openly stated. It turned out that they were dismayed by their experiences at the New York World's Fair. They had tried to outdo each other in the splendor of their pavilions and had ended up spending a combined $135 million—far more money than they had budgeted for originally.

Scott of Canadian Ford and Walker of Canadian GM then spoke, both questioning the advisability of spending large sums on the Montreal fair in view of the responsibilities they have toward their shareholders. De Bellefeuille retorted that they should ask themselves what their shareholders would think if their companies didn't show up to advantage at the fair.

Quiet Talk

All during these skirmishes, Sharp was quietly talking to individual auto men and at the conclusion of the dinner, when L. C. Goad, the GM executive vice-president, summed up for the industry, the atmosphere had turned hopeful. Goad made no specific promises. But he did agree that the auto industry should be "appropriately represented" at Expo and said that its position would be reconsidered—a concession of no mean importance considering the coolness of the car makers at the beginning of the meal.

The impression of the Canadians as they left the club was that when Expo opens, one of its chief attractions will be a large $5 million pavilion sponsored by the U.S. automakers. If this happens it will be due in no small measure to the persuasive charm of Mitchell Sharp and his Expo team.

Racism Threatens to Split Young Malaysian Federation

HONG KONG—A "Malaysian Malaysia" instead of a "Malayan Malaysia."

This is the new rallying cry echoing through the young Federation of Malaysia, with the angry chorus led by the strident voice of Lee Kuan Yew, the Socialist Prime Minister of the State of Singapore.

On the surface, the "Malaysian Malaysia" slogan appears a quite logical sentiment aimed at consolidating the peoples of the federation in their struggle against the continuing confrontation by their restless neighbor, Indonesia.

But, because of bitter inter-racial conflicts within the Federation and because of the natural exuberance of boisterous Malaysian politics, the "Malaysian Malaysia" movement has in recent weeks precipitated a severe government crisis which has threatened to split the federation into bickering splinter groups and throw Malaysia into complete chaos.

Partly Right

Lee Kuan Yew is, of course, at least partly correct because it is a fact that in the federation indigenous Malays do enjoy privileged positions and do have certain special rights, such as preference in government employment and the issue of business licences.

The feuding burst into the open recently when the Singapore premier lined up his own multi-racial but predominantly Chinese People's Action Party with Malaysia's newly-formed opposition political group, the Malaysian Solidarity Convention.

Using a "Malaysian Malaysia" as its theme, the opposition said its main objective was to make sure no one race enjoyed political privilege or leadership within the federation.

Then Lee Kuan Yew fanned the flames of dissent himself by suggesting that if Malaysia were to be dominated by its Malay population, he would propose some form of partition.

As members of a new country, he suggested Singapore (where indigenous Malays are a small minority), the Borneo states of Sabah and Sarawak, and the former Straits Settlements of Malacca and Penang, where indigenous Malays account for only about one quarter of the population. The reaction was swift and bitter.

Heated Denial

Surprised by Lee Kuan Yew's blithe assumption that they would join Singapore in a partition movement, officials in Sabah, Sarawak and Malacca heatedly denied they would ever participate in such a scheme, and vowed their intention to remain within the federation.

Federal politicians in Kuala Lumpur were even more outraged by Lee Kuan Yew's remarks.

As tempers flared, violence threatened.

A scheduled university campus debate between Lee Kuan Yew and a federal cabinet minister had to be called off when students split into angry rival groups of Malays and Chinese.

Extremists within Tengku Abdul Rahman's Alliance Party, calling for secession for Lee Kuan Yew to be deported to China or arrested and for a while even the usually unflappable Tengku experienced difficulty calming his more exuberant supporters who called for an all-out war against Mr. Lee.

No matter what motives Lee Kuan Yew may have for fanning the flames of dissension, there is no doubt that the already serious situation could become critical in the face of the national emergency which exists because of Indonesian confrontation.

Cooling Off

Meanwhile, with the Tengku leaving shortly for the Commonwealth Prime Ministers' Conference in London and the current parliamentary session over, things are likely to cool off for a while.

That's not to say, however, that trouble will not flare up again in the extremely race-conscious federation. As exuberant and energetic as ever, a smiling Lee Kuan Yew returned to Singapore the other day from Kuala Lumpur and cheerfully told reporters:

"It has been a breezy session of Parliament, perhaps all for the good. It has blown away a lot of cobwebs and blown open cupboard doors to disclose some musty skeletons."

But, he added, cryptically, "Who knows what is going to happen? I am not sure."

national unity in the face of Indonesian confrontation.

The federation's population is approximately 10 million (compared with Indonesia's 90 million) and here is where Malaysia's internal strife lies.

The population divides into Malays, Chinese, Indians, Pakistanis and Eurasians.

But of the total population, 42 per cent is Chinese.

And Singapore's Lee Kuan Yew is Chinese.

It's not surprising, therefore, that the fiery, outspoken Singapore premier has sailed enthusiastically into battle against the ruling coalition Alliance Party, accusing it of political and economic discrimination against the Chinese.

Lee Kuan Yew is, of course, at least partly correct because it is a fact that in the federation indigenous Malays do enjoy privileged positions and do have certain special rights, such as preference in government employment and the issue of business licences.

BETWEEN OURSELVES

By Elizabeth Forbes

Did you know that along the Canadian-United States border, between Manitoba and North Dakota there lies a huge international garden dedicated to Peace?

Quite recently, I heard Mrs. Harold (Muriel) Johnston, tell about it. By coincidence, a few days later, I met a young couple who had visited the garden, last month.

All three were so enthusiastic I've decided to repeat their story here.

After all, it's the season for travel. Some of you will, no doubt, soon be heading eastward along Canadian or American highways. You might like to take a side trip and explore this garden that covers over 2,300 acres.

Thirty-three years ago, on July 14, 1932, a stone cairn was unveiled there, with a bronze plaque that framed these words: "To God in His Glory we two nations dedicate this garden and pledge ourselves that as long as men shall live, we will not take up arms against one another."

That dedication ceremony, witnessed by 50,000 people from all parts of the continent was the beginning of the International Peace Garden.

It also brought to fruition a seed nurtured in the mind of Dr. Henry J. Moore, graduate of Kew Botanical Gardens in London, England, and later, professor at Cornell University and then Ontario Agricultural College.

He was on his way north from a meeting of gardeners at Greenwich, Connecticut, in 1928. As he travelled he thought of the hospitality he had enjoyed and the friendly people he had met, on both sides of the border.

"Why not," he said to himself, "have a garden on the international boundary where the people of the two countries could share the glories found in such a place and the pleasures inherent in warm friendship."

His idea was presented to the annual meeting of the Association of Gardens of the United States, held in Toronto in 1929. It was approved.

Site chosen was 80 miles south of Brandon, almost midway between the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans and only 25 miles from the great city of Winnipeg.

North Dakota gave 888 acres of undulating wheatlands for the site and Manitoba 1,451 acres of adjacent land in the Turtle Mountain Forest Reserve.

Today, among the rolling birch-topped hills, the aspen and poplar bluffs and through the willow-fringed valleys, formal gardens, terraces and landscaped grounds have been developed.

Ornamental spillways drain a series of lakes from one level to another and around the shores, there are picnic grounds.

In the formal area, a series of panels beginning at the entrance will ultimately extend about a mile. The first three—Peace Panel, Terrace Panel and Sunken Garden—are completed, with Cascade, Turf and Emblem Panels, a Reflecting Pool and a Peace Tower, still in the making.

The site has become the thing of beauty which Dr. Moore envisioned; a meeting place for the peoples of Canada and the United States, as well as for visitors from other lands.

COUNCIL TOLD:

'City Also Polluting Gorge
So How Can We Protest?'

Victoria city will have to clean its own skirts to improve polluted waters in the Gorge before it can seriously object to increased effluent from Saanich, Mayor R. B. Wilson told council Thursday.

In a surprise statement made during discussion on a recommendation to oppose a Saanich plan to double treated effluent outfall into Colquitz Creek, the mayor veered sharply away from the position he was believed to hold.

"Can we step outside our boundaries into another municipality?" the mayor asked. "How far outside its boundaries can the city be involved? I wonder whether we are on very sound ground. If our skirts were clean, we would be on sound ground."

He did not elaborate except to say that monies had been voted to make some improvements.

THREE SOURCES

The engineering department said later there are two, perhaps three sources of pollution originating in the city: A communal septic tank at the foot of Catherine Street accounting for a small amount of partly broken down effluent; a storm drain from under Government near Evans Coleman plant which during peak runoff contains some sewage; a communal septic tank in James Bay, which is not likely to affect the Gorge because of distance.

However, the department cited the fact that deep-sea and coastal shipping entering the Inner Harbor discharges effluent without restriction.

Mayor Wilson pointed out that when the matter was discussed before, council had reaffirmed its previous position opposing any pollution but resting its case with the control board.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgell said this evidently had no influence on the board because the Saanich application was granted.

FULL OF WEEDS

"The Gorge is full of weeds now. There are no ducks—birds won't land on it. It is already being polluted, even if the effluent is treated. This is a type of pollution making weeds and algae grow."

The same waste is so much refuse and weedy material on the surface that water circulation is retarded.

"Germs and epidemics can be caused," he said.

Ald. A. W. Toome said the resolution was not the one he voted on in committee.

"It does commit us to do something ourselves pretty quickly," he said, agreeing with the mayor.

The mayor said council should distinguish between personal feelings and the position of the city.

HAVE NO RIGHT

"I don't think we have any right to go into any other municipality and tell them what they should do. They would resent it as much as we would if they came into Victoria... It would give them the right to pass a resolution tomorrow asking the city to clean up its part of the Gorge," Mayor Wilson said.

Ald. Austin Curtis said he had never heard criticism of the raw sewage going into the Gorge from View Royal septic tanks, yet people are worried about treated effluent.

Automatic Landing
By Jet

LONDON (UPI) — Eighty-eight unsuspecting passengers landed on schedule at London Airport from Paris Thursday and were told as they stepped from their jetliner: "You are the first airline passengers to be landed by automatic pilot."

None knew the group had been selected as "guinea pigs" for what British European Airways called the first regular passenger flight to land without the pilot touching the controls. The three-engine Trident jet coasted in to a perfect landing. Male passengers were presented with blind-lending club ties inscribed with a Trident approaching a fog signal. Women aboard were given a choice of gifts.

IN QUEBEC

Machines
Silenced

QUEBEC CITY (UPI) — Quebec's rainmaking machines have been silenced.

Bowing to a flood of protest from residents of the drenched Lake St. John region northwest of here, Resources Minister Rene Levesque promised there would be no more rainmaking until the end of the summer.

FOR SKEPTIC...

And for the skeptic, Levesque said that all precipitation-producing machines will be collected in a central warehouse so Lake St. Johners can see with their own eyes that "there is no more rainmaking." "Operation Umbrella"—a highly-organized protest against the machines—was thus brought to a successful close. At its height, the wrath of 60,000 St. John mothers, fed up with muddy floors, descended on Levesque in a petition.

For the past few years, the province has hired the Weather Engineering Company to do its rainmaking.

PREVENT FIRES

In Lake St. John, machines that project a cloud of silver iodide into the atmosphere were used. The gas increases the density of the clouds, causing precipitation. The object was to prevent forest fires.

Levesque blamed the Weather Engineering Company for a good part of the misunderstanding in the "affair."

IGNORED PUBLIC

In a letter to Bernard A. Power, president of the company, Levesque charged, "... You have practically ignored the reactions of the public which, as you know, is at the edge of collective exasperation."

He charged the company was exploiting a season of heavy rains to claim the cloud-salt machines were very effective. "Alas, you are reaping what you sowed—not in the clouds but with public opinion."

Manslaughter Charge

BURNABY (CP)—A 17-year-old youth was charged with manslaughter when he appeared in court her Wednesday. The youth was charged in the death of Wayne Eldon Derry, 17, of Burnaby, who died May 30, about 12 hours after he was involved in a fist-fight at Burnaby Park.

Heart Operation For Child Hailed

LONDON (CP) — An open-heart operation developed in Canada and adopted here in the last five months is hailed today in Britain's medical and popular press as dramatic news in medicine's long fight to help babies born with heart defects.

The operation, correction of a congenital defect known as transposition of the great vessels—producing "blue babies"—was developed by cardiac surgeon William T. Mustard at the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto.

Dr. Mustard first reported his technique in the medical press last year. It involves redirecting the flow of blood inside the heart by sewing in an artificial baffle. This counteracts the defect, in which the aorta and pulmonary arteries are reversed, and turns the blue baby a normal "pink."

A team of doctors at London's Great Ormond Street Hospital for Sick Children reports "dramatic" success with the Mustard technique in seven out of nine cases attempted since March. Two died of complications but in the others "the change is dramatic."

PROVED 'RELIABLE'

The Lancet, a British medical journal, says in an editorial accompanying the report that the new surgery is "exciting news" because Mustard's technique has been proved "a reliable method" of dealing with the defect.

The development was featured on a BBC television program Thursday night and made headlines in most national newspapers today. Only one paper notes that the surgical technique originated outside Britain.

The tabloid Daily Sketch describes the operation in an editorial as "a splendid breakthrough," showing that "British scientists can still lead the world."

Says the Daily Express: "Now, thanks to pioneering work by surgeons at Great Ormond Street Hospital, London, they (blue babies) may expect to have lives of normal length and usefulness."

Other Leaders Echo Call For Gunderson Resignation

Other opposition leaders in B.C. have joined Robert Strachan's (NDP) demand for the removal from government offices of Einar Gunderson.

Mr. Gunderson has admitted that he is in charge of the Social Credit party's political campaign war chest.

He holds appointments with the P.C.E., B.C. Hydro, B.C. Ferry, UBC and the proposed Bank of British Columbia.

Liberal leader Ray Perrault said it was intolerable that the Social Credit's "No. 1 bagman" should also occupy these positions of great influence.

"Mr. Gunderson should resign and dedicate himself full-time, if he wishes, to raising money for Social Credit. I'm not disputing the right to collect funds for a political party. I just don't think the man who does it should wear two hats."

In Kamloops, E. David Fulton, leader of the Conservatives, said recent revelations clearly called for the resignation of Mr. Gunderson.

"Mr. Gunderson's resignation from the various political offices he holds or as director of the Social Credit political fund—or both—is clearly called for," he said.

Thursday Mr. Strachan demanded the resignation of Mr. Gunderson and appealed to Premier Bennett to "clean up Social Credit."

He said that the record supports NDP charges of the past that Social Credit operates a "shake-down business" to obtain political funds.

Appeal Court Verdict Vital to Juveniles?

VANCOUVER (CP)—The B.C. court of appeal reserved judgment on whether a Prince George magistrate had the power to try a juvenile traffic offender in an adult court.

The issue came before the high court when the provincial attorney-general's department appealed an earlier supreme court ruling which had reversed the magistrate's decision.

The appeal court was told Magistrate Stewart tried a Prince George juvenile, David Smith, 17, on a charge of exceeding a 30-mile-per-hour limit, convicted him and levied a $400 fine. The case was heard under the Provincial Summary Convictions Act in adult court, where the fines can be substantially higher than in juvenile court.

Later the supreme court quashed the conviction on the grounds that the Federal Juvenile Delinquents Act did not allow the magistrate to deal with this case in adult court.

Foresters Expect 500 Delegates To B.C. Meet

Five hundred delegates will represent half a million members of the Independent Order of Foresters at the 29th convention of the Order beginning Monday at the Vancouver Hotel.

Delegates from Victoria will be Norman Sear, district manager of the Order's office, and Robin Justice, High Chief Ranger for B.C.

The convention will receive representatives from all parts of Canada, the United States and Britain.

The Order's conventions—called Supreme Court Sessions—are held every four years. This is the Order's second meeting in Vancouver; the first was in 1937 when 80 delegates represented 140,000 members.

Air Licence Lifted

OTTAWA (CP)—The Air Transport Board has suspended the Canadian licence of a Bellingham, Wash., air charter firm for "false and misleading" advertising. It was announced Thursday. Skyhaven Inc., has had authority since Sept. 1, 1964 to operate non-scheduled charter flights from Bellingham to points in British Columbia.

Flower Arranging Show Feature; Also New Roses

Special attractions at the next week's Victoria Horticultural Society summer show will be a talk on new roses and a demonstration of simple home-type floral arrangements.

The show will open next Friday at 2 p.m. On Saturday it will be open between 10 a.m. and 9 p.m.

J. H. Eddle of Vancouver, an authority on roses, will speak on new varieties and their culture on Friday, starting at 3 p.m.

On Saturday between 3 and 4 p.m., Rosemarie Wormald of the Posa Flowerworld, will give a demonstration on flower arrangement. She will also show how various types of flower holders and containers can be used.

U.K. TO HOLD INQUIRY INTO ISLAND DEATHS

LONDON (Reuters)—Britain is to conduct an inquiry into a number of deaths among servicemen who served on Christmas Island in the Pacific during nuclear tests in 1958, an army spokesman said Wednesday night.

The inquiry was ordered after Patricia Duggan, the widow of one of the servicemen who died of leukemia a month ago, told Prime Minister Wilson: "Two doctors have said they believe radiation caused my husband's death. He told me three other men died of leukemia on the island while he was there."

Toronto Exchange Making Survey Of Stock Buying

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Stock Exchange Thursday began a four-week survey that should give the exchange and its members a better idea of who buys stocks and why.

All TSE members are participating in the survey in which each transaction on the exchange on set days will be analyzed in detail with the aid of IBM punched cards.

The member must complete the card, which asks questions about age and sex of buyer or seller, whether the client is an individual or an institution and where the order originates. The survey will cover five separate trading days.

An exchange spokesman said the survey would give members a better idea of where their advertising efforts should be directed.

Treasury Bill Rate Steady

OTTAWA (CP) — The 31-day Canadian government treasury bill yield rate remained steady this week at its 1965 high point, 3.96 per cent, unchanged from last week, the Bank of Canada announced Thursday.

The rate had climbed, steadily but for one week's hesitation last May 13, from its 1965 low point of 3.61 per cent on April 8.

BUSINESS VIEWS

Renovation Credit to City

By JIM HUME
Times Business Editor

Odd and ends from the Friday grab-bag.
Canada Trust invited the public to take a look at its newly renovated offices today.

Located at the corner of Broad and View the new-looking building is a credit to the company and the city.

The entire View Street frontage, directly opposite Eaton's is comprised of glass to give a bright and airy look.

Richly carpeted and tastefully decorated the Trust building adequately demonstrates the modern outlook of downtown.

With commercial demand light and scattered, speculators were inclined to shorten commitments from the long side. A few were understood to have reverted to short selling, particularly in wheat and new crop corn.

Stocks were generally higher at Montreal and industrials were recovering at Toronto today.

A good technical rebound was also seen at New York.

AT MONTREAL, industrials Asbestos added 1/2.

Utilities advanced with CPR up 1 1/2 points and Bell Telephone 1 1/2. Nova Scotia Light stepped 1/2. Brinco was off 1/2.

Papers were higher with Macmillan Bloedel adding 1 1/2 points and Consolidated 1 1/2. Dominion Tar fell 1/4 point. Banks were steady. In senior oils Imperial eased 1/4.

AT TORONTO, in industrials CPR jumped 2 1/2 to 61 1/2. Algoma Steel, B.C. Telephone, Macmillan Bloedel, and Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce gained 1 1/2 each to 7 1/2, 66 3/4, 60 1/2 and 60 1/2 respectively.

Bank of Montreal was ahead 1/2. Campbell Red Lake lost 3/4 to 18 1/2 in gold. Central Del Rio rose 1/2 to 10 1/2 in senior western oils.

AT NEW YORK, gains of fractions to 1 or 2 points were made by leading issues.

In the higher-priced bracket, IBM gained 4. The company plans a joint venture in an office copying machine with American Photocopy which advanced more than a point for a big percentage gain in heavy dealings which made it look like the most-active stock.

Auto stocks improved early gains. Ford and General Motors were up about a point each and Chrysler around half that.

Odd and ends from the Friday grab-bag.
Canada Trust invited the public to take a look at its newly renovated offices today.

Located at the corner of Broad and View the new-looking building is a credit to the company and the city.

The entire View Street frontage, directly opposite Eaton's is comprised of glass to give a bright and airy look.

Richly carpeted and tastefully decorated the Trust building adequately demonstrates the modern outlook of downtown.

With commercial demand light and scattered, speculators were inclined to shorten commitments from the long side. A few were understood to have reverted to short selling, particularly in wheat and new crop corn.

Stocks were generally higher at Montreal and industrials were recovering at Toronto today.

A good technical rebound was also seen at New York.

AT MONTREAL, industrials Asbestos added 1/2.

Utilities advanced with CPR up 1 1/2 points and Bell Telephone 1 1/2. Nova Scotia Light stepped 1/2. Brinco was off 1/2.

Papers were higher with Macmillan Bloedel adding 1 1/2 points and Consolidated 1 1/2. Dominion Tar fell 1/4 point. Banks were steady. In senior oils Imperial eased 1/4.

AT TORONTO, in industrials CPR jumped 2 1/2 to 61 1/2. Algoma Steel, B.C. Telephone, Macmillan Bloedel, and Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce gained 1 1/2 each to 7 1/2, 66 3/4, 60 1/2 and 60 1/2 respectively.

Bank of Montreal was ahead 1/2. Campbell Red Lake lost 3/4 to 18 1/2 in gold. Central Del Rio rose 1/2 to 10 1/2 in senior western oils.

AT NEW YORK, gains of fractions to 1 or 2 points were made by leading issues.

In the higher-priced bracket, IBM gained 4. The company plans a joint venture in an office copying machine with American Photocopy which advanced more than a point for a big percentage gain in heavy dealings which made it look like the most-active stock.

Auto stocks improved early gains. Ford and General Motors were up about a point each and Chrysler around half that.

AT LONDON, the stock market today maintained the better tone which developed Thursday but the volume of business was small.

U.S. dollar stocks were generally marked down in reflection of Thursday's fresh decline on Wall Street but Canadian issues often advanced in sympathy.

GRAIN SALE ON TARGET

WINNIPEG (CP)—Canada's wheat sales this year are well on the way to the 400,000,000-bushel mark, Trade Minister Sharp said today.

This would meet the first-year target of the government's three-year goal of selling 1,200,000,000 bushels, he said.

MARKETS DROP—The industrial index on the Toronto Stock Exchange Thursday reversed a downward trend that brought the index to its lowest level this year. The Montreal industrial index also started an upward swing. Both stock exchanges said there was no reason for concern. (CP Wirephoto.)

Weather Vessel Launching Soon

VANCOUVER (CP)—The new $11,000,000 weather and oceanographic ship Vancouver, now building at Burrard Dry Dock for the Department of Transport, will be launched June 29.

She should be ready for sea duty in June, 1966, shipyard officials said Thursday.

She and a sister-ship, to be named Quadra, will replace the present weather ships St. Catharines and Stonetown, which are former naval frigates. They man weather station "Papa" 900 miles out in the Pacific west of Vancouver Island.

Sponsor for the new ship will be Mrs. Arthur Laing, wife of the minister of northern affairs and natural resources.

The Vancouver will have a full load displacement of 5,400 tons and will be the largest ship in the Canadian Coast Guard fleet. She is 404 feet long, will have a range of 8,400 miles at 14 knots, and will have a total complement of 100 men. Her top speed will be 18 knots.

An important innovation will be a new type of balloon tracking radar capable of automatic tracking of meteorological balloons up to a range of 100,000 feet. The new radar will also be able to detect storms as far away as 200 miles and locate aircraft within a radius of 70 miles. The ship will carry a helicopter.

Since the weather ship will be on station for six weeks at a time, amenities include air conditioning throughout, a movie theatre, a hobbies workshop, a photographic darkroom and a gym.

Potash Export Sets Record At Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP)—A port of Vancouver record was set Thursday with the loading of the millionth ton of potash aboard the Greek freighter Centaurus, bound for New Zealand.

Shipments of potash from the mine of International Minerals and Chemical Corp., at Esterhazy, Sask., began in late 1962. Since then 150 ships have loaded potash at Vancouver, making it one of the port's leading export cargoes.

The potash has been sent to Asia, the South Pacific, Europe, the United States and Central and South America, representing one-third of the output of the mine.

Railway officials said it has taken 12,500 railroad cars—which if placed end-to-end would stretch for 18 miles—to bring the potash from the Saskatchewan mine to the coast.

THREE YEARS

The Esterhazy mine, which went into production in September 1962, has reserves estimated sufficient to last 100 years. An expansion program, to be completed this year, will raise annual production to 2,000,000 tons.

The mine already produces more than 12 per cent of the free world's supply of potash.

Loading of the second million tons to be shipped from Vancouver will begin Monday when the Danish freighter Kersten Skou warps in to Vancouver wharves to take on a cargo for Brazil.

Potash is a basic chemical fertilizer material.

British Plan Hard Sell Here

Canadian businessmen can expect the hard sell from British businessmen from now on, a Victoria service club was told Thursday.

Speaking to Rotarians, Sir Ralph Perring, vice-chairman of the United Kingdom's Committee for Exports to Canada and former Lord Mayor of London, said the hard sell move follows the relaxation of trade restrictions in Canada's April budget.

"United Kingdom firms feel they can compete now and they intend to do so against any sort of competition," he said.

Sir Ralph said he did not want to launch into "a long rumble" in the imbalance of trade between the two countries, nevertheless "it is a fact of life," he said.

In 1964 Canada sold goods worth $1,300,000,000 to Britain and bought only $500,000,000 worth and this has been the prevailing pattern since the mid-50s.

"This $700,000,000 deficit to tailed nearly half of Britain's trade imbalance with the whole world," Sir Ralph said.

However, Britain hopes to change all this, the speaker said.

British businessmen propose to invade the Canadian markets, both industrial and consumer, and they don't contemplate failure.

One reason it has been impossible to use the hard sell before this is that Britain was facing discriminating duties and anti-dumping legislation from Canada, Sir Ralph said.

"Things are changed now and we mean to make a great step forward," he said.

As part of this hard sell policy, display areas will be set up in the principal cities of Canada to give consumers an idea of what Britain has to offer.

LITERATURE
Also Canadian firms will be supplied with sample ranges and up-to-date literature with information on Canadian markets will be supplied to British firms.

"Design, presentation and Canadian buying habits will all be studied as part of the campaign and it is possible with Canada's help a great number of trade gaps will now be filled," Sir Ralph said.

The basic hope of these efforts is "to bring many smaller British firms into the trade picture to supply Canada with quality and luxury goods which could not be obtained elsewhere," he concluded.

Spending Accelerates In Province

KAMLOOPS (CP)—British Columbia's capital spending could reach $2.4 billion a year within 10 years, D. E. Fenton, vice-president of Laurentide Financial Corporation, said Thursday.

"Our access to resources, plus planned availability of electrical energy on a big scale, plus insatiable world demand for raw and semi-finished materials, all point to massive injections of capital spending in B.C. that could reach $2.4 billion annually by 1975."

Capital expenditures in the province last year were $1.7 billion.

Mr. Fenton, in a discussion at the Institute of Chartered Accountants of B.C. Convention here, said development of secondary industry is a key problem area.

"Our population is still too small to provide more than a moderate domestic market. One of the most difficult marketing problems to solve is the high freight rates."

Development Plan Proposed For Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP)—City council will study a contract under which Toronto developers would undertake a multi-million-dollar downtown retail store-office development.

The contract was presented to a council committee by representatives of CEMP Investments Ltd. and Cadillac Development Corp. Ltd.

The contract covers development of one city block—bounded by Granville, Georgia, Howe and Dunsmuir—in the heart of the downtown area which the city would sell for $30,000,000.

It also provides for possible expansion of the scheme to two other blocks, including a large piece of land owned by the T. Eaton Co. Ltd.

Inland Proposes Rate Reduction

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)—Inland Natural Gas Co. Ltd. is proposing a rate reduction, B. R. Stokes, comptroller of the company, said in an interview.

Inland has made representations to the Public Utilities Commission, which sets rate schedules and makes any amendments.

"I expect our rate reductions will apply at least to the majority of our consumers—the residential gas-users," said Mr. Stokes.

It was impossible to say how much they would be or who would enjoy them. It was impossible to say if the entire Inland system or only a portion of it would be affected.

90-Cent Dividend Announced

TRAIL (CP)—The Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company Thursday declared a dividend of 90 cents per share for the six months ending June 30.

It is payable July 15 to shareholders on record June 18. The amount compares with a dividend of 80 cents per share for the six months ending Dec. 31, 1964.

Federated Investments Ltd. - Appointments

FRED G. EULER

BUD MORTON

JOHN F. KORNER

PAUL L. PIERRON

WILF J. KIRZINGER

C. N. Hauer, vice-president in charge of sales, announces the following appointments within Federated's B.C. sales staff:

Fred G. Euler, former B.C. Mainland sales manager, has been named branch manager for the B.C. Mainland.

Bud Morton becomes deputy branch manager for the B.C. Mainland. He was formerly a sales manager in Vancouver.

John F. Korner, former sales representative, was recently named a sales manager for the B.C. Mainland.

Paul L. Pierron, former sales representative for the B.C. Mainland, becomes sales manager for the Kelowna, Penticton, Kamloops area.

Wilf J. Kirzinger becomes Vancouver Island branch manager in Victoria. Formerly Edmonton sales manager, he has 10 years' investment experience.

These men will be responsible for providing British Columbia residents with a more effective service through the distribution of shares of Federated Growth Fund Ltd., throughout the Province.

Fire Department, Clerk Appointments Confirmed

Senior staff appointments for city hall and fire department were approved Thursday by Victoria city council.

Aldermen applauded the appointment of assistant city clerk Morra Weller to city clerk effective Sept. 1.

Mayor R. B. Wilson said: "I think the city is fortunate indeed to have Mr. Weller to step up into this position of city clerk."

Mr. Weller began his career with the city in 1938, served in the army during the Second World War and returned to city hall. He was made deputy clerk in November, 1952.

Clerk Frank Hunter retires Aug. 31 after almost 48 years of service.

He joined city hall staff in December, 1917, and was made clerk about 10 years later.

Fireman Eric Simmons, president of the firefighters' union local here, will be the department's new deputy chief Oct. 31 with retirement of Chief John Abbott.

Deputy chief John Allen then moves into the chief's office, but retires within two years.

It is anticipated Mr. Simmons will be groomed for the job of chief in that time.

Lieut. Michael Belton will become the department's first training officer, having the rank of battalion chief, as of July 1 and next week will attend a special training school to prepare him for his new role.

City manager Dennis Young said the men were singled out from 23 applicants after consideration by a consulting psychologist and fire wardens committee.

Wardens chairman Ald. Austin Curtis said the matter was discussed at "great length and I have pleasure in moving them."

Ald. M. H. Mooney objected to the suggestion in Mr. Young's report that the chief of two years from now was in effect being appointed today.

Mr. Young pointed out that a serious situation exists in that all senior officers of the department retire within a 3½-year period and that groundwork for new leadership should be laid now. But he said it was not intended to imply that council should appoint a new chief now.

"The thought is that he will have to prove himself for the appointment," Ald. Curtis said.

July 1 Move Set By 'Y' Into New Site

Although the new YM-YWCA will not be officially opened until mid-September, employees and members are preparing to move July 1.

An official said today they have to be out of the old building at View and Blanshard by the end of the month.

"We're moving in bits and pieces to the new location at 880 Courtney Street and we should be 'in' by July 1," Official opening of the new $1,300,000 quarters, however, will not be for another two and a half months.

WARNING

Centennial 'Con Men On Prowl'

Don't buy centennial souvenirs from stray salesmen — you might get soaked.

The Canadian Confederation Centennial Committee of B.C. has sent out a warning to regional committees, local merchants and other citizens:

Beware of the con man pretending to represent the provincial organization.

To sell advertisements is one aim of bogus sales representatives.

MUST PROVE IT

Medallions, magazines and other mementos with a centennial theme are taboo unless the salesman can prove he has the centennial committee's authorization.

Persons peddling pins and pen-holders with centennial emblems are also to be shunned, says the committee.

Local committees will be advised when a company or individual receives permission to use the centennial committee's name for business purposes.

And all representatives will be given a letter of identification to prove they have the committee's authorization.

'Defection Bait'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. James O. Eastland (D-Miss.), Wednesday introduced legislation designed to encourage citizens of Communist countries to defect. It would offer permanent residence in the United States and the payment of an annuity to ensure a decent standard of living while the defector adjusts to American life.

DIEF TO FIGHT GOV'T NEWSPAPER PROPOSALS

'Door Open to Press Control'

TIMES OTTAWA BUREAU

OTTAWA—Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker warned Thursday that the budgetary proposals involving newspapers "could well be the first step, which under an unscrupulous government could develop into thought control."

Mr. Diefenbaker said he was preparing to fight hard in the House of Commons against the passage of such a measure which revealed a "dangerous trend in the thinking of the government."

He condemned it as the type of "bureaucratic philosophy that lends itself to infringement of the freedom of the press."

This is one of the budget resolutions which Prime Minister Pearson included in his list of items that he said he would like to see the house deal with before the summer recess.

Mr. Diefenbaker made it clear there would be a major debate on the issue in the house. The opposition leader pointed out that would include the disallowance of advertising as a tax deduction in normal business operations, in cases where a newspaper is non-Canadian in ownership and control.

He said this is the type of formula for income tax reform proposed by Tom Kent, who is now senior adviser to the prime minister.

'OPENS THE DOOR'

"This measure opens the door to the control of the press and as such must be opposed to the limit," said Mr. Diefenbaker. "I'm referring specifically to the newspaper aspect of the proposal, not to magazines."

"In spite of television and radio, newspapers remain a very important medium of public information that we dare not have dried up because enlightened public opinion is the very basis of democracy," he said.

Mr. Diefenbaker said it seemed to him that generally across Canada newspapers had not taken the strong objection to the proposed budget measure that they should have taken.

In an interview on the government's program before the summer recess, and particularly on the budget measure as it applies to newspapers Mr. Diefenbaker said he was surprised that the press had not reacted more strongly across Canada.

'SHOULD BE AWARE'

"They should be aware of what is proposed in this budget. If this measure is enacted it will lead to greater and greater intrusion on the freedom of the press which for the first time under my administration, by the Bill of Rights, was guaranteed under the law in this country."

The Opposition Leader observed that the philosophy behind the proposed interference with the press seemed to go back to the views expressed by Tom Kent in July, 1960, at the Liberal Kingston conference.

Mr. Diefenbaker recalled that Mr. Kent's contention at that time was that advertising is an expenditure that aims at higher consumption rather than increased efficiency and leads to waste.

Mr. Diefenbaker added, "Mr. Kent went on to claim, 'If one had to express the greatest inefficiency of our economic system in a sentence it could well be that too much of our brainpower is devoted to selling soap and too little to creative effort in science . . . and in the public service. If I were Mr. Khrushchev it would be this above all that would give me confidence that my system was going to win.'"

The opposition leader said that Mr. Kent at that time also argued that government "should be taking a more rigid view of the expenses that cannot be permitted for tax purposes."

Mr. Diefenbaker said Mr. Kent had declared that the business expenditures which were of great fiscal interest were those on advertising and merchandising generally.

He noted that Mr. Kent had also said, "I am not of course saying that all advertising is undesirable; I am saying we have a tiger by the tail."

PUBLIC POLICY

Mr. Kent had concluded, said Mr. Diefenbaker, that "the only solution therefore lies through public policy."

The opposition leader said Mr. Kent had put forward the argument, "there is no reason why advertising should not be taxed like liquor and gasoline or a thousand other useful things."

Mr. Kent had also declared, "The better first approach is to allow advertising and perhaps other merchandising expenditures for tax purposes."

Mr. Diefenbaker said these excerpts from Mr. Kent's paper delivered at Kingston were very significant.

He added, "I have given you enough to indicate that while it is the voice of the Pearson government that is speaking it is the thought of Mr. Kent that is behind it."

LAURENTIDE TALKED OUT

OTTAWA (CP)—A private bill to incorporate the Laurentide Bank of Canada was talked out without a vote again in the Commons private bills hour Thursday.

Creditist leader Real Caouette, three of his followers and

A. B. Patterson (S.C.—Fraser Valley) all argued that the bill should be held up as long as the Senate holds up a rival incorporation bill for the Bank of British Columbia.

Both bills have been before Parliament for more than a year, along with a third, to incorporate the Bank of Western Canada.

MLA: HYDRO UNIMPRESSED

Gas Rate Cut 'Unlikely'

Victoria M.L.A. J. Donald Smith says he will keep fighting for lower butane gas rates on Vancouver Island although he has not much hope of winning.

Mr. Smith, who is backing the demands of the Victoria-Vancouver Island branch of the Canadian Restaurant Association for lower rates, said Thursday B.C. Hydro's reaction to the proposals is not encouraging.

Hydro has pointed out that the higher rates on the Island are brought about by shipping costs. Vancouver is served by pipeline direct from the gas fields.

The CRA recently presented a brief to Hydro outlining the double rate paid in Victoria as compared with Vancouver.

But Hydro officials remain unimpressed. "We'll have to work a little harder," Mr. Smith said. "We have an excellent case here and will keep fighting."

Crothers Times Kick Perfectly To Beat Snell

TORONTO (CP)—An Olympic runner-up gained his revenge and an underdog challenger set up the second-fastest three-mile race in history at the Toronto International track meet Thursday night.

The loudest cheers greeted the victory of Bill Crothers of Markham, Ont., over Peter Snell, the world's greatest middle-distance runner, in the half mile after four previous defeats at the hands of the New Zealander, including a second-place finish in the Olympic Games at Tokyo last October.

But Crothers, who runs for the hometown East York Track Club, had to share the plaudits of 15,633 spectators with Ron Clarke of Australia who covered the three miles in 13:03.4, second only to the world mark of 13:00.4 he set a week ago at Los Angeles.

Jerome Takes 100, Second In 220

In addition to the world records, four Canadian open marks were broken and a fifth tied, a Canadian native record was broken and another equalled and eight winners established new marks for Varsity Stadium. Apart from Crothers' upset of Snell, the first time the New Zealander has lost over the distance since George Kerr of Jamaica nipped him in 1961, with results ran largely true to form.

Harry Jerome of Vancouver, the Olympic bronze medalist at 100 metres, edged Mel Pender of the U.S. Army, who finished three places behind him at Tokyo, in the 100-yard dash with both being timed in 9.3. In the 220, Jerome was second behind Paul Drayton of Cleveland as the winner equalled the Canadian open mark of 20.9. Jerome, who finished fourth in the 200 metres at Tokyo while Drayton was second, was clocked in 21.1.

Slow Second Lap Affected Result

In that race, Snell suddenly zoomed past Crothers with about 200 yards to go and opened up a safe lead before the Canadian was able to match his burst.

This time Crothers never let Snell out of his sight. When the 26-year-old New Zealander made his bid on the far turn, the bespectacled druggist moved with him. They were level with 35 yards to go and Crothers pulled away to win by two yards. His time was 1:48.4, well under the stadium record, to Snell's 1:48.6.

Both runners agreed the slow 55-second first lap may have influenced the result but Snell was philosophical about it.

Clarke Runs Sizzling Three Miles

His fellow-Australian, Albie Thomas, and New Zealander Bill Baillie were next in line behind the first three. Dave Ellis of Toronto was sixth, breaking the Canadian-native record with his clocking of 13:29.0.

Clarke blamed the stadium's sharp corners and his rigorous North American tour for his failure to lower the world record.

Pressed by Thomas for the first mile and with Larrieu at his elbow for another five laps, the muscular Aussie pulled away steadily to finish 50 yards in front.

Mary Rand, the British world-record holder in the women's broad jump, competed in two events, winning the 100-

FLYING PHARMACIST

Big moment in track life of Bill Crothers came Thursday night, when, with arms flying wide, he hit tape ahead of New Zealand's Peter Snell in 880-yard race during Toronto International track meet. It was first time Marham, Ont., pharmacist had beaten Snell in five meetings.

'Titan' Rocks Another Blast Over 'The Cape'

Times News Services

In Connie Mack Stadium they've renamed home plate "The Cape" and dubbed Richie Allen "Titan II."

Which is testimony to the number of baseballs the lithe Philadelphia third baseman has placed in orbit recently with tape-measuring blasts, rivaling those of Mickey Mantle and Frank Howard.

Allen already claims a couple of 500-foot rockets this season and he approached that distance again Thursday night with a home run that soared high over the leftfield roof, landing an estimated 485 feet from "The Cape."

HERBERT WINS 100TH

The launching came with a man on base and was followed by another homer, by Dick Stuart, which enabled the Phils and Ray Herbert to sink Los Angeles Dodgers 4-0.

Milwaukee drubbed Chicago 6-4, Cincinnati outslugged St. Louis 7-7, San Francisco blanked New York 3-0 and Pittsburgh edged Houston 4-2 in other National League action.

Allen powered one of the longest homers in the history of Connie Mack Stadium May 29 when he drove a pitch by the Cubs' Larry Jackson over a billboard atop the left-centerfield stands. The ball hit a tree on Woodstock Street, an estimated 500 feet away. Only one other player—Joe Adcock—has cleared that billboard.

Sam McDowell, 22, a Cleveland left-hander, continued his outstanding pitching Thursday night by striking out nine in a 4-1 Indians victory over first-place Minnesota Twins and became the first American League pitcher to reach the 100-strikeout level this season.

BONUS JUSTIFIED

McDowell now has won three straight, lifting his record to 6-3 and justifying the $100.00 bonus the Indians paid him five years ago.

Relying only on a fast ball and curve, he put together an 11-6 record over the final half of last season. And now he suddenly has blossomed into the league's strikeout artist, challenging Sandy Koufax for the major league lead. McDowell has struck out 108 in 80 1/3 innings to 119 in 101 1/3 innings for the Los Angeles Dodgers' southpaw.

Two Share Lead In Softball Loop

Saanich and Wilsons each posted victories Thursday to share first place in the Commercial Softball League.

Saanich downed Dowells 8-5 while Wilsons tripped Ocean Cement 7-6. In other games JBAA defeated B.C. Telephone 8-5 and Sprites blasted Luckies 28-15.

VOTE OF CONFIDENCE . . .

Banff Backed as Games Site

MAMAIA, Romania (Reuters)—The International Skiing Federation Congress has decided to recommend Banff, Alta., as their first choice for the site of the 1972 winter Olympic games skiing events.

The recommendation will be forwarded to the International Olympic Committee.

Lahti, Finland, was the second choice of the congress and Sapporo, Japan, third.

In Calgary, a spokesman for Olympic '72 termed the vote "a big vote of confidence."

The spokesman said president Ed Davis, manager Hans Maciej and ski director Pat Duffy of the association attended the session.

"As far as I know," he said, "this is the first time the congress has attempted to evaluate applicants."

He cautioned the final vote still must be made by the IOC in 1966 when ultimate decision on location of the 1972 games will be made.

Oak Bay Tennis Club Cards 55th Tourney

They've been battling balls around for a long time at the Oak Bay Tennis Club courts. Founded originally in 1910 as the B.C. Electric Tennis Club at what is now Windsor Park, the club will launch its 55th annual tournament this weekend.

Moved to its present site on Cavendish Avenue in 1915, the club was renamed the Oak Bay Tennis Club in 1965. With a senior membership of almost 100 players and a large group of juniors, the organization appears likely to survive another 35 summers.

Teams Battle To Deadlock

Greaves and Rawlings played indecisive baseball at Royal Athletic Park Thursday.

The fruits of their labors resulted in an eight-inning, 2-2 tie in Senior Amateur Baseball League play.

George Brice pitched all the way for Rawlings.

Greaves called on three pitchers, the last of whom was George Hemming. He came on in the seventh with two on and none out and retired the side.

Rocks Staggered By Double Blow

Lose to Leaders; Learn Kilduff To Join Adanacs

By ERNIE FEDORUK
NEW WESTMINSTER—Victoria Shamrocks took it on the chin twice Thursday night.

The faltering Inter-City Lacrosse League team lost a game to front-running New Westminster and a player to Coquitlam Adanacs.

The game went to Westminster 12-9.

The player plucked from Victoria's back yard was Rod Kilduff, a former Shamrock who earlier this week had been invited to see if he could instill a spark the Rocks' odd-man play.

Now living and working in Comox, Kilduff has signed to play with Adanacs—the team Shamrocks must overhaul in order to claim the third and last playoff berth.

COMPLETE SURPRISE

The lithe slick-shooting forward had restricted his lacrosse to senior "B" company until the Shamrocks asked him to play against New Westminster at Memorial Arena on Wednesday night. Kilduff didn't show, faulting "dental troubles" as the reason.

Kilduff's signing with Adanacs came as a complete surprise to the Shamrock executive. Also disturbing.

"All I've got to say on the subject," said president Buss Morgan, "is this: We'll be in the playoffs and Coquitlam won't . . . Kilduff or no Kilduff."

ASHBEE STAYS IN EAST

If Shamrocks want to make Morgan's prediction come true, they have their work cut out. For one thing, the Irish are missing the smiling faces of Barry Ashbee and Jack Showers.

It now appears Ashbee, a league all-star last year, won't leave the east. Showers, treating a bad hip injury, isn't expected back in the lineup for another three weeks.

Kilduff's decision, therefore, stung the Rocks as much as Thursday night's defeat. It was Victoria's ninth setback in 12 starts and left the Rocks two points behind third-place Coquitlam.

PLAYED WELL

While coach Jim McNeill wasn't pleased with the end result, he did consider the means with favor. Shamrocks played well Thursday but were shafted by poor officiating, uncertain goalkeeping on the part of Skip Chapman and the brilliance of three Westminster veterans.

Chapman, as in two previous games, was not up to his usual standards. He was especially vulnerable on high shots.

Cliff Sepka led the way with six goals and two assists. All six of Sepka's shots drifted into the net over Chapman's shoulders.

BEAR ON DEFENCE

Paul Parnell scored four times and set up two while Wayne Shuttleworth, a bear on defence as well, scored once and set up four goals—all on the New Westminster's odd-man play.

Bill Munroe and Ron Jay each scored two goals for the Irish.

REBOUNDS: Veteran referees Jake Proctor and Earl McDonald went to work for the first time this season . . . It wasn't an auspicious debut . . . Both were inconsistent and messed up penalty times in glorious fashion in one instance, much to the embarrassment of the penalty time-keeper . . . Rocks' return to Victoria was delayed until the wee hours when their chartered aircraft developed radio trouble . . . Defenceman Bill Gray played well in a losing cause . . . Rocks' odd-man unit, kept off the score sheet for two straight games, finally hit Thursday . . . Reg Foster and Munroe both connected while Westminster was short-handed . . . Westminster led 4-0 at one stage but the Rocks pumped in five straight goals in a span of seven minutes, 28 seconds in the second quarter . . . The Irish lured Vancouver to Memorial Arena on Monday.

MEADOW COURT ENTERS IRISH SWEEP CLASSIC

DUBLIN (CP)—Thirty-six final acceptors, including Canadian-owned Meadow Court, were named Thursday for the Irish Sweepstakes Derby at the Curragh on June 26.

Meadow Court, owned by Calgary publisher Max Bell, was second in the Epsom Derby behind Sea Bird.

Other final acceptors include Reliance, winner of the French Derby, and Niksar, the English 2,000 Guineas winner.

The sweepstakes for the Irish Derby will carry a record £79,210 ($237,630) in prize money. Purse for the winner of the 1 1/4-mile classic will be £55,650 ($166,950). An Irish sweeps draw is based on the race.

Does Punch Have Plans for Andy?

Punch Imlach cut off a possible coach for Victoria Maple Leafs at the pass Thursday and had city hockey fans wondering where Andy Heberton would be playing his trade-next winter.

The Toronto general manager-coach said Allan Stanley, mooted as a candidate to succeed the departed Rudy Pilous, "would be back," but Imlach didn't say whether Stanley would be with Toronto or Victoria.

Imlach was also quoted, following the National Hockey League meetings in Montreal, as "figuring" he had right wing insurance in Heberton.

Handy Andy was ticketed for Victoria, or so local general manager Buck Houle thought, after he was acquired from Boston, along with Pat Stapleton and Orland Kurtenbach for Toronto right winger Ron Stewart.

Stapleton was subsequently drafted by the Chicago Black Hawks.

Heberton played last year with Portland Buckaroos, on loan from Boston. Fully expecting to get him back, the irate Bucs broke their agreement with the Bruins following the trade.

PROTECTED SHACK

Imlach admitted he took a gamble in leaving promising young goalie Jerry Cheevers off the Toronto protected list. Cheevers was grabbed by Boston.

In a surprise move, Imlach protected Eddie Shack, the flamboyant but seldom-used winger. Only Detroit was interested in dealing for Shack, Imlach said, "but if we had left him unprotected—Boston would have picked him up."

On the final day of the NHL meetings only minor matters were dealt with.

The number of individual units per club for award money in league standings and the Stanley Cup series was increased to 21 from 18, meaning three more allotments to each participating

Herders Stretch Unbeaten String

Shepherds outlasted Island Tug 14-13 Thursday to preserve their unbeaten mark in the Industrial Softball League.

The herders now lead the flock by 2 1/2 games, having won nine straight.

TEE TOPICS

By Ernie Fedoruk

One day last week, Milt Dow's thoughts on how to one-putt all greens were interrupted by the ring of a telephone.

"Howdy," a voice drawled. "I'm trying to contact Mr. Milton Dow."

"You've got him," said Milton.

"A left-handed golfer?"

"That's right."

"... who played in Louisiana last year and is the director for the 1966 NALG tournament?"

"Quite so."

"Say, Milt," the voice bubbled on, "this is (so-and-so) from Fo't Wuth, Texas. Don't know if you remember me, but we played together at Baton Rouge."

Milton remembered, and asked how come a Texan happened to be visiting in Victoria.

"Well, we were up in Seattle," said the visitor, chief executive of a major U.S. machinery firm, "when I remembered the business you gave us about Victoria."

"Quite honestly, ah thought you were lying. My wife and I decided we'd come over and see for ourselves."

They'll Arrive Early From Texas

"Ah'm going to tell you right now, Milt. We'll be over a week ahead of time for next year's tournament. What's more, ah'm gonna bring at least eight more from Fo't Wuth."

The phone call doesn't mean much except vindication for Milt Dow, who, two years ago, cherished a dream about Victoria playing host to the left-handers' biggest tournament.

The tournament is a dream no longer. When the NALG tournament is played at Uplands and Colwood next summer, it will mark the first time the affair has ever been moved out of the U.S.

They'll come from Texas and most every other state, and many parts of Canada, and what will transpire will be the largest tournament ever staged in Victoria.

That's because the southpaws' annual session is growing in popularity.

This year's tournament will be played in Las Vegas from June 27 to July 2. Entries for this year's affair passed the 400 mark for the first time in history.

Like Boy Scouts, 'Be Prepared'

"I don't know if we're going to get 400 entries to Victoria," Milton said this week, "but I'm willing to bet my shirt the total will be over 300."

"I got a letter from the NALG executive in Las Vegas. All it said was 'Be prepared!'"

Pessimistically assuming that only 300 show up, that still should make it the biggest tournament ever played in Victoria.

Past records show that more than half of the golfers bring along wives as well as (golf) bags.

Considering all this, then, Victoria's economy should be swelled by at least $150,000 for the week-plus that the golfers will spend here. That's the quick and rough estimate of what they will pour into cash registers in hotels, motels, restaurants, transportation firms and golf courses.

It might not be much of a drop in your bucket, Rockefeller, but I'd sure like to see it in my pocket.

SHORT CHIPS: Time is running out on National Golf Week . . . Players have until the end of the week to submit cards for the competition . . . Cedar Hill member Norm Hiron joined the hole-in-one club last week, connecting on the tough sixth . . . Spectators at the B.C. Open this year get a chance to engage in a competition, of a sort . . . All-expense-paid trips to Hawaii and Las Vegas are being offered to persons who buy tickets to the Open, now the largest provincial tournament in Canada . . . The national seniors' tournament will be played on the West Coast for the first time June 16-18 at Vancouver's Capilano . . . A strong Seattle Golf Club team defeated Victoria Club 4 1/2-2 1/2 in the first half of their annual home-and-home series . . . Defending champion Doug Munro moved into the semifinals of Oak Bay's club championship event by defeating Dr. George Bigelow 3 and 2 . . . Also reaching the fours was Bill McColl, who defeated Bill Thompson, 1 up . . . H. B. Howard, J. Hough and J. McPherson are first to get into the semifinals of Oak Bay's "B" championship . . . At Colwood, Laurie Kerr will play Tom Gieves and Henry Howard meets Roger Ross in the club's handicap tournament . . . Uplands' handicap affair starts with the qualifying round on June 20.

... big chore ahead

Kolb Top Threat To Overhaul Kent

Mike Kolb will be the man in the spotlight at Royal Colwood Sunday when they start swinging in the final 18 holes of the city amateur golf championship.

Youthful Ricky Kent grabbed a commanding five-stroke lead last Sunday in the first 36 holes of the 54-hole tourney by firing 73-69—142 over the par-70 Colwood layout.

Kolb, a former Colwood member now residing in Duncan, is the fellow closest to Kent and about the only one given a reasonable chance to catch the 19-year-old leader.

Also at stake Sunday is the Matson Trophy, emblematic of the handicap title, for which all remaining players are in the running.

HANDICAP

9:00 a.m.—D. Peden, C. Ferguson, B. Zoller.

9:07—T. Allen, A. Cliff, D. Tuttle.

9:14—J. Archambault, D. White, J. Dyson.

9:21—G. Jones, R. Broder, R. Saxon.

9:28—R. Scott-Moncrieff, D. Norbury.

9:35—H. Parisekuk, C. Soberg, W. MacDonald.

9:42—R. Bishop, R. Farrington, T. Lang.

9:49—T. Ritchie, R. Harrington, G. O'Brien.

9:56—J. Morgan, J. Scott, A. Baranick.

CHAMPIONSHIP

10:00—C. Smith, A. Fulton, R. Moss.

10:10—J. Jackson, G. Wain, W. Thompson.

10:20—H. Jacobson, V. Palmer, G. Hutchison.

10:30—M. Kolb, A. MacLeod, D. Farrington.

10:40—D. Mills, R. Ross, R. Bath.

10:50—C. Harwood, R. Saxon, J. Dyson.

11:00—R. Kent, P. Farrington, R. Sparks.

11:10—L. Kerr, B. Hunt, G. Andrews.

11:20—G. Heggie.

Veterans Sharing Lead at Cleveland

CLEVELAND (AP)—Veteran Billy Casper carded a four-under-par 34-32-67 Thursday and tied defending champion Tony Lema for the first-round lead in the $135,000 Cleveland Open golf tournament.

Casper came in with four birdies and putted "better than I have all year" to tie Lema.

The 31-year-old Lema rode a wave of five birdies for his 35-32-67 despite a bad cold.

Bill Martindale, Dan Sikes and Johnny Pott.

U.S. Open champion Ken Venturi, troubled by a circulatory ailment in his hands, slipped to a 39-37-76 and was in danger of missing the 36-hole cutoff Friday. Venturi will defend his Open crown in St. Louis next week.

Arnold Palmer, after a slow start, registered a birdie on the 18th and parred the final two holes for an even par 37-34-71.

City Ladies' Golf Final Has a Familiar Touch

Joan Lawson vs. Marg Todd. So what else is new?

In city ladies' golf circles, the important gossip had a familiar ring to it as two former champions stepped off this morning in their 18-hole playoff for the city title.

Mrs. Lawson, the defending champion from Uplands, moved into the final Thursday by defeating Gorge Vale's Shirley Naysmith, 4 and 3.

Runnerup in the 1963 B.C. tournament, Mrs. Lawson medalled approximately 41, six over par, on the outgoing nine. The total included a triple bogey seven on the sixth hole.

Mrs. Naysmith, a three-time winner of the city title, lacked her usual accuracy. She caught

HEAVY WINTER KILL

Alberta Boosts Pheasant Hatch

EDMONTON (CP)—Capacity of the provincial government pheasant hatchery at Brooks will be increased to 9,000 to help overcome effects of a heavy winter-kill, E. S. Heustis, deputy lands and forest minister, said Thursday.

Heustis said game biologists are conducting surveys to determine the number of deaths caused by several weeks of blizzard and below-zero temperatures in the Lethbridge-Brooks area of southern Alberta, where the majority of pheasants are taken annually.

"There will be no closure," he said. "We're sure of that, but there is a slight possibility we may reduce the limit or restrict hunters in some manner."

Last season ran from Oct. 9 through Oct. 24 with a limit of three birds to a hunter and Oct. 26-Dec. 5 with a five-pheasant limit.

Alberta fish and wildlife officials normally spread 5,000 birds throughout the province each year. This year, the entire 9,000 fowl will be freed in southern Alberta, Heustis said.

"We have reason to believe," he said, "that the loss of pheasants was not as disastrous as we had feared."

C. P. Smith, director of the provincial fish and wildlife department, said pheasants have been under-harvested for many years. The pheasant population had increased to huge numbers due to a combination of good hatching seasons and mild winters.

WEATHER CAN HELP

"We're making a big drive to restore the pheasant population this year because we might be in trouble if we delayed and ran into two or three tough winters in a row," Smith said.

"No hatchery could support a population large enough to permit hunting," Smith said, "but we feel it is necessary to speed up natural propagation."

Beneficial now, he said, would be a prolonged stretch of warm, dry weather in the south to facilitate hatching.

TIME OUT

"No fair using your chaw to deflect your pop-up, Slugger!"

THREAT TO YOUNG GROUSE

Prospects Bright, Until Rains Came

When rain started falling Thursday night, hopes of game biologists on Vancouver Island went skidding right along with the temperatures.

The fish and game branch boys had been, and still are, hoping for a bumper crop of blue-grouse chicks on the island.

However, young upland game birds and rain just don't get along. Several days of wet stuff could lead to heavy losses among grouse chicks after a promising start to the nesting season.

Although the blues were well scattered and many hunters found them difficult to find when the hunting season opened last September, an unexpectedly large number of birds arrived back on the nesting grounds this spring.

"Early surveys showed better grouse counts than we have had for several years," assistant-director Don Robinson said earlier this week.

"The hatch is on right now and we are expecting good things with blue grouse. All we need is for this warm, dry weather to continue."

Then the rains came.

The hatch could still be a good one, but it now appears a lot is going to depend on whether or not the sun can take over again before this weekend is finished.

There is a bright side to everything and the silver lining in the current clouds is visible to trout anglers. They may be able to obtain access to lakes in several logging areas which might have been closed this weekend because of the mounting fire hazard.

Many logging operations had switched to early work shifts and had decided to keep fishermen out of their timber until the hazard was reduced. Fishermen would be wise to check with companies, but it seems likely many logging gates will remain open this weekend.

Most of the larger lakes are now near their peak and smaller lakes at higher altitudes are producing excellent trout catches.

Among the better spots in the past week have been Upper and Lower Campbell, the Sayward Lakes, Buttle, Sprout, Great Central and Cowichan Lakes. River fishing is fairly good on the Puntledge, Little and Big Qualicum, and the top end of the Cowichan.

Salmon fishermen are hoping for a happy weekend with big fish showing up in many areas, although no waters are yet producing consistently good catches.

Otter Point and Becher Bay areas are giving up a few husky springs, as are waters off Victoria and Oak Bay. Deep Cove and Saanich Inlet are also harboring a few good salmon and bluebacks are hitting fairly well off Northwest Bay, Qualicum, Comox and Campbell River.

2 out of 3 new Ambassador buyers switched from other manufacturers this year.

(Ambassador sales up 211%)

For thousands of people who had always been loyal to the other makes, 1965 was the year of the big switch. They turned their backs on cars they'd always bought and moved to Ambassador. You can bet they must have had some pretty good reasons. We bet disillusionment was one of them. (When you've put up with rust, rattles and repair bills year after year, you start wondering if you really have to!)

But we think the new Ambassador itself was the most important reason. This year's Ambassador is the biggest, most luxurious ever built—more solid Rambler quality designed for the larger car buyer. And the Ambassador offers more options this year—everything from bucket seats to power disc brakes. Improved performance, too—including the new 232 cu. in. Torque Command Six, the most powerful, smoothest-riding six on the road, and a mighty 327 cu. in. V8. Of course, Ambassador's truly outstanding interior must have sold quite a few people (or was it the big-car luxury at a medium price that did the selling?).

No matter what their reasons were, you can probably think of some of your own to go Ambassador. Who knows—maybe the famous Rambler features (Deep Dip Rustproofing, Double Safety Brakes, Ceramic-Armoured Muffler, rattle-free Single Unit Construction) are beginning to make a lot of sense to you. They've already made a lot of sense to thousands of people who were in the same boat.

A divorce was granted in Victoria Law Courts recently to: Mrs. Helen E. Laker, 205 St. Charles, from Vernon L. Laker, 132 Dallas Road. They were married in Nanaimo in 1942. There is no divorce court in Victoria this week because the summer Assize Court is in progress.

Wheels for Martha Allen*

Martha Allen is a book-keeper. She's single. And for twenty years, Martha relied on her friends and relatives for transportation. Until she decided it was time to buy her own car. Knowing nothing about cars, Martha asked her brother-in-law for advice. He recommended Goodwill Used Cars. He was a Goodwill owner himself. He knew that his sister-in-law could rely on the man who displayed the Goodwill sign to give her a good deal on a good car.

He was right. Martha's got wheels now. She's driving her own 1964 Beaumont convertible. And with the lift it's given her, her neighbours hardly know her. Martha Allen likes the deal she got. And the confidence she gets from knowing her car's protected by a Goodwill Warranty.

Word gets around. More and more people are shopping Goodwill every day. And for good reason. Goodwill dealers sell new Pontiacs, Buicks, Cadillacs and GMC Trucks. They've got lots at stake in their community. So you can rely on them to give you the best deals on the best used cars in town.

Mercury's power-boosting silencing system with competitors' outboards

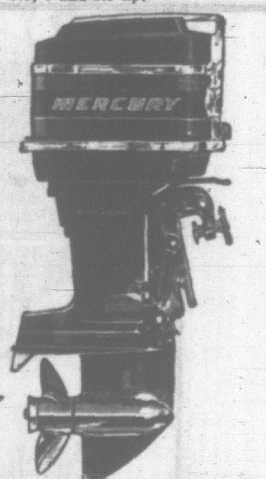

Mercury powerheads are inherently quiet... and more powerful. They don't sacrifice power in order to reduce air intake noise by strangling it with plates and baffles. Mercury's get their inherent quiet from the exclusive internal reed valve system deep within the crankcase. Power-Dome combustion chambers, which "squish" combustion sound; small-bore, short-stroke engines, for tight fits and smaller clearances; offset wrist pins; 15 reasons in all. New Silence. But 1965 means double quiet, because we have a new "floating capsule" engine cowling that traps sound inside, and a "wall of water" that surrounds Mercury's internal exhaust pipe to isolate and damp out noise within the drive shaft housing. That's why a national independent organization certifies the new Merces are at least 50% quieter. You must drive 'em to believe the difference!

Instead of extending the exhaust pipe underwater and losing power through back-pressure, Mercury fires the exhaust through a hollow Jet-Prop into the vacuum pocket behind the propeller hub. Exhaust sound and gases are buried far behind the boat... underwater drag is reduced... power to the prop is increased.

Your Mercury dealer will be glad to show you all 15 engineering exclusives from power-head to prop that make Merces 50% quieter... and give you more RUN for your money... 100, 90, 65, 50, 35, 20, 9.8, 6 and 3.9 hp.

French-Canadians 'Are Lucky Minority'

QUEBEC (CP)—Yann Plunier thinks French-Canadians are a lucky minority.

Mr. Plunier, 42, an engineer's assistant, came here from Baie Comeau, Que., to tell the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism Wednesday what it is like to belong to the Breton minority of France.

"French-Canadians are a minority who have been lucky enough to find a majority who treat them fairly well," he said in a French which showed small trace of the Breton he spoke until after the age of 20.

"In Brittany we have no rights at all. I spent four months in jail for the cause of Breton autonomy, and you can still get into trouble with the great (President Charles) de Gaulle for putting up a sign in the Breton language."

Mr. Plunier came to Canada 12 years ago. As well as excellent French and Breton, he speaks good English and Italian. His brief to the commission came out for "multiculturalism."

"Do you mean by that that there must be a Breton school in Baie Comeau because there is one Breton there?" asked Commissioner Jean Marchand.

"No," said Mr. Plunier, "but if the minority is a considerable one, it should have the right to educate its children in their native language."

This "multicultural" system would help cut down on the need to be bilingual, which the one-man delegation saw as harmful.

In earlier days Mr. Plunier was active in European movements for a federally-divided continent which would give more autonomy to pockets of traditional culture like Brittany.

"I also participate in the meeting of the World Celtic Union, which groups representatives of Scotland, Ireland, Wales, the Isle of Man and Brittany."

Bretons, fisherfolk from whom many French-Canadians are descended, speak a language related to Gaelic. They number about 1,500,000.

What language is spoken at the Celtic Union's meetings, a commissioner wondered.

"I'm afraid," sighed Yann Plunier, "that it's English."

Nureyev Performance 'Brilliant'

TORONTO (CP)—The Royal Ballet concluded its Toronto visit with a production of Giselle before about 7,000 patrons at Maple Leaf Gardens Thursday night.

Apart from the ballet itself, which Ralph Hicklin of The Globe and Mail described as "one of the great dance dramas of any time", the main attraction of the evening was the only Toronto appearance during the visit of Russian star Rudolf Nureyev.

Mr. Hicklin said of him: "I can only marvel at the restraint, the good manners, and the endless brilliance of this great artist."

Many Nureyev fans had purchased advance tickets to the British company's first production of Swan Lake Tuesday night in the belief that he would dance, then complained bitterly when it was learned he would not.

In the role of Giselle, Lynn Seymour of Vancouver gave a "performance of an exceptional dancer-actress," Mr. Hicklin said.

Her mad scene in the first act "was honestly stunning" and "once joined by Nureyev (in the second act), she settled into a performance of transcendent power and atmosphere."

Mr. Hicklin added: "One would be hard put to think of an equal of the entire second act as performed by Seymour, Nureyev and the other artists of the company."

TAKING OFF for Vancouver after three-day Victoria visit, Governor-General Vanier bids farewell to Premier Bennett at Patricia Bay International Airport. "We have had a wonderful time here," he told the premier. (Times photo by Strickland.)

Vancouver Salute ... Just a Sizzle

VANCOUVER (CP)—The two-day visit here of Governor General George Vanier and Mme. Vanier didn't exactly get off to a bang on their arrival Thursday—in fact it started with more of a sizzle.

The 15th Field Regiment assigned the task of firing a 21-gun salute on the couple's arrival at Vancouver Airport—had run out of its supply of blank shells, the ones that go off with a bang.

Instead they were forced to use the second of two types of blank shells issued to the army for such occasions. The second type sizzle when they are fired. Miss Richmond, pretty Donna Smyth, who was on hand with a bouquet for Mme. Vanier, apparently was forgotten in the brief ceremony.

As the ceremony ended the vice-regal couple entered their limousine.

Donna's plight caught the attention of Group Capt. D. C. Cameron.

He led the girl to the couple.

The flowers were presented and Dinna found herself being kissed on both cheeks by Mme. Vanier.

WHO YOU MARRY

Mme. Vanier visited the Convent of the Sacred Heart Thursday afternoon.

In her speech to the student gathering, Mme. Vanier admitted she is not a "learned woman."

"But I have two Ph.D.'s—honorary ones."

"I got them for marrying my husband," she said. "The lesson in this girls, is: Choose your husband."

'Bad' Juvenile Record Costs Youth 6 Months

A youth with a "very bad" juvenile court history received a stiff sentence and a lecture Thursday in Saanich court for leaving an accident scene.

The 17-year-old was sentenced to six months definite and six months indefinite in the young offenders' unit at Oakalla prison. Magistrate William Ostler said he had a very bad history in juvenile court and had broken probation a number of times.

"You have a callous, casual attitude to this offence," he told him after reading his probation report.

At an earlier hearing court was told he hit an oncoming car May 30 on the Trans-Canada Highway and fled the scene.

A city man who was released from jail in April after serving a sentence for false pretences was sentenced to six months for a similar offence.

Bryan Davidson, 27, of 23 Menzies St. pleaded guilty to cashing a cheque drawn on an account with no money in it Saturday at a Safeway store at 3555 Douglas.

Court was told Davidson closed out his bank account May 18 by drawing out 50 cents.

Norman Wilson, 711 Pemberton, was fined $45 after he pleaded guilty to careless driving.

Court was told he went through a red light May 30 at Burnside Rd. and Trans-Canada Highway and was involved in a collision.

USN Top Brass To Tour Base At Esquimalt

A number of high-ranking U.S. naval officers will visit the RCN's Pacific command this month.

In each case, they will hold briefings with Rear Admiral M. G. Stirling, flag officer, Pacific coast, and tour the base.

First to arrive will be Rear Admiral C. D. Synon, commander, 17th coast guard district with headquarters in Juneau, Alaska.

He will also tour the armed forces rescue co-ordination centre Wednesday in Vancouver.

Coming for a one-day visit June 21 will be Rear Admiral J. M. Taylor, commander of U.S. naval defences, eastern Pacific. His headquarters are in San Francisco.

Later in the month, the command will be visited by Vice Admiral J. T. Hayward, commander of anti-submarine forces, Pacific, with headquarters in Hawaii.

Toronto Hydro Dispute To Compulsory Arbitration

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario government imposed compulsory arbitration in Toronto's hydro dispute Thursday night, less than half an hour before a midnight strike deadline.

After a stormy debate, the opposition waived its right to have the bill debated in committee and third reading was approved without a recorded vote.

Immediately after royal assent, Deputy Labor Minister J. B. Metzler handed a copy of the bill to William Baker, president of Local 1, Canadian Union of Public Employees (CLC). He had been listening to the debate from the gallery with members of his negotiating committee.

Mr. Metzler said later it was Mr. Baker's responsibility to see that the new law was communicated to union's 550 members before the strike deadline. The vote on the government's bill was 56 to 31. The Liberals backed a New Democratic Party motion that supported a combination of mediation and arbitration as an alternative to the strike ban.

Under the NDP plan, the union would have lifted the strike deadline if the government appointed a mediator. The mediator would have 60 days to seek a settlement, then all unresolved issues would be submitted to arbitration.

UNION BACKED FORMULA

The formula was backed by the union but was rejected by the Toronto Hydro electric system. The system suggested voluntary arbitration but this was refused by the union.

In proposing second reading of the bill, Premier Robarts said a halt or interruption in the supply of power would seriously threaten the health, welfare and economic well-being of the people served by Toronto Hydro—more than 10 per cent of Ontario's population.

The employees represented by the union include linemen required to repair breaks in transmission of power.

The union seeks a one-year agreement giving an 18-cent-an-hour increase to linemen, tradesmen and laborers. The hydro system has offered a two-year agreement with an eight-to-12-cent increase and improvements in the vacation plan.

Current salaries are $2.13 an hour for laborers and $2.97 for linemen.

Fringe benefits and wide issues also remain to be settled.

POLLS GIVE TORY EDGE

LONDON (Reuters)—Sir Alec Douglas-Home's opposition Conservative party was given a 4½ per cent lead over the Labor government in public opinion poll findings published here Tuesday. This compared with a Labor lead of just under 2 per cent recorded in last October's general election voting.

Sunshine is good for tans, tennis, radishes, colour movies, etc.

But not for beer.

Beermanship is the art of getting the most enjoyment out of your beer

Most Beermanshipers agree that there's nothing nicer than sitting out in the sun with a beer in your hand.

As long as the beer in your hand isn't directly in the sunshine.

Beer is delicate. It can get sunstroke, just like people can. (Even Molson Canadian, and it's the light beer that's all beer.)

So next time you're sitting in the sun, sipping and humming, you may have to move your beer an inch or two, into the shadow.

There!

Beermanship will show you how to wash beer-glasses the secret way, so your beer will taste better.

DRAFT of report on attempted bribery and coercion allegations against federal ministerial aides has been nearly completed by Chief Justice Frederic Dorion, reliable sources in Ottawa said Monday. Indications are that the report will be made public about the end of June.

Woman Thinks Driving On Sidewalk Normal

A woman who apparently thought driving on a sidewalk was not unusual was fined $10 in magistrate's court today.

Court was told Margaret E. Cavanagh, 3749 Quadra, was proceeding west on Gorge Rd. May 15.

She was seen to cross to the south side of the road and drive along the sidewalk for half a block between parked cars and businesses including Coffee Mac's.

"The surprising thing about it is that you don't seem to think this is unusual," Magistrate William Ostler told her.

Arthur Mayse

Today in the woods northeast of Port Hardy, a young summer logger is setting chokers for MacMillan-Bloedel. That's a rugged job, but the University of Victoria student who holds it down is a husky specimen.

When September comes, he expects to return to Uvic as a sophomore. His eligibility is established: he scored a clean pass in all his freshman courses.

'Kelly,' the starving but stubbornly determined boy to whom I introduced you in this corner last November, has the world by the tail on a downhill haul.

This, of course, didn't just happen. It was made possible by you who read of his plight here, and came to his rescue.

In less than 48 hours, you provided Kelly with the home and the funds he needed to see him through. For this generous help in need, Kelly, and I, will be forever grateful.

To say that I'm pleased Kelly made the grade against such mountainous handicaps as late registration, lack of books and simple malnutrition isn't enough.

Much more than my own hopes were riding on him.

The Victoria woman who brought his case to my attention when he was struggling along on a diet of borrowed apples and tapwater hoped most earnestly that he would use his chance well.

So, I'm sure, did you who gave him that chance.

You bought him the books he lacked.

You made up the fees which a summer operation and a winter job that failed to materialize had placed hopelessly beyond his reach.

You saw to it that he received the medical care and dental surgery that he needed.

You bought him clothes he lacked. You supplied him with a sternly-regulated allowance for transportation, cafeteria coffee and Friday night dates with the girl who, when his affairs were at their blackest, spared him sandwiches from her lunch.

You met the swarming extra expenses of the academic year as these came up.

Beyond all this, you offered him spare-time work. I was against him taking it. For a student who had started a long way back of scratch, catching up and holding his own seemed job enough.

To knock our young people—to grumble about their wild ways and wrong-headed attitudes—is easy. To demonstrate faith in their soundness comes harder. But this you did: and Kelly hasn't let you down.

It is my own earnest hope that he, and you, have also made the road somewhat easier for those of his stamp who hunger for a university education.

These are the so-called 'marginal' students, the kids whose efforts will never win them more than a bare pass. The scholarships and bursaries don't go to them. They make it on their own, or with the help of parents, or through a loan.

In Kelly's case, the federal student loan was denied him. He was not considered a sound risk by university officers who administer the loan in Victoria and Vancouver.

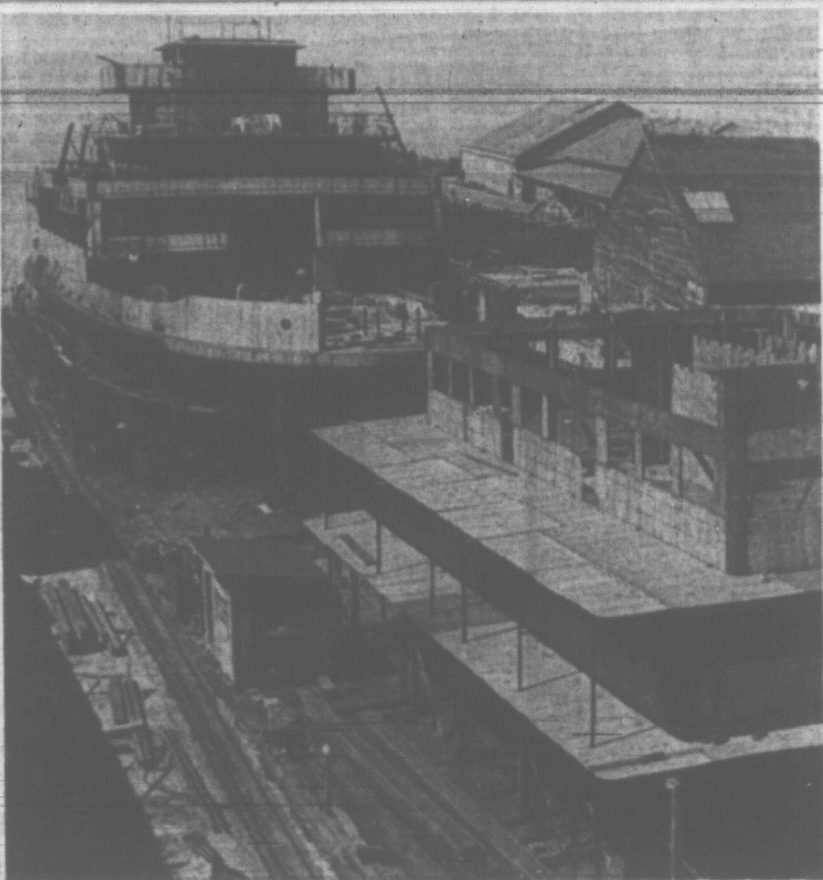

This puzzles me. It smacks of ivory tower whimsy. It is also in direct contravention of the terms of the loan as published on the authority of federal finance minister Walter L. Gordon.

Under those terms, the student is considered to have attained a satisfactory academic standing if he is accepted for enrolment by a designated institution.

University of Victoria is a 'designated institution'. Kelly had been accepted for enrolment. But he was refused a federal loan.

It is not my intention here to nit-pick at a young university still finding its feet. Nevertheless, I think those who support it through their taxes and their donations to its building fund deserve a clear statement of policy.

Is the ideal to recruit the well-beeled and scholarly in an academic closed shop, or is there to be room also in those halls for our Kellys?

Truck Crash Washes Out Pot Display

Pots and pans clattered along a Port Alberni street today when a large chipper truck smashed its way into the front of a hardware store.

The incident happened on busy Third Avenue but no one was seriously hurt.

The truck, driven by Paul Henri, of 111 Fifth Avenue, swerved to miss a car.

HALF IN STORE

Rows of buckets and pans were scattered along the road and sidewalk as the truck ground to a halt half in and half out of the store.

Mr. Henri climbed out of his truck uninjured.

Driver of the car which was sideswiped by the truck, was taken to hospital with suspected back injuries.

Police identified him as Pira Lalil, of Anderson Avenue, Port Alberni.

Total damage was estimated at $7,000.

Long-Service Akela Dies Here at 42

Funeral services were held today for Mrs. Jean Shemilt, 5261 Parker Ave., who served 25 years as a Wolf Cub leader in the city's Boy Scout movement.

She died Tuesday, age 42.

Mrs. Shemilt was born in Vancouver but was educated here. As a girl she joined the Brownies and for four years was an ardent member of Cloverdale Guide Company.

This association launched her into her career as a leader in the scout organization which spanned 25 years.

She began in 1938 and served as leader of First Parkdale, North-Quadra, First Elks Own B, Third Nanaimo, Forty-ninth Victoria and Fifth Cordova Bay B packs.

In 1947 she received the Medal of Merit, awarded by the Chief Scout of Canada for outstanding leadership in the Scout movement.

In March this year Mrs. Shemilt received a long service award from the National Council of Boy Scouts.

Besides scouting, Mrs. Shemilt was a playground director at Cordova Bay.

Punching, Kicking Brings Jail Term

A Vancouver man was sent to jail today for six months for what the magistrate described as a "contemptible" assault on another man.

James Miller was convicted after a trial of punching a man on Johnson Street, May 26, and then kicking him when he was on the ground.

Magistrate William Oester said he has nothing but contempt for anyone who takes in a fight, "particularly when he kicks someone in the face."

He said Miller "might have killed" his victim. The accused has a record for breaking and entering and assaulting a police officer.

RVYC Skippers To Compete In July Log Race

Two Royal Victoria Yacht Club skippers have signed up for the Van Isle predicted-log race next month.

They are James Beebe and Monte Porter who will join about 40 other powerboatmen from B.C., Washington and Oregon cities.

The race begins in Nanaimo July 17. It will be held in two sections—from Nanaimo to Bull Harbor at the island's northern tip and from Bull Harbor to Victoria.

Most of the boats expect to drop out for the second leg which will take about two weeks. On the trip down the Island's west coast, yachtsmen will journey from inlet to inlet and time will be set aside for fishing and picnics en route.

In a predicted log race, competitors attempt to forecast their traveling times between predetermined checkpoints.

William H. Armstrong of Victoria will join three other officials of the Three Universities Capital Fund Drive for a canvass of eastern firms next week.

Leaving with him Monday will be general co-chairman Allan M. McGavin and Cyrus H. McLean and major gifts chairman A. John Ellis.

Mr. Armstrong is the Island division chairman.

The delegation will be working from the base of more than $6 million already pledged to the fund from eastern donors.

Calls will be made by appointment to firms with head offices in Toronto, Hamilton, London and Kitchener.

More than 100 firms with interests in B.C. will be covered by the quartet.

No meetings with groups have been arranged.

BURGLAR CAUGHT IN ACT

Window Broken In Legal Offices

A burglar was caught red-handed by police when he broke into downtown legal offices shortly before 11 Thursday night.

Alex Topper, no fixed address, pleaded guilty today to breaking and entering the premises of Clay, MacFarlane, Ellis and Popham at 750 Courtney.

Constable Lorne Shandley said he found Topper in a washroom when he checked the premises after a window was found broken.

He said he opened the door and "I saw Topper's reflection in the mirror. He said 'You have me.'"

Crown Prosecutor Peter Birkett said Topper has admitted to previous convictions for breaking and entering and possession of stolen property.

He was remanded to Monday for sentence.

THIS IS SITE of new Federal Building looking north from Johnson Street at Vancouver Street. Property extends through to Pandora Avenue. That's St. Louis College in background.

Quick Start Due On Federal Block

$1.3 Million Contract Awarded To City's Farmer Construction

Contract for a $1,386,700 federal building in Victoria has been awarded to Farmer Construction Ltd., it was learned today.

The two-storey building, to house the Unemployment Insurance Commission and the Department of Revenue, is scheduled for completion in 14 months. Work will start "almost immediately."

Farmer Construction submitted the lowest of three tenders which were opened March 31. The highest was $1,416,500. Plans and specifications were prepared by architects Wade, Stockill and Armour of Victoria and Vancouver who will supervise the construction.

The building, which includes a penthouse and full basement, will be located on the east side of Vancouver Street between Pandora Avenue and Johnson Street.

The main entrance will be on Vancouver Street to service the UEI Commission and the National Revenue entrance will open on Pandora.

Parking facilities for 50 cars will be included on the building site.

The outside of the building will be made of local grey granite on a base course, with precast panels incorporating windows.

All floors in office areas will be covered with heavy gauge linoleum and the outer walls will be painted plaster. Interior partitions to the general office areas will be prefabricated metal and glass units. The penthouse will enclose the mechanical facilities for the building.

GOAT-KILLING DOG HUNTED BY SPCA IN COLWOOD AREA

SPCA officials are looking for a killer dog in the Colwood area.

The dog Thursday night attacked a goat grazing at 11 Midwood.

The goat had to be shot this morning.

The dog had ripped the animal's throat and stomach and torn chunks of flesh off the legs and body.

Officials believe the dog, a German shepherd with a black-tipped tail, lives in the vicinity.

They are worried in case it attacks other domestic animals having once tasted blood.

The goat was owned by Mrs. Vivien Morris.

Two Drivers Negligent, Jury Rules

A four-man coroner's jury urged in B.C. Assize Court here today that permanent vehicle testing stations should be set up in British Columbia.

The jury recommended "all cars be tested for safe operation" after finding that Edward G. Robertson, 32, of 730 Lindsay, met his death on Jan. 23 due to negligence by Robertson and the driver of another car, a minor.

There was no mention of a mechanical fault in either of the cars involved.

The jury's verdict had been delayed since Feb. 8 because the original six-man jury at a coroner's inquest could not agree on its verdict regarding negligence.

Coroner Edmund Jorre de St. Jorre therefore adjourned the inquest and, under the Canada Evidence Act, referred it to the B.C. Assize Court.

FIRST TIME

Courthouse officials said it was the first time in B.C. history, so far as they knew, that such a step has been taken.

But the Coroner's Act states specifically that, if a coroner's jury fails to agree on its verdict, the coroner may refer the inquest to the Assize Court.

When the case reopened in Assize Court this morning, only four of the original six jurors were present.

Lloyd G. McKenzie, QC, representing the crown, said the two other jurors were not now available and one of the two had dissented on the verdict. He had agreed on the cause of death but did not agree on whether blame should be attached.

Mr. Justice R. A. Wootton then asked the four remaining jurors to retire and consider their verdict anew.

When they returned 15 minutes later, foreman Vance Gill said:

"Our decision is that death was due to negligence on the part of Robertson, the deceased, and the driver of the death car."

"We attach a recommendation that permanent vehicle testing stations be set up and all cars be tested for safe operation."

Mr. Justice Wootton thanked the jury for concluding the case and dismissing the case.

The deceased, Edward G. Robertson, was fatally injured at the junction of Interurban and Dumasque on a snowy night on Jan. 23.

As he attempted to get his car out of a ditch, the car was struck by another car which came along as Robertson was working on it.

A shipyard laborer and RCAF veteran, Robertson was once a Golden Gloves Champion of Vancouver Island.

It Rained! And There's More Coming

The weather system which brought Victoria its first amounts of measurable precipitation since May 19 passed by today.

But keep your broly handy. Another system is due Saturday bringing cloudy weather and showery periods. Clearing and sunshine is forecast for Sunday, weatherman Bill Macle said today.

Since Thursday evening, 27 inches of rain has fallen on the city. Eight one-hundredths of an inch fell May 19 and a trace was recorded May 23.

However, Victorians are still well ahead of last year in sunshine. So far 123.5 hours have been recorded compared to 43.6 in 1964.

Normal for this point in June is 93.6 hours.

DEAR ABBY...

Too Much Too Easily!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: When I think of how many boys would give anything for the opportunity our son had and threw away, I could cry. He is 19 and has had one year of college, but he washed out. Both his father and I are college graduates and over the years we have stressed the importance of a college education. Our son was an average high school student, but he was active in sports so we thought if he concentrated on his studies in college he would do better. Abby, we gave this boy a beautiful wardrobe, a car of his own and a liberal allowance, and he didn't even make grades good enough to keep him in school. We later learned he didn't bother to go to half his classes. He has a good mind, is good-looking and has never had any trouble making friends. Where have we failed?

HEARTBROKEN.

DEAR HEARTBROKEN: Don't assume that because he failed, you did. Your mistake was in giving him too much. A boy who has never had to work for anything has difficulty disciplining himself to work for grades. You can lead a lad to college, but you can't make him think. Take heart in the knowledge that some people mature later than others. Perhaps one day your son will realize his foolishness and resume his schooling. I hope so.

DEAR ABBY: I read somewhere that a girl can get cancer from kissing a boy who smokes a lot if he has an open cut on his lip. Is this true?

"FOURTEEN AND WORRYING."

DEAR WORRYING: This is not true. But other diseases are easily transmitted in this way. While you may be old enough to read, you are obviously not old enough to kiss anyone on the lips. So if you want to quit worrying, I advise you to kiss less and read more.

DEAR ABBY: After eight years of marriage my husband suddenly quit wearing his wedding ring. I asked him whom he was trying to deceive into thinking that he was not a married man. He denied that it was intentional. He is an executive so that his job has nothing to do with it. I wanted to give him a taste of his own medicine so I refused to wear my wedding ring unless he started wearing his again. He put it on, but a week later I noticed that he was without it. This time it was under the pretence that he had removed it to wash his hands and "forgot" to put it back on his finger. The ring lay in front of his face in the soap dish for over a week. I know that he has no objections to wearing a wedding ring because when he first met me he was wearing one, and his wife had been dead for over a year. Please advise me as I am ...

CONFUSED.

DEAR CONFUSED: Don't jump to conclusions. Perhaps his forgetfulness is accidental. Don't attempt to give him a taste of his own medicine. An overdose could be fatal. (To your marriage).

Couple Married In Sooke Presbyterian Church

GROOM'S NIECE AND NEPHEW ATTENDANTS

Little Verna Gail Musfelt and her brother, Randy, niece and nephew of the groom, held the lace train of the gown worn by Judith Gail Billan when she became the bride of Allan Ross Musfelt, recently.

The little girl wore a frock of blue batiste and carried a "ball" of pink carnations. The boy wore a matching blue suit.

The bride's floor-length gown was of white Chantilly lace, styled with a round neckline and sleeves ending in lily points. Ruffles trimmed the full hoop skirt. Her chapel-length veil misted from a coronet of mother-of-pearl trimmed with pearls and her jewelry was a single strand of pearls, gift of the groom. Red roses and white stephanotis were in her cascade bouquet.

Lilacs and yellow tulips decorated Knox Presbyterian Church, Sooke, when Rev. Alan Beaton officiated at the ceremony uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Billan, 6725 Sooke Road, and the son of Mrs. H. W. Musfelt and the late Mr. Musfelt. Mr. Billan gave his daughter in marriage.

Victoria Woman Named Councillor

Mrs. Peter W. Bell, Victoria, was elected a national councillor at the recent 65th annual meeting of the national chapter, IOOE, held in Winnipeg.

Other British Columbians elected councillors were Mrs. A. B. Hall, Nanaimo; Mrs. Gerald Charlton, Burnaby; and Mrs. K. H. Bancroft, Mrs. E. O. DuVerne and Mrs. Frank Stead, Vancouver.

Membership tea, Catholic Women's League, St. Patrick's Council, Oak Bay, Saturday, 2:30 to 5:00 p.m., home of Mrs. K. Oliver, 3235 Beach Drive.

Organist was Milt Gibson and soloist, Mrs. A. Shepherd sang "A Wedding Prayer" during the signing of the register.

Matching gowns of white nylon sheer over blue net and blue accessories were the choice of matron of honor, Mrs. D. Harder and bridesmaids, the Misses Julie Banner and Wendy Jones. Blue carnations were in their bouquets.

Best man was Larry Vowles. Ushering guests to pews were Robbie Eddy and the bride's brother, Barry Billan.

An heirloom eggshell pink shawl, belonging to the bride's grandmother covered the bride's table which was centred with a three-tier wedding cake at the reception following in the Sooke Community Hall.

R. D. Banks, Las Vegas, Nev., proposed the toast to his niece. Following a honeymoon-up-island, the couple is now making their home in Gibson, B.C. The new Mrs. Musfelt chose as a going-away outfit, a fuchsia pink crepe suit with self-fabric hat on tone. Accessories of white and a corsage of pink and white carnations completed the outfit.

HONOR TEACHER

An "at home" for former students and friends of Miss Rita Armstrong, who has been teaching in the city for 42 years, will be held next Wednesday from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at George Jay School. The event is being given by the school's home and school club for Miss Armstrong who retired this month. Prior to joining the staff of George Jay in 1941, Miss Armstrong taught at Victoria West School. Refreshments will be served at the affair in the school auditorium.

Staff Shower

A shower cake centred the refreshment table at a shower given for Miss Joyce Wright at the superannuation branch of the provincial parliament buildings by members of the staff. A corsage of white gladioli was presented to the bride-elect. Mrs. R. Sendey, Mrs. J. Milne and Miss M. Woodward were in charge of arrangements.

Attending were Mrs. E. van Bourgondien, Mrs. K. Bottomley, Mrs. O. Collington, Mrs. T. Dicks, Mrs. R. Ireland, Mrs. E. Petrie, Mrs. N. Godfrey, Mrs. J. Goldfuss, Mrs. G. Jones, Mrs. D. McKinney, Mrs. E. Nemeth, Mrs. L. Popham, Mrs. B. Smith, Mrs. I. Stewart, Mrs. P. Tregellas, Mrs. P. Hatch and the Misses Carol Blethman, Avril Brett, Elizabeth Colebrook, Audrey Hamilton, Angela Irvine, Kathryn Johnson, Winifred Lees, Janet Ling, Fernie McDiarmid, Diana Munro, Eva Parlee, Rita Quagliotti, Wendy Ramsfield, Kathleen Shaw and Phyllis Smith.

Surprise

A surprise shower was given for Miss Linda Puritch by Miss Shirley Webb at her home on Linden Avenue recently. Corals of carnations were presented to the bride-elect and her mother, Mrs. George Puritch. Gifts were in a yellow and white container. Guests included Mrs. V. Lane and the Misses Diane Rentz, Joanne Venton, Jane Boudaine, Solie Lubin, Doris Puritch, Elaine Ward, Joan Harrison and Jean Anne McTavish.

Cocktail Hour

A gift of luggage was presented to Mr. Henry Cousins by fellow employees of Shawinigan Building Supplies Limited at a cocktail party held in the Colonial Inn. Mr. Cousins recently retired after 30 years with the company. Attending the party were Mrs. J. Vestergaard, Mrs. H. Jettles, Mrs. Mina Williams, Mr. Fred Hawes, Mr. George Thornbury, Mr. Art Quill, Mr. Harry MacKay, Mr. Jim Morton, Mr. Maury Johnston, Mr. Dick Goodwyn, Mr. Art Nash, Mr. Ritchie Phillips, Mr. Jack Surtees, Mr. Ray McSweeney, Mr.

Vern Snyder, Mr. Jack McSweeney, Mr. Lyn Williams, Mr. Henry Stevens, Mr. Dick Cameron, Mr. Stan Bridal, Mr. Bob Hallberg, Mr. Bob Showers and Mr. Wally Dunaway.

Attend Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Banks travelled from their Las Vegas, Nev., home, recently, to attend the wedding of their niece, Miss Judith Billan, and Mr. Allan Musfeldt. Other out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. C. Romanik, Mrs. T. Billan, Mrs. S. Lenoski and Darlene and Mrs. P. Billan, all of Winnipeg, Man.

House Guest

Visiting Victoria from Los Angeles, Calif., for 10 days is Mrs. Marjorie Price who arrived Thursday evening. While in the city, Mrs. Price is the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Charman at their home on St. Charles Street.

Annual Dinner

Arrangements of peonies, white freesia and purple and gold iris will centre the refreshment table this evening when the staff of Esquimalt Senior Secondary School hold their annual dinner in the Selwyn Road home of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Temple. A buffet supper will be served to the more than 45 guests who will be attending.

Going East

Leaving Saturday evening by air for Montreal to join her husband is Mrs. Colin C. Creighton of this city. Mr. Creighton is presently taking an investment course in the eastern city. The couple will return to Victoria in the autumn.

For Summer

Mrs. John Dunbar and her two children, nine-year-old Sheena, and John Sept, seven, who arrived last week from Scotland, will spend the summer months in Victoria. Mrs. Dunbar is the former Joan Fenwick of this city and while in the city she and her children are guests at the home of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. G. Blogg of 2771 Shoreline Road.

Mrs. Wilton B. Tranter came to Canada from the Irish county of Athlone in 1919. In spite of her 46 years in this country, her voice still retains the delightful lilt of the "old sod."

Red Cross Magazine Gets Cold Shoulder

By PAT DUFOUR

A woman editor who hopes to one day dent the armor of resistance toward her magazine in Quebec is in Victoria with her husband. Mrs. Wilton B. Tranter, editor of the Red Cross Junior Magazine, still looks forward to the day when the magazine, geared for children between six and 14 years of age, will be freely circulated in the French-Canadian province.

"Recently a few copies have been allowed into some of the high schools but the progress is slow. They seem determined to preserve their own way of life."

The magazine which appears nine times a year has a special French section but, even this doesn't seem able to break through Quebec's insulation.

NO RESPONSE

"We have a good thermometer in our contest section which gives us an idea of how the magazine is being received. We have had many entries from French-speaking children in New Brunswick, British Columbia and other places but not a single one from Quebec."

In contrast, she cites the reception of the magazine in another predominantly Roman Catholic area. "In Southern Ireland there are literally strings of Roman Catholic schools that support us."

Working from her office in Toronto, Mrs. Tranter is responsible for a magazine that effectively molds the social service attitude of school children in 70 countries where it is read. Since she took over the editor's chair in March, 1958, she's seen the circulation climb from 65,000 to 85,000.

LOVE OF COUNTRY

One of the most effective means the Red Cross has in its education of school-aged children, the magazine, according to its editor, tries "to foster a love of country in Canadian children and help all its readers to become interested in giving assistance to people they've never seen."

Says Mrs. Tranter, "We try to create a love for all people but, you must admit that it's more difficult to be Good Samaritans to people you don't know... yet, we find that the children respond beautifully." Her magazine also tries to cultivate respect and appreciation for the contributions that new citizens make to Canada. As an example, the latest edition has a story on Dora de Federy Hunt, the Hungarian artist who's now making her home in Canada. Incorporated with the story is a picture of the medal which the artist designed to mark International Co-operation Year.

SENSE OF PRIDE

Designed to promote pride in the achievements of Canadians is a series on this country's early fliers. The latest story in this series is by Frank H. Ellis, West Vancouver, one of Canada's pioneer parachute jumpers.

Although the editor finds her duties are time-demanding, she wouldn't change them.

"I can think of no more satisfying work than that of helping to guide the coming generation toward a life of service and devotion."

INSTANT KNIGHTHOOD

LONDON (UPI) — Queen Elizabeth II yesterday established "Instant Knighthood."

Distinguished Britons heretofore could not use the prefix "sir" until after the official knighthood ceremony. An announcement from the palace yesterday, however, said the Queen wished that knights should hereafter be called "sir" as soon as their names are published in the official honors list.

Will Wear With White Stockings, Trimmed With Roses

TEENS TO ADOPT GRAY DRESS FAD

NEW YORK (UPI) — High school girls, come fall and winter, will pull on "the gray society" dress for dances and teas.

The teen-age fashion figures to be just as versatile in use as is the little black dress in every woman's wardrobe.

Trimmed with lace, the dress takes on a less than subdued look when worn with white stockings embroidered with roses.

The dress was shown at a back-to-school fashion preview staged in New York for the National Retail Merchants' Association by Ingenue magazine.

For classes, he suggested uniform includes a short skirt that hits just a bit below mid-thigh. For the legs: Long Argyle stockings to match ample and baggy Argyle sweaters.

Some of the abbreviated skirts were held up by suspenders, when the skirts were worn with a tailored blouse instead of a sweater, a four-in-hand was added.

Also making the scene will be "kookeries"—a raincoat with a porthole on the sleeve, for ease in checking the wrist watch.

Denon's worn by toddlers, fancy-leg eulotte jumpsuits.

Stockings shaped up as the most colorful and decorated in many a season. They included striped and other patterns. Odd stockings also have the fashion go-ahead. Sample: one green, one red.

On the accessories front, swinging handbags move to the top of the list. They had short or long straps and were styled along shopping bag lines—roomy enough to hold both books and a small clutch.

The silver standard will be the one that prevails in teen-age jewelry. There were silver versions of chain pendants, chain or bangle bracelets, and even pins for the knee socks. For the girls who don't have pierced ears, there are clip-ons with a pierced-ear look.

Also "in" with the high school set will be:

Neckwear that reproduces authentic Scottish classics and items borrowed from the boys or from granny. Many scarves and mufflers co-ordinated with a hat or snood, gloves, mittens and hose. There's also the idea of wearing two co-ordinated scarves at the same time.

Belts that adjust to wearing wherever it is most comfortable. The webbed belt styles were shown at the waistline and below it. Two belts worn at the same time will be a fashion mark.

Hats include the white helmet cap inspired by courages, the squared-off cowboy hat, tams with pom-pom. One, inspired by the Bermuda policeman's top, was tied under the chin.

More of the white boot, as expected since the courages' look is the last word for teens. For discotheque dancing pumps.

IT'S NEVER TOO LATE

Mrs. Ada Clough closed the door of her Vancouver apartment for the last time today and came to Victoria. Her destination was the registrar's office in the Parliament Buildings where she exchanged marriage vows with Frederik J. Knudsen at 1:45 p.m.

What lifts this story into the news bracket is the age of the two principals. Mr. Knudsen looks forward to celebrating his 83th birthday two weeks from today while his bride admits to 85 years.

Acting as the couple's witnesses were the bride's daughter, Mrs. M. Atkinson and Eric Charman.

Mr. and Mrs. Knudsen will make their home at 912 Heywood Avenue and postpone their honeymoon trip until the fall, "when we plan to have a holiday in the south."

The couple's decision to marry was not unexpected. Says Mr. Knudsen, "We've known each other for more than 50 years and we decided that we'd be better together than apart."

Ballet Student Supper Guest

Miss Maurine Lawson, winner of the bursary for study in ballet this summer at the Banff School of Fine Arts given by the Royal Roads Chapter, IODE, was an honor guest at the recent supper meeting of the chapter held in the home of Mrs. M. Zabel on Cavendish Avenue. Her dancing teacher, Miss Wynne Shaw, was also present. Donations were made to the chapter's projects which include: Secondary education, $100; municipal scholarship, $10; national emergency and welfare, $50; Korean project, $50; overseas relief, $25; national shipping fund, $15; Canadian scene, $5; Peace Garden, $1. Reports were given by conveners Mrs. L. Trahan, standard bearer; Mrs. B. Murgatroyd, immigration; Mrs. S. K. Hayward, world affairs; Mrs. B. Shaw, services at home and abroad, and Mrs. P. Angus, ex-service.

Arbutus Toastmistresses Hold Annual Installation

Mrs. T. F. Howe was installed as president of the Arbutus Toastmistress Club at the annual banquet and meeting held in the Tally-ho Travelodge recently.

Other officers for the coming year include Miss Beryl Ince, vice-president; Mrs. D. L. Campbell, recording secretary; Mrs. E. R. Ashbridge, corresponding secretary; Mrs. H. J. Wende, treasurer; Mrs. A. W. Ludlow and Mrs. George Love, club representatives.

Mrs. R. S. Butt presided and grace was said by Mrs. J. L. Brens. Mrs. Wende and Mrs. J. Roberts proposed the toast to the guests and the reply was made by Mrs. J. Roberts.

Mrs. C. H. Dowling introduced Mrs. Sybil McCulloch, installing officer.

Topic-mistress was Mrs. J. W. Gillis, introduced by Mrs. Peter Small.

Toastmistress for the evening was Mrs. M. F. J. Dearman, introduced by Mrs. Gordon Cook.

A speech entitled "Awake" was given by Mrs. H. L. Brigham, previous winner of the international toastmistress council contest. Miss Ince presented Mrs. Brigham with a toastmistress bracelet.

The Robinson's Century Arts trophy was presented to Mrs. Harry Winstone, winner of the club contest, by Mrs. Harold Ker, charter member.

Miss Hattie Jewell won the president's trophy for best toastmistress, but due to her illness, it was accepted by Mrs. Love.

Guest speaker at the dinner was Arthur Mayse, columnist with the Victoria Daily Times.

Votes of thanks were given by Mrs. A. Blake, Mrs. D. J. Kennedy and Mrs. R. W. Walls. Mrs. C. P. Kitch gave the closing thought.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Can't Prevent Aging Hands, But Do Minimize the Effect

Q. What can one do for aging hands, especially bumps on the knuckles?

A. I don't think there is anything one can do for bumps on the knuckles. Many women develop these as the years go by. Of course you can minimize the effect of these by keeping the hands as attractive as possible in every other way, with the use of hand lotions to soften the skin and good manicures. Many women notice the first brown spots on their hands after a summer in the sun. If you are doing a lot of gardening, wear cotton gloves while working with the flowers.

Q. What vitamin has a special effect on the eyes?

A. Vitamin A! A deficiency in this vitamin can cause night blindness (make it difficult to see in the dark).

Q. My measurements are almost right for me except my hips and thighs. Could you please tell me if running will make them smaller? I was wondering about that because athletes run to build muscles and I want to lose. I am 2 1/2 inches too large in the hips and 2 inches too large in the thighs. I have tried to lose these inches by doing exercises, but so far haven't succeeded. Any help you can give me will be appreciated.

A. I doubt very much that you could run enough to make a great difference either way. The stretching-type exercises are best for spot reducing. These do work. I do not know which exercises you have been doing or how faithfully you have done them or for how long. If you or any of my readers would like to have my exercises for slimming the hips and thighs, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for them to me in care of this newspaper.

Q. I am a 16-year-old girl who would appreciate your opinion. I am 5 feet 7 1/2 and weigh 135 pounds (sometimes it goes up to 140 pounds). My mother says I am just right, but of course I disagree with her.

A. Your mother is right. Your weight is right for your height and age. I judge that you have a tendency to gain. Don't let it go higher.

Q. Is this a good exercise to strengthen the arches of the feet? I sit with my heels resting on the floor. Then I curl my toes back toward me and then point them toward the floor as far as I can.

A. Yes. It is a splendid exercise for the arches.

Stratford Opening

The crack of a cannon will signal the beginning of the 13th season of the Stratford Shakespearean Festival, Stratford, Ont., Monday evening. As in past years, the festival opening will be a glittering event which many dignitaries will attend. Leading off the festival which runs until October 2 is "Henry IV", (part 1).

All during the festival there will be a sculpture exhibit on the grounds of the Festival Theatre.

Performances this year are varied to suit most theatre lovers' tastes. Included in the list of plays to be presented, are "Julius Caesar," "Falstaff," "Mahagonny," "The Marriage of Figaro" and "The Cherry Orchard." There will also be performances of Handel's "Solomon," and several concerts.

Aphids?

FIGHT BACK WITH ORTHO!

ISOTOX gets rid of aphids, beetles—250 other tough insect enemies!

You don't have to take it another minute. This very weekend you can fight back and win against the most merciless enemies your garden knows: aphids that suck the life juice from tender young growth, beetles that tear and bite, bugs that gnaw and grind.

The weapon: ORTHO ISOTOX. The secret: a combination of four separate insecticides that battle and beat 250 different insect marauders. It's a concentrated liquid. So concentrated it costs less than 10¢ to make a full gallon diluted for spray. It's as easy as watering and ISOTOX is compatible with most fungicides for combination control of insects and diseases.

Remember the name: ORTHO ISOTOX. You'll find it today—at the place you always buy your garden supplies.

SOLUTION MONDAY

VOICE OF BROADWAY

By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

A big picture deal for Soupy Sales seems to be near at hand. He has offers from three film companies... You may not have heard the last about the Cassius Clay-Sonny Liston match. A Very Important Person in Washington is taking a personal interest in all aspects of the controversial championship mishmash... Eddie Fisher, who's been bouncing back and forth between talent agencies, will try it now with Ashley-Famous. It's his fourth change in two years... The publicity releases about Sandy Dennis being signed for the Hollywood adaptation of "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" indicate the movie will be her cinema debut. Not really. She was in "Splendor in the Grass," the Warren Beatty-Natalie Wood starrer of a few seasons back...

Passengers on a recent Air France flight are still steaming about a half hour delay for what most people would consider a rather frivolous reason: the Shah of Iran wanted to play cards. His Majesty requested that two of the aircraft's seats be unscrewed and turned around to face two other seats, so he and Queen Farah could play bridge with two members of the royal entourage. A worker made the change while the airline's other customers waited and fumed.

Friends of a lovely singer are worried about her recent very serious illness... The saddest story in Movieland stars a former screen favorite who now holds little appeal for his fans and even less for producers. He's trying to drown his unhappiness in alcohol, and spends hours reading back issues of the fan magazines that fawned over him when he was everybody's darling. Now he's old—28... A former Cuban ambassador to a European country is currently working as an extra in "Dr. Zhivago" in Madrid.

Lionel Hampton has temporarily shelved his big band to take an all-star act on the road because there are many clubs and lounges with stages too small to hold Hampton's full crew. The group will kick off the tour with a July 5 date at London House in Chicago... Watch for an announcement concerning a new pill that may help solve the tragic problems of narcotics addiction. It's so new they haven't even named it yet, but a New York doctor is working on it in conjunction with the Federal Narcotics Hospital in Lexington, Ky. Not a substitute for opiates, it will make the user impervious to the effects of drugs as long as he continues taking it.

What Gases on Sun
Wins World Atlas

Winner of a World Book Atlas, Brenda Reed, 684 Baker Street, is a regular reader of the Ask Andy column in The Times.

"It's one of the most interesting columns," she said. "My mother reads it too, and my brother, Grant, keeps a scrap book of the Ask Andy questions and answers."

She won the award for submitting the question—"What are the gases on the sun?"

A grade V pupil, Brenda attends Glanford Elementary School. She is fond of science, arithmetic, drawing and reading adventure stories.

She is a member of the Glanford Girl Guide Pack. She is a good swimmer and recently was awarded the Red Cross intermediate certificate for swimming.

Brenda will soon be leaving Victoria to live in Cornwallis, Nova Scotia. Her father is a member of the Royal Canadian Navy, and has been posted there.

BRENDA
GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. He will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions by adults, in answer to their inquiries. The youngest who ask the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Flammarion Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a World Book Atlas to Brenda Reed, age 10, of Victoria, B.C., Canada, for her question:

What are the gases of the sun?

All the solid, liquid and gaseous substances of the earth are built from about 92 different atoms. These are the earth's basic chemical elements. The sun also is built from a number of basic chemical elements, though all of them are in the form of gases. Experts identify the sun's gases with an instrument called the spectrograph, and some time ago they discovered in the sun an element unknown upon the earth. They named it helium from an ancient name for the sun, and later small quantities of the sunny element were discovered on the earth.

More than 60 of the earth's basic elements have been discovered to be present in the gases of the sun. Most of the flaming solar gas is hydrogen and helium, but traces of oxygen and carbon and most of earth's other elements also have been detected. The sun also may contain short-lived, radioactive elements that do not occur normally upon the earth.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Sandra Collins, age 12, of Gastonia, N.C., for her question:

How did the secretary bird get its name?

He was not named for helping out in the office. And if in these modern times we had to find another common name for him, he would not be called the secretary bird. This tall African bird was named in the last century, and the reason for his odd name is now out of date.

Nowadays we would not think of trying to run an office without at least one typewriter. These neat and speedy writing machines gradually came into use during the past century. Before this happy occurrence all secretarial work was done by hand. The fountain pen has been in use for only a few generations. Before its invention, writing was done by dipping a pen with a steel nib into a bottle of ink.

VERNA COLLETT
... "retiring"

Verna Takes Another Detour

By DON DINGWALL
DUNCAN — When she quit the then Victoria College three years ago, Verna Collett was set on a teaching career.

Instead, she wound up driving a bus.

She wasn't the first woman bus driver, but she was first driver of the first B.C. bookmobile.

A petite 5'2", Verna became a fairly godmother to grade 2-7 students in the Cowichan school district. For three years she has watched with pride as their reading habits improved.

Now she is "retiring." Verna says: "I want to start a family of my own." She also has plans to return to university.

"Some day I'll get into teaching," she says.

Verna married two years ago and since then has commuted daily to Duncan from her Victoria home, 4202 Cedar Glen.

SKATER PAM MAKES METCHOSIN TRIP TWICE

'Just to See if I Could Do It'

Pamula Wallace doesn't believe in taking things easy. Thursday she roller-skated 18 miles from her Metchosin home to the Legislative Buildings and back — not once — but twice — just to see if I could do it.

And after wheeling through her 36-mile marathon she admits she was a mighty tired teen-ager.

The 17-year-old covered the nine-mile route from Metchosin to the Legislative Buildings four times in about five hours. "I can hardly walk," Pam admitted ruefully. "No more skates for me."

Thursday night found Pam at home, 750 Bexhill, resting her blistered feet and looking forward to a couple of days off from her waitressing job at Bob's Burgers, 1681 Island Highway.

In eye-catching shorts and wearing a sign asking passing motorists to "Please Be Patient" she took the journey all in her stride.

She left her Triangle Mountain starting point on Sooke Road shortly before eight Thursday morning and found herself on the Buildings steps by 9:30.

Travelling the route back along Douglas Street and the Trans-Canada Highway, Pam slowed down slightly.

But when home was reached at the end of the trek, said Pam, "I just kept going."

And before she could collect the bets she had won on the marathon, she had skated all the way back to the Buildings.

Asked what was in her mind along the 48-mile route, Pam replied:

"I just thought about reaching the end."

But she created some excitement along the way for motorists and passers-by.

"Most of them wished me luck," said Pam.

No nagging backache!

She used to be bothered by backaches and tired feeling. When she learned that irritation of the bladder and urinary tract can result in backache and tired feeling, she took Dodd's Kidney Pills. Smart girl. Dodd's Pills stimulate the kidneys to help relieve the condition causing the backache and tired feeling. Soon she felt better — rested better. If you are bothered by backache, Dodd's Kidney Pills may help you, too. You can depend on Dodd's.

Flypast Policy Under Review, Says Hellyer

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence department regulations prohibiting RCAF aircraft from conducting flypasts at municipal fairs and other events are under review to determine whether they can be relaxed, Defence Minister Hellyer said Thursday.

The ruling affects Voodoo fighter aircraft from RCAF Comox.

Mr. Hellyer told Social Credit leader Thompson that the new regulations, permitting flypasts at national and international air shows had been in effect for 1½ years.

Presto! New Centre Created Next Week

British Columbia's first "instant municipality" will be born on Wednesday in the district of Port Alice.

Making the announcement Thursday Municipal Affairs

Minister Dan Campbell said it is the first time a municipality has had a comprehensive development plan since its inception.

The plan covers a five-mile stretch of shore on the east side of Neroutsos Inlet on northern Vancouver Island. Three settlements exist in the area.

To the south Port Alice, site of Rayonier's giant pulp mill, has been zoned an industrial area.

1,500 PERSONS

Two miles north is Rumble Beach where a model townsite for a population of 1,500 has been planned with schools and a fully-equipped shopping and recreation centre.

There is a beach in front of the townsite and several offshore islands which have been reserved for recreation purposes.

One mile further north is the logging community of Jeune Landing which is to be zoned for industry and wholesale distribution.

GREEN BELT

The hills behind the townsite will provide a permanent green belt between the town and industrial sites.

Mr. Campbell said the "open space forest land" would provide a buffer between the residential and industrial area.

The zoning will come into effect as soon as the new district receives its letters patent from Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes next Wednesday.

The lieutenant-governor will travel to the Port Alice area on RCN destroyer escort HMCS Mackenzie on Tuesday, accompanied by Mr. Campbell.

Receiving the letters patent will be the new municipality's first council meeting on Wednesday.

4 SURVIVE PLANE FLIP

CAMPBELL RIVER — Four persons escaped uninjured when their amphibious aircraft flipped over while landing on Buttle Lake this week.

The plane sank after being caught in a combination of a strong cross-wind and high waves.

Pilot Harvey Hahn, and three miners being flown to the Western Mines site at the south end of the lake, managed to scramble clear.

They were picked up by a small boat from the Western Mines dock.

The plane, owned by Trans-Mountain Airlines, was brought out of the lake by barge.

It was carried to Campbell River for inspection and repairs.

OF DRAMATIC FLIGHT

'Man Can Control Himself in Space'

SPACE CENTRE, Houston (UPI)—Astronaut Edward White said today his 20-minute spacewalk outside the Gemini-4 capsule proved "man can control himself in space," preferably with a longer lifeline and more space-gun fuel than he had.

Command pilot James McDivitt reported that he sighted three satellites in space during the four-day, 62-orbit flight.

The first of these "mystery" satellites had "big arms" and he saw it for about 30 seconds.

He saw a second one at night and a third was too far away to be identified.

Telling the world details of their flight at a news conference in the manned spacecraft centre, the two relaxed space heroes laughed and quipped, and reported that if they had any difficulty it was in getting enough sleep.

"I was sleepy and hungry at times," McDivitt said, "but I felt fine."

"The only time I felt discomfort was when I was hungry," said White.

White described his 20-minute spacewalk with a space gun—man's first self-propelled mission in space. He disclosed that he used the space gun to jet himself "right out of the capsule" and float into the void at the end of a 25-foot lifeline.

"I enjoyed EVA (extra-vehicular activity) very much," White said. "I can tell you honestly I was sorry to see it draw to a close."

He told newsmen he felt man could work longer than four days floating alone in space.

"Yes," he said, "I would have liked to have had a longer tether, but more than that, I would have liked to have had about 10 times as much propellant," for the space gun.

He said he deliberately used up the compressed oxygen gun fuel and worked only on the tether after that—which sometimes tended to swing him around while McDivitt kept the 18-foot capsule steady.

McDivitt said he did not use the "thrusters" (rockets) whenever he could not see White through the windshield "because I didn't want to use them if White was sitting on them."

White disclosed that he carried with him a St. Christopher medal, a cross, and a Star of David, representing the religions he "knew something about."

"I had a great faith in my own God," the 34-year-old astronaut said simply.

While the spectacular films of his 20-minute space stroll were shown to the audience, White gave a running commentary on what he did and how he felt waiting through space, protected only by a space suit and helmet.

He used the lifeline "to pull myself down on the spacecraft."

"I was actually walking on the spacecraft," he said.

"I walked three or four steps. I was able actually to walk right up the spacecraft."

He said a thought dashed through his head as he thought that he was linked to earth by radio.

"What do you say to 194 million people," White said was the question that went through his head.

"The view from up there is just something spectacular," White reported.

He explained why he spent longer than scheduled walking in space—a delay that brought sharp orders from the ground to "get back in."

He said he had to spend about five minutes detaching the camera and organizing his gear to slide back into the capsule.

McDivitt said of the entire four-day voyage:

"Eating and sleeping in space was just as difficult up there as it was down here (on earth)."

He said it was hard to sleep on the first part of the flight partly because of "radio noise."

McDivitt said he made "drastic" efforts to rendezvous with the burned-out second-stage booster rocket on the first orbit after lift-off from Cape Kennedy on June 3.

The rendezvous attempt failed, but not because McDivitt did not try.

"I trusted (used rockets) toward the booster," McDivitt said.

"My initial thrust wasn't enough and I thrust again. It became apparent to me that the booster and I weren't in the same orbit. We started falling rapidly away," McDivitt said.

Laughing, the crew-cut McDivitt said he and White found they had no trouble with their healthy appetites.

"We found we could eat just as much in space," he said.

Failure of a million-dollar flight computer was "a blow to my pride," McDivitt said. He wanted to control the craft down to its splashdown Monday at the end of the 62nd orbit.

But the failure forced a gracefully-controlled descent.

"I wanted to land on the elevator" of the recovery aircraft carrier USS Wasp's deck he said, laughing.

Actually the splashdown was

Cutoff Rule Passed

OTTAWA (CP)—The three minority parties joined with the government today to approve a new guillotine rule that will permit cabinet ministers to set time limits on legislation debates.

As the 15-day debate on sweeping reforms to rules and procedures neared a close, the report of a special nine-man committee was passed 103 to 33 with most Conservatives and one New Democrat opposing.

Gordon Churchill (PC—Winnipeg South Centre) warned that the new rule will increase the power of the cabinet to the detriment of backbenchers. Government and minority party spokesmen disagreed.

The new rule guarantees a minimum of six days debate on any bill if an all-party business committee cannot agree to longer or shorter lengths for the debate.

Voting for the rule change were 73 Liberals, three Conservatives, 12 NDP members, five Social Credit MPs and 10 Creditists.

The three Conservatives who broke with the party line were R. G. L. Fairweather (Royal), Eloise Jones (Saskatoon) and Paul Martineau (Pontiac—Témiscamingue).

The opposition consisted of 32 Conservatives and Arnold Peters (NDP—Timiskaming).

Standings in the 265-seat Commons: Liberals 123, Conservatives 93, New Democrats 18, Creditists 13, Social Credit nine, Independent two, vacant one.

STRONGLY OPPOSED

The guillotine was the most controversial change and was strongly opposed for several days by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, absent today on a speaking engagement.

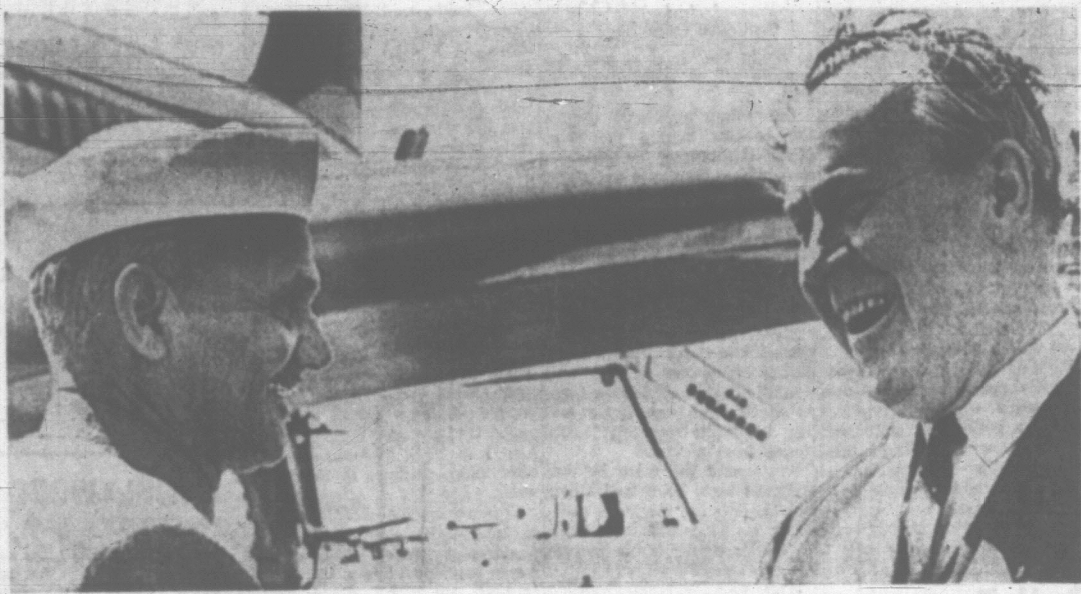

The government maintained that an allocation-of-time rule was vital to reform and approval of the rule was taken as a question of confidence.

Inter-party agreement was reached Tuesday to send the rule to a special committee that could try until today to work out changes to meet some fears of opposition members.

The only change recommended in the report, opposed by the three Conservatives on the committee, was to add up to four hours of debating time after the 10 p.m. adjournment hour on third reading of bills so that more backbenchers would have a chance to speak.

The changes provide for de-

All Smiles As Prime Minister Pearson Grooms India's Shastri

HUNTSVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said today the federal government's proposal to prohibit ownership of Canadian daily newspapers constitutes "a flagrant and dangerous violation" of freedom of the press.

It could damage the democratic process itself and open the way for "thought control" of radio and television.

The Conservative party leader, speaking to a Kinsman convention, said "the philosophy of the bureaucrats" lay behind government plans to prohibit foreign ownership of newspapers by disallowing for tax purposes any advertising expenditures in such publications.

French, Germans To Co-Operate

BONN (Reuters)—France and West Germany were reported to have agreed today on increased co-operation in defence projects as President de Gaulle and Chancellor Erhard met here.

De Gaulle, who arrived this morning, immediately began two days of talks with the West German leader on NATO and European problems.

At simultaneous ministerial talks France showed readiness to compromise in the key ques-

PEARSON, SHASTRI

Viet Nam, Arms Highlight Talks

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Ministers Shastri of India and Pearson of Canada today exchanged ideas on possible means of achieving a ceasefire in Viet Nam and of getting negotiations started.

Spokesmen for the two leaders declined, for the time being at least, to say what conclusions, if any, were reached. Mr. Shastri and Mr. Pearson,

WELL-KNOWN B.C. newspaperman John Kirkwood has been appointed as Far Eastern correspondent for the Victoria Daily Times and other newspapers of the FP group. Mr. Kirkwood will cover Asian affairs from his base in the "listening post of the Orient," Hong Kong. His first report, on inter-racial conflict in Malaysia, appears today on page 5.

Russia and North Viet Nam in the Southeast Asia situation. Mr. Shastri recently visited Moscow.

Also discussed in connection with Viet Nam were the problems of the International Truce Supervisory Commission of which India, Canada and Poland are the members.

The prime ministers also discussed means of preventing the spread of nuclear weapons.

CHANGE POLICY

Mr. Pearson informed Mr. Shastri about Canada's recent change in policy in the sale of uranium to other countries. Sales will be made only to countries which agree to allow Canadian inspection to make sure the uranium is being used for peaceful purposes only.

Other subjects discussed included the best forum for effective disarmament negotiations and the financial crisis in the United Nations with emphasis on the importance of enabling the General Assembly to function this fall.

Mr. Shastri has called for a cessation of U.S. air strikes against Communist North Viet Nam.

Heavy Losses In Viet Battle

RAID PAUSE 'DISCUSSED' WITH JOHNSON

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson indicated in the Commons today that the government is discussing with President Johnson the possibility of a new pause in American air strikes in North Viet Nam.

External Affairs Minister Martin told the Commons Thursday that he hoped the bombing raids would be suspended in the hope it would lead to peace talks in Viet Nam.

Paul Martineau (PC—Pontiac-Témiscamingue) asked Mr. Pearson today whether Mr. Martin's hope is the subject of negotiations between the Canadian government and the U.S. president.

"There are no negotiations," the prime minister replied. "We have discussed these matters with the president of the United States."

U.S. Failing In Viet Nam Says Pravda

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Russia today launched its first authoritative attack on the U.S. decision to allow American troops to give combat support on request in South Viet Nam.

Pravda, Communist party newspaper, said in an editorial that "hypocritical statements about peace-loving aims" doesn't hide the Pentagon's plans to widen the war.

Despite all its efforts, the editorial said, the U.S. is suffering continuous defeats in Viet Nam, and the "liberated areas" are growing larger each day.

It said U.S. bombing of North Viet Nam has failed because American military leaders did not count on "the unshakable will to win of the people of a socialist country."

These defeats mean the U.S. is frantically seeking new means to win the war and is planning to use its army, navy and air force in a combat roll, the editorial said.

Quat Resigns As Premier

SAIGON (UPI)—Government troops drove the Viet Cong out of Dong Xoai today in one of the bitterest battles of the war. The government was feared to have suffered as many as 500 casualties but the enemy losses were greater—perhaps 700 killed and wounded.

Eight Americans were killed today when their plane crashed in the central highlands far to the north of Dong Xoai. The fighting at Dong Xoai cost the Americans nine known dead, 17 missing and 15 wounded—the highest single battle loss.

In Saigon the government of Premier Phan Huy Quat has resigned.

A government spokesman said Quat had decided to "hand back the reins of government to the military."

NO ACCURATE COUNT

There still was no accurate count of Vietnamese casualties but the number was expected to be extremely high. Military sources said most of the original 400 defenders of the town, 60 miles north of Saigon, were wounded or dead. The final toll including the relief column was expected to be over 500.

Government reports said 300 Viet Cong were killed during the battle and another 400 killed as result of heavy American air strikes against the retreating Communists three to four miles north of Dong Xoai.

Two American military advisers were with the last battalion. The last word from the force was a radio report from one of the Americans at 10:30 a.m. Thursday when he radioed for help saying the unit was facing vastly superior numbers of Viet Cong.

In the air war, carrier-based American navy planes kept up the pressure on North Viet Nam in three separate missions. Planes from the carrier Midway

'It Was Really Hell' When Viet Cong Came

SAIGON (AP)—"It was really hell for 14 hours but I wouldn't want to live through those 45 minutes again," said 2nd Lieut. Charles Williams of Fayetteville, N.C.

Williams, 31, was in charge of the U.S. Army Special Forces camp that Communist guerrillas overran at Dong Xoai Thursday. He was sleeping in a building with seven other Americans when the Viet Cong began shelling the camp with mortars.

"Every American was either killed or wounded," he said from a hospital bed in Saigon. "We suffered 50 per cent of our casualties during the initial barrage."

Williams suffered shrapnel wounds in the arms and legs. "My first reaction was to get out of there, get the troops organized and repel the attack," he said. "We were in no position to be incapacitated. It was a matter of life and death."

"My men were wounded and dying or already dead. It was mass confusion."

Williams said nearly all of about 100 South Vietnamese troops with him were wiped out in that futile effort to hold the camp.

"We managed to beat them back until daylight. But then they began coming over the walls. Snipers were inside the compound."

The survivors abandoned the camp at dawn and made a break for the district post.

Williams said he and other Americans made a last-ditch stand there for six hours until they were evacuated Thursday afternoon.

NEW EDITION OFF PRESS
... Eric, Philip look it over.

Spelling Is Bad (Montans, Tird) But Paper Sells

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—The spelling is bad, but the news is told and the paper sells. This is the story of nine-year-old Philip Lee's Newsletter, which he publishes in suburban College Park when the mood strikes him.

His brother Eric, 6, is circulation manager. Philip reported in the Newsletter that Eric enters Grade 2 in September and adds:

"He is pretty smart. The editor has taute him all he knows."

Philip's mother, Mrs. George Lee, cuts his stencils for him, retaining his original spelling, and St. Mary's Episcopal (Anglican) Church provides a mimeograph machine. Philip's topics cover a wide range, from the neighborhood to Viet Nam.

For a nickel, you can read these items from Philip's latest edition:

"Sister Annuciata, a nun ... is sick and tird at St. Josephs Hospital. She had an operation for very close veins. She is tird because she has been on her feet for 50 yrs. God bless her."

"Mrs. Grace Olds ... broke her foot and she is very unhappy about it."

Reporting the upcoming marriage of Miss Laura Slade and Lieut. Richard B. Skelton, Philip writes: "Everybody will be dressed up fine specially her grandmother Mrs. A. L. Slade who says she will look finer than anyone cept the bride. They will get married ... and will live happily ever after."

Noting that Glenada Kimsey "studies underwater caves and climbs montans," Philip concludes: "She is brave for a girl."

In an editorial on Viet Nam, Philip supports the U.S.

position there, reasoning, "if some boys were picking on my brother Eric, I would help him."

Mrs. Frankie Morgan was a substitute teacher the other day and Philip reported, "she was very tird at the end of the day and said that teachers are not paid anuf money."

position there, reasoning, "if some boys were picking on my brother Eric, I would help him."

Mrs. Frankie Morgan was a substitute teacher the other day and Philip reported, "she was very tird at the end of the day and said that teachers are not paid anuf money."

Mrs. F. K. Beers visited the "Chirokey" Indians in North Carolina and "a nice Indian told Mrs. Beers that she talked a lot for a white lady but he liked her."

Philip's venture into the publishing field began last March when he needed money to buy his brother a birthday present. Since then he's put out four editions—and sold 110 copies of the last one.

"Philip's editorials," his mother says, "generally are on things he feels very strong about—such as not being able to talk in the bathroom at school. He said it was too much like the Nazis. Philip spelled it Notsees."

Mrs. Lee said Philip's original spellings haven't disturbed his readers, except perhaps his father who is an English teacher.

Them astronauts make th' universe sound like fun.

If the war in Viet Nam gits any worse they're goin' t' hev t' declare it.

With them new speed-up rules, y' e'd say Parliament is cuttin' off its noise despite its pace.

Arthur Mayse

Today in the woods northeast of Port Hardy, a young summer logger is setting chokers for MacMillan-Bloedel. That's a rugged job, but the University of Victoria student who holds it down is a husky specimen.

When September comes, he expects to return to Uvic as a sophomore. His eligibility is established; he scored a clean pass in all his freshman courses.

'Kelly,' the starving but stubbornly determined boy to whom I introduced you in this corner last November, has the world by the tail on a downhill haul.

This, of course, didn't just happen. It was made possible by you who read of his plight here, and came to his rescue. In less than 48 hours, you provided Kelly with the home and the funds he needed to see him through. For this generous help in need, Kelly, and I, will be forever grateful.

To say that I'm pleased Kelly made the grade against such mountainous handicaps as late registration, lack of books and simple malnutrition isn't enough.

Much more than my own hopes were riding on him.

The Victoria woman who brought his case to my attention when he was struggling along on a diet of borrowed apples and tapwater hoped most earnestly that he would see his chance well.

So, I'm sure, did you who gave him that chance.

You bought him the books he lacked.

You made up the fees which a summer operation and a winter job that failed to materialize had placed hopelessly beyond his reach.

You saw to it that he received the medical care and dental surgery that he needed.

You bought him clothes he lacked. You supplied him with a sternly-regulated allowance for transportation, cafeteria coffee and Friday night dates with the girl who, when his affairs were at their blackest, spared him sandwiches from her lunch.

You met the swarming extra expenses of the academic year as these came up.

Beyond all this, you offered him spare-time work. I was against him taking it. For a student who had started a long way back of scratch, catching up and holding his own seemed job enough.

To knock out young people—to grumble about their wild ways and wrong-headed attitudes—is easy. To demonstrate faith in their soundness comes harder. But this you did; and Kelly hasn't let you down.

It is my own earnest hope that he, and you, have also made the road somewhat easier for those of his stamp who hunger for a university education.

These are the so-called 'marginal' students, the kids whose efforts will never win them more than a bare pass. The scholarships and bursaries don't go to them. They make it on their own, or with the help of parents, or through a loan. In Kelly's case, the federal student loan was denied him. He was not considered a sound risk by university officers who administer the loan in Victoria and Vancouver.

This puzzles me. It smacks of ivory tower whimsy. It is also in direct contravention of the terms of the loan as published on the authority of federal finance minister Walter L. Gordon.

Under those terms, the student is considered to have attained a satisfactory scholastic standing if he is accepted for enrollment by a designated institution.

University of Victoria is a 'designated institution'. Kelly had been accepted for enrollment. But he was refused a federal loan.

It is not my intention here to nit-pick at a young university still finding its feet. Nevertheless, I think those who support it through their taxes and their donations to its building fund deserve a clear statement of policy.

Is the ideal to recruit the well-heeled and scholarly in an academic closed shop, or is there to be room also in those halls for our Kellys?

Truck Crash Washes Out Pot Display

Pots and pans clattered along a Port Alberni street today when a large chipping truck smashed it away into the front of a hardware store.

The incident happened on busy Third Avenue but no-one was seriously hurt.

The truck, driven by Paul Henri, of 111 Fifth Avenue, swerved to miss a car.

HALF IN STORE

Rows of buckets and pans were scattered along the road and sidewalk as the truck ground to a halt half in and half out of the store.

Mr. Henri climbed out of his truck uninjured.

Police identified him as Piara Lalji, of Anderson Avenue, Port Alberni.

Total damage was estimated at $7,000.

Federalists Arriving For Meeting

More than 100 delegates are arriving here this evening to attend the national annual general meeting of the World Federalists of Canada.

The meeting will continue through Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

Keynote speaker will be Rt. Hon. the Baroness Summerskill of Ken Wood, better known as Dr. Edith Summerskill, Britain's minister of health in the former Labor government.

As a member of Clement Attlee's cabinet, she set up the comprehensive social insurance system now operating in Britain and found time to write three books as well as raise a family.

Baroness Summerskill will speak at a public meeting in the McPherson Playhouse Monday at 8 p.m.

She will also address a convention luncheon Sunday from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m.

Reports of officers will be received Saturday at 9:30 a.m. Working committees will be in session from 10:30 a.m. on and reports of the parliamentary group will be heard at 2 p.m.

ELECTION SUNDAY

The election of officers will take place Sunday from 9 a.m. to 10:30 a.m.

Prof. C. S. Burchill of Victoria is president of the World Federalists of Canada, described as a non-partisan, non-sectarian, non-profit organization of citizens working for peace through the establishment of enforceable world law.

RVYC Skippers To Compete In July Log Race

Two Royal Victoria Yacht Club skippers have signed up for the Van Isle speed log race next month.

They are James Beebe and Monte Porter who will join about 40 other powerboatmen from B.C., Washington and Oregon cities.

The race begins in Nanaimo July 17. It will be held in two sections—from Nanaimo to Bull Harbor at the island's northern tip and from Bull Harbor to Victoria.

Most of the boats expect to drop out for the second leg which will take about two weeks.

On the trip down the island's west coast, yachtmen will journey from inlet to inlet and time will be set aside for fishing and picnics en route.

In a predicted log race, competitors attempt to forecast their traveling times between predetermined checkpoints.

Long-Service Akela Dies Here at 42

Funeral services were held today for Mrs. Jean Shemilt, 5261 Parker Ave., who served 25 years as a Wolf Cub leader in the city's Boy Scout movement.

She died Tuesday, age 42.

Mrs. Shemilt was born in Vancouver but was educated here. As a girl she joined the Brownies and for four years was an ardent member of Cloverdale Guide Company.

This association launched her into her career as a leader in the scout organization which spanned 25 years.

She began in 1938 and served as leader of First Parkdale, North Quadra, First Elks Own B, Third Nanaimo, Forty-ninth Victoria and Fifth Cordova Bay B packs.

In 1947 she received the Medal of Merit, awarded by the Chief Scout of Canada for outstanding leadership in the Scout movement.

In March this year Mrs. Shemilt received a long service award from the National Council of Boy Scouts.

Besides scouting, Mrs. Shemilt was a playground director at Cordova Bay.

Punching, Kicking Brings Jail Term

A Vancouver man was sent to jail today for six months for what the magistrate described as a "contemptible" assault on another man.

James Miller was convicted after a trial of punching a man on Johnson Street, May 26, and then kicking him when he was on the ground.

Magistrate William Ostler said he has nothing but contempt for anyone who kicks in a fight, "particularly when he kicks someone in the face."

He said Miller "might have killed" his victim. The accused has a record for breaking and entering and assaulting a police officer.

STUDENTS AT OAK RAY Senior Secondary School were presented with achievement awards at a prize-giving ceremony before a full assembly today.

and Judy Cameron, who received book awards for academic leadership in the Grade 12 class.

Margaret Oliver and Jean Robertson took the girls' sportsmanship trophy and Larry Corbett the Acland Cup for boys' sportsmanship. (Times Photo by Bill Halkett.)

POOL, GREEN OR MUSEUM IN C. Saanich

Central Saanich has culled its suggested centennial projects down to three.

The centennial committee Thursday agreed to settle for either a swimming pool, a bowling green or a building to house pioneer farm machinery and relics.

The final choice will be made when a special committee reports back on costs for each.

The committee is composed of Russell Bompas, L. R. Farrell and K. C. Mollett.

Tri-U Team Going East To Canvass

William H. Armstrong of Victoria will join three other officials of the Three Universities Capital Fund Drive for a canvass of eastern firms next week.

Leaving with him Monday will be general co-chairman Allan M. McGavin and Cyrus H. McLean and major gifts chairman A. John Ellis.

Mr. Armstrong is the Island division chairman.

The delegation will be working from the base of more than $5 million already pledged to the fund from eastern donors.

Calls will be made by appointment to firms with head offices in Toronto, Hamilton, London and Kitchener.

More than 100 firms with interests in B.C. will be covered by the quartet.

No meeting with groups have been arranged.

BURGLAR CAUGHT IN ACT

Window Broken In Legal Offices

A burglar was caught red-handed by police when he broke into downtown legal offices shortly before 11 Thursday night.

Alex Topper, no fixed address, pleaded guilty today to breaking and entering the premises of Clay, MacFarlane, Ellis and Popham at 750 Courtney.

Constable Lorne Shandley said he found Topper in a washroom when he checked the premises after a window was found broken.

He said he opened the door and "I saw Topper's reflection in the mirror. He said 'You have me.'"

Crown Prosecutor Peter Birckett said Topper has admitted to previous convictions for breaking and entering and possession of stolen property.

He was remanded to Monday for sentence.

$1.3 Million Contract Awarded To City's Farmer Construction

Contract for a $1,386,700 federal building in Victoria has been awarded to Farmer Construction Ltd. It was learned today.

The two-storey building, to house the Unemployment Insurance Commission and the Department of Revenue, is scheduled for completion in 14 months. Work will start "almost immediately."

Farmer Construction submitted the lowest of three tenders which were opened March 31.

The highest was $1,416,500. Plans and specifications were prepared by architects Wade, Stockhill and Armour of Victoria and Vancouver who will supervise the construction.

The building, which includes a penthouse and full basement, will be located on the east side of Vancouver Street between Pandora Avenue and Johnson Street.

The main entrance will be on Vancouver Street to service the UIC Commission and the National Revenue entrance will open on Pandora.

Parking facilities for 50 cars will be included on the building site.

The outside of the building will be made of local grey granite on a base course, with precast panels incorporating windows.

All floors in office areas will be covered with heavy gauge linoleum and the outer walls will be painted plaster. Interior partitions to the general office areas will be prefabricated metal and glass units. The penthouse will enclose the mechanical facilities for the building.

GOAT-KILLING DOG HUNTED BY SPCA IN COLWOOD AREA

SPCA officials are looking for a killer dog in the Colwood area.

The dog Thursday night attacked a goat grazing at 11 Midwood.

The goat had to be shot this morning.

The dog had ripped the animal's throat and stomach and torn chunks of flesh off the legs and body.

Officials believe the dog, a German shepherd with a black-tipped tail, lives in the vicinity.

They are worried in case it attacks other domestic animals having once tasted blood.

The goat was owned by Mrs. Vivien Morris.

Topics of Day

The intermediate section of the junior branch of the Victoria Natural History Society will meet on Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at the Monterey parking lot for a field trip to Triangle Hill off the Sooke Highway.

Victoria Motor Sports Club will hold a gymkhana on the parking lot of Royal Oak Shopping Centre on Sunday.

After registering at 11 a.m., drivers will test their skill on a specially laid-out obstacle course.

There will also be time trials. Cost of entry is 50 cents.

Young dance student, Andrea Martin, 12, was disappointed when The Times inadvertently left her name off a list of successful candidates in the Royal Academy of Dancing examinations, published Wednesday.

She was highly commended for her performance in the grade two ballet exam.

Andrea, a grade six student at George Jay Elementary school, has studied ballet at the Theatrical Arts Studio for five years.

Francis N. Hamilton picked up two awards at the University of Washington School of Medicine honors day.

The former Victoria student is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Hamilton, 2650 Beach Drive.

Mr. Hamilton was presented with the Eli Lilly Fellowship in anesthesiology research and a John and Mary Wilson Scholarship prize.

He is a graduate of Victoria High School and University of Victoria.

Two Brannan Lake reform school boys were caught today after 12 hours freedom.

The boys, aged 15 and 16, were found asleep in a car at Wellington, just outside Nanaimo.

They escaped from the school Thursday night dressed in regulation khaki uniform.

Police said the two boys did not appear to have committed any offences during their freedom.

Capt. Robert M. Battles, 46, will become Commodore Superintendent of HMC Dockyard July 31 it was learned today.

His appointment to this position was announced earlier this year by the defence department.

Capt. Battles is currently serving as manager of ship repair activity on the Pacific coast.

Two Drivers Negligent, Jury Rules

A four-man coroner's jury urged in B.C. Assize Court here today that permanent vehicle testing stations should be set up in British Columbia.

The jury recommended "all cars be tested for safe operation" after finding that Edward G. Robertson, 32, of 730 Lindsay, met his death on Jan. 23 due to negligence by Robertson and the driver of another car, a minor.

There was no mention of a mechanical fault in either of the cars involved.

The jury's verdict had been delayed since Feb. 8 because the original six-man jury at a coroner's inquest could not agree on its verdict regarding negligence.

Coroner Edmund Jorre de St. Jorre therefore adjourned the inquest and, under the Canada Evidence Act, referred it to the B.C. Assize Court.

FIRST TIME

Courthouse officials said it was the first time in B.C. history, so far as they knew, that such a step has been taken.

But the Coroner's Act states specifically that, if a coroner's jury fails to agree on its verdict, the coroner may refer the inquest to the Assize Court.

When the case reopened in Assize Court this morning, only four of the original six jurors were present.

Lloyd G. McKenzie, QC, representing the crown, said the two other jurors were not now available and one of the two had dissented on the verdict. He had agreed on the cause of death but did not agree on whether blame should be attached.

Mr. Justice R. A. Wootton then asked the four remaining jurors to retire and consider their verdict anew.

When they returned 15 minutes later, foreman Vance Gill said:

"Our decision is that death was due to negligence on the part of Robertson, the deceased, and the driver of the death car."

"We attach a recommendation that permanent vehicle testing stations be set up and all cars be tested for safe operation."

Mr. Justice Wootton thanked the jurors for concluding the case and dismissed the court.

The deceased, Edward G. Robertson, was fatally injured at the junction of Interurban and Dumesque on a snowy night on Jan. 23.

As he attempted to get his car out of a ditch, the car was struck by another car which came along as Robertson was working on it.

A shipyard laborer and RCAF veteran, Robertson was once a Golden Gloves Champion of Vancouver Island.

It Rained! And There's More Coming

The weather system which brought Victoria its first amounts of measurable precipitation since May 19 passed by today.

But keep your broom handy.

Another system is due Saturday bringing cloudy weather and showery periods. Clearing and sunshine is forecast for Sunday, weatherman Bill Macdonald said today.

Since Thursday evening, 27 inches of rain has fallen on the city. Eight one-hundredths of an inch fell May 19 and a trace was recorded May 23.

However, Victorians are still well ahead of last year in sunshine. So far 123.5 hours have been recorded compared to 43.6 in 1964.

Normal for this point in June is 93.6 hours.

GRAIN SALE ON TARGET

WINNIPEG (CP)—Canada's wheat sales this year are well on the way to the 400,000,000-bushel mark, Trade Minister Sharp said today.

This would meet the first-year target of the government's three-year goal of selling 1,200,000,000 bushels, he said.

Weather Vessel Launching Soon

VANCOUVER (CP)—The new $11,000,000 weather and oceanographic ship Vancouver, now building at Burrard Dry Dock for the Department of Transport, will be launched June 29.

She should be ready for sea duty in June, 1966, shipyard officials said Thursday.

She and a sister-ship, to be named Quadra, will replace the present weather ships, St. Catharines and Stonetown, which are former naval frigates. They man weather station "Papa" 900 miles out in the Pacific west of Vancouver Island. Sponsor for the new ship will be Mrs. Arthur Laing, wife of the minister of northern affairs and natural resources.

The Vancouver will have a full load displacement of 5,400 tons and will be the largest ship in the Canadian Coast Guard fleet. She is 404 feet long, will have a range of 8,400 miles at 14 knots, and will have a total complement of 100 men. Her top speed will be 18 knots.

An important innovation will be a new type of balloon tracking radar capable of automatic tracking of meteorological balloons up to a range of 100,000 feet. The new radar will also be able to detect storms as far away as 200 miles and locate aircraft within a radius of 70 miles. The ship will carry a helicopter.

Since the weather ship will be on station for six weeks at a time, amenities include air conditioning throughout, a movie theatre, a hobbies workshop, a photographic darkroom and a gym.

British Plan Hard Sell Here

Canadian businessmen can expect the hard sell from British salesmen from now on, a Victoria service club was told Thursday.

Speaking to Rotarians, Sir Ralph Perring, vice-chairman of the United Kingdom's Committee for Exports to Canada, and former Lord Mayor of London, said the hard sell move follows the relaxation of trade restrictions in Canada's April budget.

"United Kingdom firms feel they can compete now and they intend to do so against any sort of competition," he said.

Sir Ralph said he did not want to launch into "a long rumble" in the imbalance of trade between the two countries, nevertheless "it is a fact of life," he said.

In 1964 Canada sold goods worth $1,300,000,000 to Britain and bought only $300,000,000 worth and this has been the prevailing pattern since the mid-50s.

"This $700,000,000 deficit to Britain is nearly half of Britain's

Potash Export Sets Record At Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP)—A port of Vancouver record was set Thursday with the loading of the millionth ton of potash aboard the Greek freighter Centaurus, bound for New Zealand.

Shipments of potash from the mine of International Minerals and Chemical Corp., at Esterhazy, Sask., began in late 1962. Since then 150 ships have loaded potash at Vancouver, making it one of the port's leading export cargoes.

The potash has been sent to Asia, the South Pacific, Europe, the United States and Central and South America, representing one-third of the output of the mine.

Railway officials said it has taken 12,500 railroad cars, which if placed end-to-end would stretch for 18 miles—to bring the potash from the Saskatchewan mine to the coast.

THREE YEARS

The Esterhazy mine, which went into production in September 1962, has reserves estimated sufficient to last 100 years. An expansion program, to be completed this year, will raise annual production to 2,000,000 tons.

The mine already produces more than 12 per cent of the free world's supply of potash.

Loading of the second million tons to be shipped from Vancouver will begin Monday when the Danish freighter Kersten Skou warps in to Vancouver wharves to take on a cargo for Brazil.

Potash is a basic chemical fertilizer material.

Development Plan Proposed For Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP)—City council will study a contract under which Toronto developers would undertake a multi-million-dollar downtown retail store-office development.

The contract was presented to a council committee by representatives of CEMP Investments Ltd. and Cadillac Development Corp. Ltd.

The contract covers development of one city block—bounded by Granville, Georgia, Howe and Dunsmuir—in the heart of the downtown area which the city would sell for $30,000,000.

It also provides for possible expansion of the scheme to two other blocks, including a large piece of land owned by the T. Eaton Co. Ltd.

Inland Proposes Rate Reduction

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)—Inland Natural Gas Co. Ltd. is proposing a rate reduction, B. R. Stokes, comptroller of the company, said in an interview.

Inland has made representations to the Public Utilities Commission, which sets rate schedules and makes any amendments.

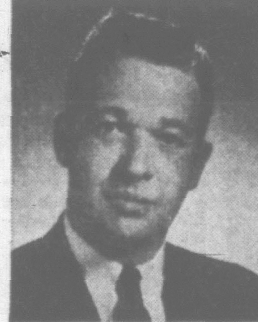

"I expect our rate reductions will apply at least to the majority of our consumers—the residential gas-users," said Mr. Stokes.

It was impossible to say how much they would be or who would enjoy them. It also was impossible to say if the entire Inland system or only a portion of it would be affected.

SIT-DOWNERS ARRESTED

CHICAGO (UPI)—Marching civil rights demonstrators staged a sit-down in a busy lakefront street intersection today. Police said more than 275 were arrested in the Grant Park melee and a series of outbreaks in front of city hall.

James Farmer, national chairman of the Congress on Racial Equality (CORE), and Negro comedian Dick Gregory were among the sit-downers bearded bodily from the pavement and tossed into paddy wagons.

'DANGEROUS VIOLATION

(See Story, Page 11)

HUNTSVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said today the federal government's proposal to prohibit foreign ownership of Canadian daily newspapers constitutes "a flagrant and dangerous violation" of freedom of the press.

It could damage the democratic process itself and open the way for "thought control" of radio and television.

The Conservative party leader, speaking to a Kinsman convention, said "the philosophy of the bureaucrat" lay behind government plans to prohibit foreign ownership of newspapers by disallowing for tax purposes any advertising expenditures in such publications.

Cutoff Rule Passed
With Wide Margin

OTTAWA (CP)—The three minority parties joined with the government today to approve a new guillotine rule that will permit cabinet ministers to set time limits on legislation debates.

As the 15-day debate on sweeping reforms to rules and procedures neared a close, the report of a special nine-man committee was passed 103 to 33 with most Conservatives and one New Democrat opposing.

Gordon Churchill (PC—Winnipeg South Centre) warned that the new rule will increase the power of the cabinet to the detriment of backbenchers. Government and minority party spokesmen disagreed.

The new rule guarantees a minimum of six days debate on any bill if an all-party business committee cannot agree to longer or shorter lengths for the debate.

Voting for the rule change were 73 Liberals, three Conservatives, 12 NDP members, five Social Credit MPs and 10 Creditists.

The three Conservatives who broke with the party line were R. G. L. Fairweather (Royal), Eloise Jones (Saskatoon) and Paul Martineau (Pontiac—Temiskamingue).

TOKYO (AP)—A light earthquake shook northern Japan today, the meteorological agency said. No casualty or damage was reported.

All Smiles As Prime Minister
Pearson Greet's ShastriViet Nam, Arms
Highlight Talks

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Ministers Shastri of India and Pearson of Canada today exchanged ideas on possible means of achieving a ceasefire in Viet Nam and of getting negotiations started.

Spokesmen for the two leaders declined, for the time being at least, to say what conclusions, if any, were reached.

Mr. Shastri and Mr. Pearson, in the first of a series of talks during the 60-year-old Indian leader's five-day Canadian visit, also swapped views on the policies of the United States, China, Russia and North Viet Nam in the Southeast Asia situation.

Mr. Shastri recently visited Moscow.

with Viet Nam were the problems of the International Truce Supervisory Commission of which India, Canada and Poland are the members.

The prime ministers also discussed means of preventing the spread of nuclear weapons.

CHANGE POLICY

Mr. Pearson informed Mr. Shastri about Canada's recent change in policy in the sale of uranium to other countries. Sales will be made only to countries which agree to allow Canadian inspection to make sure the uranium is being used for peaceful purposes only.

Other subjects discussed included the best forum for effective disarmament negotiations and the financial crisis in the United Nations with emphasis on the importance of enabling the General Assembly to function this fall.

Mr. Shastri has called for a cessation of U.S. air strikes against Communist North Viet Nam.

French, Germans
To Co-Operate

BONN (Reuters)—France and West Germany were reported to have agreed today on increased co-operation in defence projects as President de Gaulle and Chancellor Erhard met here.

De Gaulle, who arrived this morning, immediately began two days of talks with the West German leader on NATO and European problems.

At simultaneous ministerial talks France showed readiness to compromise in the key question of the further development of the European Common Market, informed West German sources said.

The two sides also agreed on increased co-operation in defence projects and intensified bilateral consultations on tactical, operational and strategic problems, the sources added.

A West German spokesman said Erhard later had a separate meeting with French Premier Pompidou after his initial one-hour talk with de Gaulle.

No flags or crowds greeted the French president on his arrival for a working visit amid a diplomatically chilly atmosphere.

Warfare Training School Uncovered

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A cache of dynamite and guerrilla warfare training school run by the minute men organization have been discovered within 25 miles of the nation's capital.

The find was made Thursday by authorities on information by the FBI.

The minutemen, self-styled patriots who say they fear a Communist takeover in this country, have stirred considerable controversy by training armed guerrilla units.

"I was actually walking on the spacecraft," he said.

"I walked three or four steps. I was able actually to walk right up the spacecraft."

He said a thought dashed through his head as he thought that he was linked to earth by radio.

"What do you say to 194 million people," White said with the question that went through his head.

"The view from up there is just something spectacular," White reported.

He explained why he spent longer than scheduled walking in space—a delay that brought sharp orders from the ground to "get back in."

He said he had to spend about five minutes detaching the cam-

Heavy Losses
In Fighting

SAIGON (UPI)—South Vietnamese military leaders seized power early today after serving notice on the chief of state, the premier and the legislature that they no longer had confidence in the country's civilian politicians.

The military seizure of power was disclosed shortly after a government spokesman had announced Premier Phan Huy Quat had resigned with his cabinet and asked the military to take over the government.

SAIGON (UPI)—Government troops drove the Viet Cong out of Dong Xoai today in one of the bitterest battles of the war. The government was feared to have suffered as many as 500 casualties but the enemy losses were greater—perhaps 700 killed and wounded.

Eight Americans were killed today when their plane crashed in the central highlands far to the north of Dong Xoai. The fighting at Dong Xoai cost the Americans nine known dead, 17 missing and 15 wounded—the highest single battle loss.

Government troops today were pushing northward to try to rescue what was left of a shattered government relief column, a battalion flown in to help the Dong Xoai defenders. The battalion of 300 to 400 men ran into a costly ambush.

NO ACCURATE COUNT
There still was no accurate count of Vietnamese casualties but the number was expected to be extremely high. Military sources said most of the original 400 defenders of the town, 60 miles north of Saigon, were wounded or dead. The final toll including the relief column was expected to be over 500.

Government reports said 300 Viet Cong were killed during the battle and another 400 killed as result of heavy American air strikes against the retreating Communists three to four miles north of Dong oai.

CAPTURE WEAPONS
The government reported capturing a large assortment of weapons from the guerrillas, including 400 mines, 1,000 grenades, three bazookas, two 57-millimeter recoilless cannons, four 60 mm mortars, 40 sub-machine guns and 130 carbines.

Two American military advisers were with the lost battalion. The last word from the force was a radio report from one of the Americans at 10:30 a.m. Thursday when he radioed for help saying the unit was facing vastly superior numbers of Viet Cong.

Williams suffered shrapnel wounds in the arms and legs.

"My first reaction was to get out of there, get the troops organized and repel the attack," he said. "We were in no position to be incapacitated. It was a matter of life and death."

"My men were wounded and dying or already dead. It was mass confusion."

Williams said nearly all of about 100 South Vietnamese troops with him were wiped out in that futile effort to hold the camp.

"We managed to beat them back until daylight. But then they began coming over the walls. Snipers were inside the compound."

"Every American was either killed or wounded," he said from a hospital bed in Saigon. "We suffered 50 per cent of our casualties during the initial barrage."

McDivitt said he made "drastic" efforts to rendezvous with the burned-out second-stage booster rocket on the first orbit after lift-off from Cape Kennedy on June 3.

The rendezvous attempt failed, but not because McDivitt did not try.

"I trusted (used rockets) toward the booster," McDivitt said.

"My initial thrust wasn't enough and I thrust again. It became apparent to me that the booster and I weren't in the same orbit. We started falling rapidly away," McDivitt said.

Laughing, the crew-cut McDivitt said he and White found they had no trouble with their healthy appetites.

"We found we could eat just as much in space," he said.

Failure of a million-dollar flight computer was "a blow to my pride," McDivitt said. He wanted to control the craft down to its splashdown Monday at the end of the 62nd orbit.

But the failure forced gravity-controlled descent.

"I wanted to land on the elevator" of the recovery aircraft carrier USS Wasp's deck, he said, laughing.

ASTRONAUTS GIVE DETAILS ...

... OF DRAMATIC FLIGHT

'Man Can Control Himself in Space'

SPACE CENTRE, Houston (UPI)—Astronaut Edward White said today his 20-minute spacewalk outside the Gemini-4 capsule proved "man can control himself in space," preferably with a longer lifeline and more space-gun fuel than he had.

Command pilot James McDivitt reported that he sighted three satellites in space during the four-day, 62-orbit flight.

The first of these "mystery" satellites had "big arms" and he saw it for about 30 seconds.

He saw a second one at night and a third was too far away to be identified.

Telling the world details of their flight at a news conference in the manned spacecraft centre, the two relaxed space heroes laughed and quipped, and reported that if they had any difficulty it was in getting enough sleep.

"I was sleepy and hungry at times," McDivitt said, "but I felt fine."

"The only time I felt discomfort was when I was hungry," said White.

White described his 20-minute spacewalk with a space gun—man's first self-propelled mission in space. He disclosed that he used the space gun to jet himself "right out of the capsule" and float into the void at the end of a 25-foot lifeline.

"I enjoyed EVA (extra-vehicular activity) very much," White said. "I can tell you honestly I was sorry to see it draw to a close."

He told newsmen he felt man could work longer than four days floating alone in space.

"Yes," he said, "I would have liked to have had a longer tether, but more than that, I would have liked to have had about 10 times as much propellant," for the space gun.

He said he deliberately used up the compressed oxygen gun fuel and worked only on the tether after that—which sometimes tended to swing him around while McDivitt kept the 18-foot capsule steady.

McDivitt said he did not use the "thrusters" (rockets) whenever he could not see White through the windshield "because I didn't want to use them if White was sitting on them."

White disclosed that he carried with him a St. Christopher medal, a cross, and a Star of David, representing the religions he "knew something about."

"I had a great faith in my own God," the 34-year-old astronaut said simply.

While the spectacular films of his 20-minute space stroll were shown to the audience, White gave a running commentary on what he did and how he felt waiting through space, protected only by a space suit and helmet.

He used the lifeline "to pull myself down on the spacecraft."

"I was actually walking on the spacecraft," he said.

"I walked three or four steps. I was able actually to walk right up the spacecraft."

He said a thought dashed through his head as he thought that he was linked to earth by radio.

"What do you say to 194 million people," White said with the question that went through his head.

"The view from up there is just something spectacular," White reported.

He explained why he spent longer than scheduled walking in space—a delay that brought sharp orders from the ground to "get back in."

At the Movies

With Norman Cribbens

BABY THE RAIN MUST FALL
Steve McQueen is the world-be musician and his main exploits in this role seem to be getting into trouble and belting out Texas-style rhythms with a string band.

He is almost indifferent to the plight of his family, hates the chore jobs he does in the daytime and lives only for musical success with his songs and his band.

But his drinking and his violent temper work against him.

McQueen is fairly convincing in the role and Lee Remick is excellent as the long-suffering wife. The film was adapted from the Broadway stage hit,
The Travelling Lady, by Horton Foote.

Most of the action takes place in Columbus, Texas, where the wife (Lee Remick) toils as car-hop at a drive-in. She wants a home for their daughter (Margaret Rose), but with McQueen around her dreams are as thin as air.

This is not a pretty story. It has almost too much realism and tends to become rather dry and tedious. But director Robert Mulligan seems to have done a competent job of adapting a stage success to the screen.

Not having seen the play, I cannot make any valid comparison between the two.

A man was fined a total of $275 Thursday in Saanich court on three offences arising out of a traffic accident April 24.

Roger Lister, 5191 Rambler
Rd., was fined $50 for careless driving after an accident at Richmond and Lansdowne; $150 and a licence suspension for failing to remain at the scene, and $75 for obstructing police officers.

He was further charged Thursday with failing to file an accident report within 24 hours.

Another careless driving charge April 24 was dismissed.
Lindal was convicted on the obstruction count but pleaded guilty to the other two.

The crown contended two Saanich police constables were obstructed when Lindal threw away a piece of chrome found at the accident after it had been fitted to his auto's headlight.

He was being interviewed at his home at the time.

When the officers attempted to impound the vehicle as evidence, Lindal drove off in it.
The Crown also called it an obstruction.

Magistrate William Oster ruled only the first act of throwing away the chrome was obstructing the officers because they had completed their investigation when Lindal drove off.
